RASKOB POLLS '28 DONORS ON WHISKY ISSUE

Asks 90,000 Democrats Seven Questions About Their Sentiments.

ANOTHER PARTY ROW EXPECTED TO RESULT

Chairman Cites Statements in Wickersham Report to Boost Contention.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Chairman John J. Raskob, of the Democratic national committee, is conducting a referendum on the prohibition question. A rampant wet himself, he wants to know how the "rank and file" in his party feel about it; whether or not they think the next Democratic national convention should take a definite stand on prohibition.

The "rank and file," in the opinion of Chairman Raskob, are the 90,000 or so Democrats who contributed nearly $4,000,000 to the party's 1928 campaign fund.

Consequently, Chairman Raskob has sent letters to the 90,000 contributors, asking them to answer "yes" or "no" to seven questions on the prohibition issue.

Another Controversy Seen.

The prospect is that Mr. Raskob's referendum will cause another prohibition controversy in the Democratic party, an echo of the row that broke out at the meeting of the Democratic national committee in the Mayflower Hotel here last March when Raskob proposed his "home rule" prohibition plan and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, told him that he could not emblazon the "skull and crossbones of an outlawed trade" on the Democratic banner.

In this particular case, the drys are certain to claim that Raskob's jury is "packed;" that most of the contributors in the 1928 campaign were wets, for the reason that the nominee—Alfred E. Smith, of New York—was a wet.

No doubt, they will point out that the largest groups of contributors were located in wet States—17,412 in New York, and 12,379 in Massachusetts.

Cites Wickersham Report.

Chairman Raskob, in his letter to the 1928 contributors, cited statements in the report of the Wickersham Commission to reinforce his contention that prohibition is unenforcible, and then made this statement:

"I believe the time has come for the Democratic party to face this issue squarely, and to present to the people a definite plan under the policy of State's rights, and local self-government.

"My recommendations in this connection were placed before the national committee at its meeting last March with the idea of provoking widespread discussion in the party for the benefit of the committee on resolutions of the next national con-

Roosevelt Quizzed On Dry Law Stand

Southern Democrat Women Ask What Substitute He Plans.

(United Press.)

A group of Southern Democratic women leaders yesterday asked Gov. Roosevelt of New York to state specifically what he would substitute for the eighteenth amendment if it were repealed. In a letter to the governor they cited a press report quoting him as saying repeal of the eighteenth amendment would promote "a greater temperance."

"To destroy without building would certainly be abhorrent to a man of your background," the women told Roosevelt. "What is your plan to insure a still greater temperance than the greater temperance already secured by prohibition?"

Signers of the letter included Mrs. Marvin Williams, president of the Georgia W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Clem Shaver, wife of the former chairman of the Democratic national committee; Mrs. J. H. Ross, former Texas national committeewoman; Mrs. C. O. Pickett, Nashville, Tenn., and Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, president of the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement League.

2 DROWNED, 2 SAVED AS BOAT OVERTURNS

Girl and Man Pulled Out as Pair Struggles and Dies in Potomac.

A pleasure cruise on the Potomac River yesterday afternoon turned into tragedy when two men were drowned and two others, a girl and man, were treated at Emergency Hospital for shock and exposure after the 16-foot outboard motor boat in which they were riding capsized and sank just west of the Highway Bridge.

Frank Meegan, 31 years old, of 5205 Colorado avenue, and Anthony Miller, 28 years old, of 2503 Fourteenth street northwest, were drowned and Miss Adelaide Molar, 20, of 1330 Massachusetts avenue northwest, and Brodus Taylor Langyher, 26, of 1021 Fifteenth street northwest, required treatment.

The bodies of the two men were recovered at 10:20 last night by members of the Harbor Precinct at approximately the point where the boat sank at a spot where the water is about 20 feet deep.

All the men in the party were drivers of Diamond taxicabs.

According to witnesses, the party drove to a point on the river near the Washington Airport with the boat fastened on a trailer behind their car. They launched their craft shortly after noon and seemed to have had difficulty in starting the motor, as they drifted about for some time.

While under the new bridge on the Mount Vernon highway, as the boat still drifted, Meegan and Miller were seen sitting in the rear trying to start the motor. According to John E. White, who was in a small boat near the scene of the accident, one of the men gave the rope attached to the flywheel a hard pull and the motor gave a sudden lurch which threw the men off balance and caused the boat to overturn.

White rushed to the scene and aided Langyher in getting Miss Molar into his boat. Langyher then attempted to help his two companions, who were struggling with each other in an endeavor to keep afloat. Langyher strove to save them until he became exhaustd, and, he declared, the last he remembers, was White throwing a life preserver over his head and helping him into the boat.

White said the other two men had disappeared by that time and, after waiting a few minutes to see if they would come to the surface, he took the two who had been rescued to shore.

Detective Sergt. John C. Dalglish, of the homicide squad, who conducted an investigation last night, declared that no one would be held in connection with the accident.

Carol to Let Brother Keep Wife, Is Report

Vienna, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—King Carol of Roumania had been persuaded tonight to let his brother, Prince Nicholas, keep his plebeian wife and would merely forbid their attending any state function together, said dispatches from Bucharest by way of Prague.

The king stormed and fumed, the dispatches said, when two of his ministers took sides against him, but he ultimately accepted their counsel.

M'FADDEN SEES RESULT NEAR IN TAX FRAUD QUIZ

Income Probe Expected to Uncover "Hundreds of Millions."

FORMER ACCOUNTANT AIDS REVENUE BUREAU

House Bank Group Head Says Leaders Shut Eyes as Interested Parties.

Representative Louis T. McFadden (Republican), of Pennsylvania, chairman of the last House banking and currency committee, stated last night that the Internal Revenue Bureau is investigating income tax frauds which have kept "hundreds of millions of dollars" out of the Federal Treasury.

Mr. McFadden has been cooperating with David A. Olson, of New York, a public accountant. Mr. Olson was for six years connected with a well-known accounting firm in New York. Recently he turned over to the Revenue Bureau evidence which, if proved in the courts, will result in a major round-up of income tax evaders.

Fact that the investigation is being made was exclusively revealed first by The Washington Post in an interview given by Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas, a week ago.

In his statement last night, Representative McFadden said:

Study Covers Two Years.

"For the last two years, as chairman of the committee on banking and currency of the House of Representatives, I have been trying to procure the necessary authority to proceed with an examination of the banking situation, including consolidations, conversions and centralization of banking power, and what happened in the New York stock market in 1929, affecting this whole situation, particularly the part played by national banks, their affiliates and private banking houses in New York and elsewhere, some of which were doing an international business.

"My efforts in this particular were narrowed down, by the direction of the administration, to a technical discussion of branch, chain and group banking. It was impossible under this latitude to go into the vital things, the operation of which have had much to do with the present unsatisfactory financial, banking and economic situation, which is responsible for the continued period of deflation.

"I have, however, with my limited means and opportunities and with such help as I could procure, been making a study of just what has happened in this respect, and in connection with my examination of the issuance and sale of securities by the heretofore mentioned group of institutions to the banks and individual investors at inflated prices which have now left the country's investors and financial institutions flat, carrying great losses. I think I now know what has been taking place.

Financial Chiefs Interested.

"The bulk of this occurred under observation of the Federal Reserve management and the New York Stock Exchange and their various better business bureaus and committees on ethics and conduct. The trouble was that most all of these observers had their eyes shut and many were interested parties, and the exploitation of the public proceeded without interruption and with much glee.

This exploitation of the innocent public applied to the distribution not only of domestic securities, but also of international securities, under a particular group of international

UNIONS REJECT RAILWAY PLAN FOR WAGE CUT

INDIVIDUAL CARRIERS MAY CUT MEN'S PAY

Labor Leader Says Proposal Did Not Give Proper Assurance of Aid.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Refusal by the Railway Labor Executives Association tonight to accept a voluntary reduction of 10 per cent in wages for carrier operating employes, was expected to lead to action by individual railroads to effect the cuts.

Although the statement by Daniel Willard, chairman of the railroad executives' committee, said only that the result of a four-day conference with labor leaders would be referred to their eastern, southern and western associations, it contained an indication that the carriers would serve notice of a reduction.

Labors Reason for Objection.

The conferences, Mr. Willard said, developed nothing "which would seem to make unnecessary the course which the railway executives had decided upon before this conference was called."

While the railway presidents are reporting back to their three division associations, the leaders of the 21 labor organizations concerned will meet with 1,200 representatives of the employes in Chicago, December 8.

Mr. Willard's statement, in the form of a leter, was in reply to a letter he received earlier in the day from D. B. Robertson, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association, informing him labor could not accept the proposed wage cut, because it was not given proper "assurance that the money thus saved would be applied either to increase employment or even to stabilize employment.

Realized Difficulties.

Mr. Willard, in reply, informed Mr. Robertson the presidents believed the labor leaders had "realized the difficulties, in fact, the impossibilities, of giving any assurances concerning the future with conditions as uncertain as they are at the present time.

"We did, however," he added, "express the view that should such a reduction be made as we suggested, it would naturally tend to stabilize the employment of those now in the service and probably result in bringing back into the service many now temporarily unemployed.

"We also pointed out that in case a reduction should not be made and business continue on the present basis, it would probably come about that some of the men now working would be furloughed."

Private Sessions

The last of the joint meetings between the labor and presidents' group broke up in midafternoon. The presidents retired into a private session while the labor leaders met to draft a letter informing them of labor's decision.

The suggestion of the railroads that the employes consider a voluntary acceptance of a 10 per cent reduction in their wages was made with the stipulation that the arrangement

Colombians Cheer Lindbergh Arrival

Barranquilla, Colombia, Nov. 22 (A.P.) (By Pan-American Airways Radio to Miami).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh nestled the giant American Clipper, Pan-American Airways seaplane, into Barranquilla Harbor at 12:03 p. m. today, amid the cheers of thousands of persons to complete the first trans-Caribbean flight of the giant air vessel.

As he landed the ship preparatory to remaining here for several days, Col. Lindbergh was welcomed to Colombia—his third trip to the nation—by Dr. Enrico De La Rosa, secretary to the governor of Barranquilla.

In addition, a group of local officials lent Dr. De La Rosa their assistance in greeting Col. Lindbergh and the seventeen passengers he brought here on the maiden voyage of the American Clipper into South America. Col. Lindbergh lifted the Clipper out of water at Kingston, Jamaica, at 7 a. m. today.

Greek Ship Reported Sinking Off Algeria

London, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—The Greek steamer Michael L. Embiricos was in difficulty tonight off the coast of Algeria. An S O S call from the vessel was intercepted by Lloyds Landsend radio station, which reported the ship was sinking 20 miles off Oran. The British steamer City of Aukland later reported it had sighted the Greek ship ashore off Plane Island, but was unable to make contact.

The Embiricos is of 5,202 tons, built in 1918. It is out of Andros, Greece, and was formerly the War Malayan.

(Associated Press.)

The secretariat of the League of Nations drew up in Paris yesterday a resolution providing for a commission of inquiry in Manchuria after the council members spent a busy day conferring among themselves.

A Rengo News Agency dispatch from Harbin reported in Tokyo that Gen. Mah Chan-Shan's shattered forces had attacked Japanese troops near Tsitsihar and were repulsed after considerable fighting.

Foreign Minister Shidehara, of Japan, said in an executive statement to the Associated Press that Japanese troops would be withdrawn from non-treaty zones of Manchuria as soon as peace had been established and denied Japan was setting up "puppet governments."

Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, denied in Peiping that China was concentrating troops in southern Manchuria or planinng a renewed assault on the Japanese forces.

Formation of a new republic in Manchuria, separate from China, has been proposed by Manchurian political leaders, Tokyo heard.

Japan indicated it desired a commission of three, including an American business man, a French army officer and a British statesman or lawyer, to investigate conditions in Manchuria and China proper.

Paris, Nov. 22.—The resolution providing for a commission of inquiry into the Sino-Japanese conflict in Manchuria was drawn up today by the secretariat of the League of Nations and circulated among the council members tonight for examination.

It was expected that twelve of the councilmen would meet privately at noon tomorrow in an attempt to reach a unanimous indorsement of disinterested members before formally submitting the proposal to the Japanese and Chinese delegates.

It was understood in reliable sources that the resolution provides roughly for a commission of about three members with a number of supporting experts and advisers. The

Deputies Acquitted In Mexican's Killing

Oklahoma Jury Absolves Pair in Tragedy Which Stirred 2 Nations.

Ardmore, Okla., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The closing chapter of the tragedy in which two young Mexican college students of prominent families were killed last June by two Ardmore peace officers was written today when the officers were acquitted of murder charges.

William E. Guess and Cecil Crosby, former deputy sheriffs, were found not guilty by a district court jury of the murder of Manuel Garcia Gomez. Murder charges pending against Crosby in the death of Emilio Cortes Rubio, kinsman of the Mexican president, were dismissed.

Guess, who accepted responsibility for firing the fatal shots, was acquitted last summer of the murder of young Cortes Rubio. F. M. Dudley Assistant United States Attorney General, in charge of the prosecution, said dismissal of the case against Crosby closed the matter, which aroused international interest.

Football Player Seriously Injured

Potomac A. C. Half Back Is Unable to Move Lower Portion of Body.

Injured when he was tackled in the football game between the Potomac A. C. and the Navy Yard A. C. on Potomac Field yesterday, George Dyer, 21, of 5104 Sherrier place northwest, was in a serious condition with a dislocated vertebra at Georgetown Hospital last night.

Dyer, a half back on the Potomac team, was tackled by several opposing linemen and thrown heavily to the ground. He was unable to rise.

Removed to the hospital by Arthur Knott, of 5101 Sherrier place, Dyer was found to be paralyzed. Physicians said that one of the upper vertebra of his spine was out of place. He was conscious, but unable to move the lower portion of his body.

Japanese Are Warned By Communist Organ

Soviet Will Fight Efforts to Harm Its Interests; Let Tokyo, Washington and Paris Not Forget This, Pravda Declares.

Moscow, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Japan was sharply warned today by the Communist newspaper Pravda to cease what it termed an anti-Soviet campaign in connection with Manchuria.

"Soviet Russia's peace policy does not mean it will allow efforts to harm the interests of Socialist construction to go unpunished," declared the newspaper.

"Let Tokyo, Washington and Paris not forget this."

Declaring it was no secret that certain Japanese circles were seeking to complicate Japanese-Soviet relations, the Communist party organ said:

"The Japanese military can not satisfy us by assurances alone. The Japanese government must confirm by actions its peaceful intentions toward the Soviet Union and first intercept the anti-Soviet campaign."

Pravda was most outspoken of the Soviet press, which generally expressed dissatisfaction with the latest Japanese declaration to Soviet Russia. Alarm was sounded lest the widening of Japanese occupation of Manchuria would present a further opportunity for imperialistic efforts to involve the Soviet Union.

The Japanese Ambassador's statement on November 19 that Japan did not believe rumors of Chinese receiving Soviet support, Pravda said, failed to end the "anti-Soviet campaign," but on the contrary gave a new

REVISION IN TARIFF ON BRITAIN LOOMING

Administration Considering Change Designed to Offset Fall in Costs.

(Associated Press.)

While retaliatory action against the new British tariff by the United States seems unlikely, the administration has been considering complete revision of the tariff rates on England's goods.

This would be designed to offset the new values resulting from the depreciation of the British pound sterling.

The basis of the tariff rates is cost of production of goods in foreign countries compared with similar costs here. Since Great Britain went off the gold standard, the value of the pound sterling has decreased almost a dollar, or about 25 per cent.

President Hoover and other Government officials have been studying the effect of this as it applies to cost of production of British goods exported to this country.

In other words, they are wondering if the British goods are not produced for less under the depreciated value of the pound.

It is known that Mr. Hoover has seriously considered having the Tariff Commission make an exhaustive study of this situation with a view to raising American tariff rates applicable on British imports in the United States.

Under the flexible provision of the tariff law he could put into effect a higher schedule of rates upon recommendation of the Tariff Commission.

While Treasury officials considered the feasibility of imposing countervailing duties on some British imports to offset Great Britain's new tariff, this has been found impossible. None of the countervailing duties which may be imposed under the law is affected by the British tariff.

At least two Republican leaders—Senators Watson, of Indiana, and Borah, of Idaho—believe the United States has no cause for complaint against Great Britain for adopting a United States policy—the tariff.

Brazil Plans to Destroy 12 Million Bags Coffee

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—An agreement in principle for the disposition of Brazil's coffee surplus was understood today to have been reached between the Sao Paulo Coffee Institute and the National Coffee Council.

The agreement, reports said, provides for destruction by the council of 12,000,000 bags of coffee to remove market congestion.

THREE-STORY JUMP KILLS U. S. SOLDIER

Virginian Who Leaped From Walter Reed Window Dies of Injuries.

Private George W. Kesser, 23 years old, died in Walter Reed Hospital yesterday from injuries received Saturday in a plunge from a third-story window when he was surprised in the women's quarters at the hospital. News of the fall was not made public until last night.

An Army board of inquiry will be appointed today to investigate the circumstances of his death. Coroner Joseph D. Rogers believes the death was accidental, but will await the report of the Army board before issuing a certificate.

Kesser, whose home was in Pembroke, Va., had been on leave Friday night, officials at the hospital said. When he reappeared at the hospital on Saturday he appeared intoxicated, the Army officers said. He was observed in the women's ward of the hospital and when discovered, he ran to a window and jumped out, landing three stories below.

He was taken to the emergency room for treatment. His injuries were diagnosed as broken legs and possible internal injuries. An autopsy will be performed today to determine the cause of his death.

Washington Nurse Dies in Auto Crash

Miss Palmer's Companion Also Killed When Car Hits Truck.

Special to The Washington Post.

Gordonsvills, Va., Nov. 22.—Miss Katherine Palmer, 28, of Washington, D. C., and Henry Jenkins, 26, Madison Court House, member of the firm of Jenkins & Estes, were instantly killed about 8 o'clock tonight when, the driver blinded by the headlights of an approaching automobile, their car crashed into the rear of a truck owned by the Columbia Gas Co., parked on the road between Gordonsville and Orange.

The impact was so great that the motor was driven back into the car body, crushing the occupants. The bodies were taken to Harlow's funeral home in Orange.

Miss Palmer, a trained nurse, had spent the day in Barboursville at the home of her uncle, Dr. E. N. Lillard, and was en route to Washington at the time of the accident. She lived at 1673 Myrtle street northwest. She had been caring for the baby of Benjamin Ourisman, automobile dealer. She was a graduate of St. Vincent's Hospital, Norfolk, Va.

7 Men and Valuable Horses Killed as Train Is Wrecked

Lexington, Mo., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Seven men and many of the finest show horses of America were killed late today in the wreck of a Missouri Pacific "million dollar" live stock train bearing the equine aristocracy to Chicago from the American Royal Live Stock and Horse Show in Kansas City.

An undetermined number of men, virtually all handlers of the animals and riding with their charges in the cars, were injured. Rescuers did not attempt to list those hurt but searched frenziedly in the wreckage of approximately 20 cars for more bodies.

While the search went on, no attempt was made to identify five victims, taken to a Lexington mortuary.

Among the injured were: Ed Halton, 30, Verona, Ill.; William Burns, Portland, Oreg.; Dale Godsey, Brunswick, Md.; B. P. Jackson, Spofford, Tex.; Bird Sweeney, 30, Verona, Ill.

The wreck, attributed to a spread rail, occurred at dusk on a curve near a paved State highway. Rain was falling, and the murky night, the mud and confusion handicapped rescuers who hurried from town to join trainmen and owners riding in a passenger coach at the rear of the train.

The passenger coach and two-thirds of the stock cars did not leave the rails, the cars toppling over being immediately behind the engine, which also remained on the track.

Screams of the injured and dying horses added to the confusion of shattered cars and broken bodies.

Rio Saxon, champion heavy harness horse at the American Royal, was injured. The bay gelding was owned by Mrs. A. C. Thompson, Chicago. Scottish Rite and Tipsy Cake, two other Thompson horses were killed. Another Thompson horse was injured.

Brookhart Arouses Protest On Alliance With Thompson

Fellow Republican From Iowa Tells Senator He May Be Asked to Apologize to State on Proposal and Demands Correspondence.

(Associated Press.)

A fellow Republican from Iowa yesterday suggested to Senator Brookhart that he might be asked to apologize to his State for seeking an alliance with William Hale Thompson, of Chicago, in support of Senator Hiram Johnson for President.

Representative Cole asked Brookhart to make public his correspondence with Thompson respecting a joint Iowa-Illinois movement for the California senator.

The letter of Thompson, former Chicago Mayor, to Brookhart stating he would be glad to confer with Johnson was made public. Brookhart never gave out the text of his letter to Thompson.

Senator Johnson himself has taken no part in the affair. Returning here from California Friday he renewed his attack upon President Hoover's policies, but gave no intimation that he would enter the presidential race.

"I can not make myself believe that the people of the State which you and I in part represent in Congress want to be placed in an alliance, either political or moral, with the man who was Mayor of Chicago when that city was in the control of the Al Capones who robbed the sick and the dead," Cole wrote to Brookhart.

"Instead of sanctioning an alliance of which you are the sole projector, William Hale Thompson the sole manipulator, and Hiram Johnson the sole beneficiary, is it not possible that they are expecting an apology from you for even having suggested such an arrangement in what you call a 'private' and 'innocent' letter?

"As an Iowan I want to enter my protest against such a committment of our State, and if I did not protest I would feel I had lost some of my self-respect."

Senator Brookhart, pending receipt of the Cole letter, would not comment upon it except to say, "I'll have something to say about it—I'll answer it." He added he wouldn't give out the Thompson correspondence "after a demand like that."

Brookhart comes up for reelection next year and there was a hint from his friends that Cole might get into the contest.

ATMOSPHERE CLEARS FOR LEAGUE EFFORTS

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Fears for the embroiling of Soviet Russia in the Manchurian crisis between China and Japan were definitely allayed yesterday by an authoritative statement from Senator William E. Borah. The chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, whose prestige in Russia enabled him to speak authoritatively, said:

"I don't anticipate any trouble between Russia and Japan. Of course, anything may happen, but, in my opinion, there will be no trouble."

This clearing of the atmosphere will enable the council of the League of Nations to continue its mediatory activities with greater freedom.

Dawes Continues Efforts.

American Ambassador Charles G. Dawes conferred yesterday in Paris with members of the council of the League of Nations in informal sessions seeking to decide upon a satisfactory formula for the creation of an impartial commission of inquiry. The commission would make an impartial investigation of the situation that exists in Manchuria today as a result of Japanese occupation of strategic points outside their treaty zones.

The American delegate was so busy that he did not have time to report to Secretary Stimson or the President himself. G. Howland Shaw, American charge d'affaires ad interim, who is temporarily replacing Counselor Norman Armour, now on leave, cabled a lengthy report to the department on the result of the conversations exchanged between delegates.

The complete proposal will be revealed today when the league council holds its next public session to determine the best method of settling the recent hostilities between China and Japan in southern Manchuria.

China's Defense Stated.

Secretary Stimson will be handed today the text of a resolution passed by the Kuomintang in Nanking, justifying the military movements of Gen. Mah as dictated by "self-defense" and calling upon the nations signatory to the league covenant, the nine-power treaty and the Kellogg-Briand pact of their obligations under treaty commitments. At the same time that the resolution is presented here at the State Department, American Minister Nelson T. Johnson in Nanking will also be given a copy of the resolution for transmission to the department.

The resolution is a lengthy document reciting the situation created by the League of Nations when it passed an ultimatum to the Japanese government for its evacuation of Manchuria by November 16. The latest Japanese advance was initiated on that date. As a result of the Japanese attack, the capture of Tsitsihar and the rout of Chinese Gen. Mah quickly followed. The resolution was received by the Chinese Legation here yesterday and it was announced will be presented to the State Department today by Hawkling Yen, charge d'affaires of the legation.

Kuomintang Influence.

It was recalled here yesterday, however, that the force of the Kuomintang has not always indicated a corresponding nationalistic sentiment for all of China. The Kuomintang is the political party now in power in Nanking and its influence on the Nationalist government proper at Nanking is consequently very strong. However, outside of Nanking, in Canton and in Manchuria and even outside the large cities of China, the influence of the Koumintang has been slight.

The report of Mr. Shaw was not made public yesterday, but it was communicated at once to Secretary Stimson at his home in Woodley. It was understood to be a recapitulation of the events of the last four days in Paris during the meetings of the league council in their peace-seeking

JAPANESE MINISTRY RESIGNATION LOOMS

Leaders of the Minseito (government) party were engaged in vitally important political conversations, presumably directed toward formation of a coalition or emergency regime to meet pressing national problems.

The extent of progress toward a coalition cabinet was uncertain. Kenzo Adachi, minister of home affairs, disclosed the possibility of a new regime yesterday when he issued a statement suggesting a change. Adachi recommended establishment of a coalition regime in which the Minseito party would cooperate with the Seiyukai opposition.

Motives Cause Speculation.

The government leaders were understood to have opened negotiations with the Seiyukai party, led by Takeshi Inukai, but met with opposition. The conferences were continued, however, and it was indicated that Wakatsuki may be expected to resign soon.

There was wide speculation concerning the motives behind the negotiations. The cabinet has been forced to meet foreign and financial problems of greatest importance to the empire in the last few months.

At the outbreak of the conflict with China in Manchuria, it was said that the military element in the government had seized control from the conciliatory civil leaders, such as Foreign Minister Baron Shidehara. The government denied these reports and approved the action of the military in Manchuria, but the indications of dissension continued.

Militarist Party Strong.

The army and navy representatives in the cabinet are less under civilian control in the Japanese cabinet than in most western governments, and there has long been a strong militarist party in Japan. In the last two weeks all outward indications have been of accord between the military and the government leaders, despite the reports of earlier conflict.

The government indicated that threats to withdraw Kenkichi Yoshizawa as delegate to the League of Nations Council had been dropped. The cabinet was irritated by Yoshizawa's reports or failure to report developments at Paris, but it was underatood the situation was smoothed out by explanations received later.

Cement Firm Reports Gain in October Sales

Chicago, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Theodore G. Dickinson, president of the Marquette Cement Manufacturing Co., said today cement shipments for October were 25 per cent greater than for the same month of 1930. The largest amount ever handled by the Marquette Co. in a single day was on October 3, a total of 55,000 barrels. October volume of business, Dickinson said, was 17 per cent above that of September. The Marquette Co.'s plant at La Salle, Ill., is the largest single unit cement plant in the industry.

SOVIET-JAPAN CLASH PROBABILITY DENIED

efforts. Gen. Dawes has been quietly following the discussions as they took place outside of the league council. The United States will not be a party to the deliberations of the council proper, but Ambassador Dawes was sent from his London post to Paris to be able to confer in an informal manner with the various delegates on an equal footing and to be able to assume a certain autonomy of action if the State Department should think the moment opportune or necessary for independent American action.

U. S. Awaits Paris Move.

It was learned here last night that further American action in the Manchurian crisis will depend on the outcome of today's meeting. During the interim China and Japan seemed to have composed their differences somewhat, although there still remain several points of conflict. If these remaining details can be ironed out today by the eloquence of M. Aristide Briand, who is chairman of the council for this special purpose, the concomitant action of the United States, through Ambassador Dawes, is expected to follow.

The decision of the League Council leans very strongly to the appointment of a neutral committee of inquiry to discover the causes of the recent clashes on the Manchurian plains between Chinese and Japanese troops. Japan has already put forward the nomination of Gen. Charles P. Summerall, retired, former chief of staff of the United States Army.

During the appointment of the commission of inquiry the two armies would be obliged by their respective governments to refrain from all further advances. They likewise would be expected to maintain the conditions of the truce which would have to be accepted before the arrival of the neutral commission of inquiry.

Despite the varying attitudes toward the creation of the commission that have been alternately put forward by the Chinese and the Japanese, it is believed that this solution is the likeliest to find favor with both combatants.

cause for the possibility of damage to Japanese-Soviet relations by demanding new assurances from Soviet Russia that it would not support the armies of Gen. Mah Chan-Shan.

An attempt to draw an analogy between the present conflict and the Chinese-Russian embroglio in 1929 was described by Pravda as "only an effort to indicate that the Soviet government was indebted to Japanese imperialism, which gives a new pretense to prolong the anti-Soviet campaign."

Continuous efforts of imperialist powers to set up in China the bogey of an "anarchy" created by Soviet Russia and rumors of Soviet support of Chinese generals, the newspaper said, were "fabricated to divert attention from imperialistic plundering of Manchuria."

Gen. Greely Advises Latest Polar Group

Hero of Half-Century Ago Heads Sponsor List of New Expedition.

(Associated Press.)

An Arctic hero of 50 years ago lived over past glories yesterday as he helped plan a new expedition which will go with radio, airplanes and modern comforts where he met starvation and disaster.

Gen. A. W. Greely, leader of the ill-fated Greely Arctic expedition of 1881-84, was announced as chairman of the national committee sponsoring the American Polar expedition of 1932-34, led by Capt. Flavel M. Williams. It will leave next June to spend two years at Fort Conger, Ellesmere Island, northernmost land on the globe, where Greely and his men wintered 50 years ago.

Eighteen of Greely's 25 men starved or froze to death because they could not notify civilization of their plight when an expected relief ship failed to reach them. The twenty men of the Williams party hope to be in constant communication with the United States by radio and expect to fly easily over ice fields where Greely and his surviving comrades toiled painfully with hunger-weakened bodies toward eventual rescue.

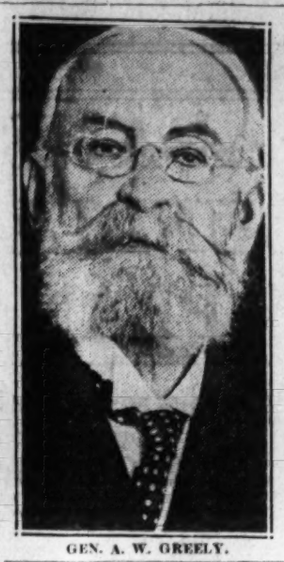
Gen. Greely, bearded, erect, still hale and hearty despite his 88 years, swapped yarns, offered advice and listened with interest to plans for the new expedition when Capt. Williams and Dr. H. B. Maris, scientific director of the party, called on him.

"You'll find plenty of smooth ice to land and take off in your planes at Fort Conger," he said. "Six or eight miles back from the coast there's an open coal seam where we dug coal to burn in camp in '82. It must be still there."

"How about storms?" asked Dr. Maris.

"We had bad ones, when a man risked his life to go a few yards from the house to the shack where we kept the weather recording instruments," Gen. Greeley replied. "The coldest day we had was 50 below, as I recall.

"I'd advise you to leave a cache of supplies somewhere along the coast on the way up,' he continued. Perhaps he was thinking of 50 years ago when such a cache, rightly placed, might have saved the lives of his comrades.



GEN. A. W. GREELY.

The Williams expedition will be one of several to represent the United States in the international polar year program of 1932-33. Starting in August, 1932, all the leading nations will send expeditions to spend a year in the Arctic and Antarctic for simultaneous study of tides, currents, weather, magnetism of the earth and strange happenings in the upper air that affect radio and wire transmission.

The Greely expedition was one of twelve that participated in the first polar year of 1882-83. Despite all hardships, observations were continued to the end. The last observation was taken 40 hours before survivors were rescued.

LEAGUE SECRETARIAT DRAFTS RESOLUTION FOR CHINA PROBE

Wide Geographical Scope.

Its geographical scope would include Nanking and Peiping, in China proper, as well as Manchuria. It would provide for eventual troop withdrawals from nontreaty zones, but only of an advisory nature.

Its activities would also extend to Tokyo, presumably for a study of the legal and political aspects of the controversy.

It was acknowledged in authoritative quarters that the resolution inevitably would encounter objections from both parties, and feelers already extended have met with expressions of dissatisfaction from both delegations.

The deadlock continues very sharply drawn and it was felt the council members under Chairman Briand's leadership would have to draw on the last reserve of their influence if the agreement of Dr. Alfred Sze and Ambassador Kenkichi Yoshizawa is to be obtained.

Chinese Maintain Objection.

The Chinese delegation reiterated that their position on the commission was unchanged and that they awaited the presentation of the draft of the proposal. The Nanking government is opposed to any compromise omitting evacuation of Japanese forces from northwest Manchuria, it was said, and will not consider an inquiry into China proper.

Other members of the council, especially the British, were understood to maintain that the league has no business meddling in China, as Japan demanded, but must confine itself to the Manchurian conflict.

Many observers expressed the belief that Japan, having seized the principal strategic points in Manchuria, is merely playing for time in advancing the inquiry plan. The opinion was widely held that the next few days will find the deadlock all the more stubborn.

Japan's Choice of Personnel.

Tokyo, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Japan would like to have an American business man, a French army officer and a British stateman or lawyer on the proposed international commission of inquiry which would visit Manchuria, it was learned today.

But official circles regarded China's acceptance of Japan's conditions for the inquiry, which was proposed at the League of Nations session at Paris, as unlikely.

The Nanking government probably would object, it was believed here, to Japan's insistence that the agreement was contingent on the commissions investigating the anti-Japanese boycott and other alleged activities of violence against Japan in China proper.

Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese spokesman at Paris, also has been instructed that if the duties of the proposed commission would have the slightest resemblance to provisions of the leagues covenant and article 15, the idea would be opposed vigorously. Article 15 would give the commission a far wider scope of action, judgment and recommendation that Japan would approve under the circumstances, the government held.

Tokyo's Conditions Bared.

Japan's approval of the investigating commission, it was authoritatively emphasized, rested entirely on the following conditions:

1. The commission should investigate the whole of China, in addition to Manuchuria, paying special attention to the history of China's anti-foreign tendencies, not only toward Japan but toward other powers as well.

2. The commission should have neither supervisory powers nor the privilege to examine military activities of either party in Manchuria.

3. The commission should not in any way participate or interfere in negotiations between Japan and China designed to bring a settlement in Manchuria nor have any bearing on the question of evacuation.

Japanese Advance Reported.

London, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—A Harbin dispatch to the London Daily Mail today quoted Chinese sources as saying Japanese troops who occupied Taitsihar were advancing along the railway line to Koshan, which is 75 miles northeast of Taitsihar, in Manchuria.

Japanese were reported pursuing the retreating troops of Gen. Mah Chan-Shan while Japanese airplanes bombed Koshan.

The Japanese-owned newspaper, Carrios, which is printed in Russian, said Japanese would be compelled to send forces to Harbin if the slightest sign of a hostile disturbance occurred there. The situation in Harbin was described as quiet, but tense.

Mukden, Manchuria, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The Japanese detachment at Tsitsihar was said in official dispatches today to be encamped in the former Chinese barracks outside the city, suffering from bitter cold.

Before evacuating Tsitsihar, it was said, the Chinese troops broke all the windows and stoves in the barracks. Many cases of frostbite have resulted, for the Japanese officers refuse to quarter their men in civilian houses. Their resistance to the cold is diminished by the fact that they fought two days without food in capturing the city.

The Japanese victory was achieved with 3,500 men, 20 field guns and a few airplanes, it was disclosed, against what were described as overwhelming Chinese forces. The invaders had a detachment of armored cars, but they froze up and were useless. The planes' motors were kept running day and night for two days prior to the battle so they could be used.

The strength of the Chinese troops engaged in the defense of the city and surrounding territory was unknown to Japanese headquarters, but estimates varied at between 20,000 and 50,000 men.

A stirring tale of personal heroism was told of a Japanese soldier, who was the only man to be captured by the Chinese in the fighting prior to the occupation of Tsitsihar and who was freed several days ago.

Chinese Torture Charged.

The soldier, Yamada by name, who is a horseshoer, was one of a patrol of six men which was surprised in the Nonni River area by 60 Chinese cavalry men and surrounded. When it was seen that the patrol would be annihilated, the officer in charge instructed Yamada to take the best horse and attempt to reach headquarters.

Armed only with a hammer, Yamada charged his enemies and fought desperately to break through, but a bullet brought down his mount and he was captured. He saw all his comrades slain and was carried to Tsitsihar, where he was said to have been tortured in an unsuccessful attempt to extract military information from him.

He was bound to a post and exposed in the streets by day and jailed by night. After the fighting began last week, a Korean jailer released him and hid him in a house within the city until the arrival of the Japanese forces.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Peiping, Nov. 22.—Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, deposed governor of Manchuria, denied in an interview with the Associated Press today published reports that China was massing troops in southern Manchuria in preparation for a renewed attack on the Japanese forces.

"Ever since the occupation of Mukden," he said, "the Japanese have been alleging the presence of huge Chinese forces in Manchuria. This is false. They now state that Chinese cavalry is concentrating at Gungliao, that 50,000 troops are assembling at Chinchow and that three trainloads of infantry from Peiping and Tientsin have arrived outside the Great Wall.

"These reports are equally untrue. They are but another instance of a policy to create pretexts for further aggression. It is notorious that the Japanese military confiscated the revenues of legitimate Manchurian provincial governments and attempted to coerce us by confronting us with the danger of financial strangulation."

JAPANESE DIPLOMAT HITS CHINESE ACTION

Foreign Minister Says Open Disregard of Treaties Is Cause of Difficulty.

By BARON KIJURO SHIDEHARA
(Foreign Minister of Japan).

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Tokyo, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The whole difficulty in Manchuria originates from a long series of open disregard by China of treaties which are essential to the security of that region.

Its immediate cause is now well known to be the violent attack of September 18 last made by Chinese troops on the South Manchurian Railway zone, under protection of the Japanese army.

We are all too apt to forget that between 1895 and 1904 China had allowed Russia to get Manchuria completely within her grasp. It was practically a Russian province. By the war of 1904-05 Japan wrested it from the control of the czar, and handed Manchuria back to China, only stipulating the retention of the South Manchurian Railway and the right of military protection of that line, together with a lease of Kwantung.

All the time China was secretly an ally of Russia, and had this fact been known Japan would have had every justification for replacing Russia in Manchuria. In 1915 she did obtain some extension of her rights—in particular recognition of the right of her people to lease Manchurian land—and her civilizing efforts resulted in enormously increasing the prosperity and population of the country.

Repudiation of Treaties.

Then came the intense campaign by which all nations have suffered in China for the repudiation of the so-called "unequal" treaties; and this means the repudiation of Japanese treaties which had secured peace and order in Manchuria.

Outrage succeeded outrage and our Korean fellow-subjects, for whose interests we feel especially responsible, were again and again attacked and were beginning to retaliate.

Such a situation could not last. Japan relied and relies on peaceful means for its settlement. Only her troops were not in the railway zone as ornaments. When the Chinese attacked the line they could not but perform the duty for which they were there: namely, to repel the attack and to prevent its repetition.

As soon as Manchuria is safe they will be withdrawn to the railway zone and the situation will again become normal. A Sino-Japanese commission (as was at first almost agreed upon) could have arranged this, but China preferred to decline all negotiations and to invoke the distant league—and so the matter for the present rests.

Fled Upon Troops' Approach.

Accusations are reported to have been made in China that Japan is establishing "puppet governments" to subserve her own interests in Manchuria. The fact is that the former Chinese officials fled upon the approach of our forces and left the unfortunate country largely destitute of constituted authorities.

Some substitute had to be improvised and this was spontaneously done by the local population, of course with the countenance of our troops. If these popular attempts at self-determination should eventually prove inconsistent with arbitrary rule in the region of Manchuria the fact might afford a speedy solution of present difficulties, but Japan regards it as entirely a matter for the Manchurian people themselves and is affording no encouragement or stimulus to such a development.

Did Japan wish to create a subservient government in Manchuria, the organization of these sporadic committees of public safety would be the least hopeful way to set about it. The recognition of one united and powerful group of rulers of Manchuria would be the only practical course.

Needles to say, she contemplates no such tortuous policy. But she can not be blamed for keeping on foot some rudimentary civil organization. The proposition that the Japanese are instigating banditry scarcely needs refutation.

Tanks Will Display Efficiency in Battle

(Associated Press.)

Modern armored cars and tanks are to get a chance to step out and show the War Department what they can do in large scale battle practice.

Whole platoons of the fast-moving fighting machines developed by the Ordnance Department in recent years yesterday were ordered organized, equipped and concentrated at Fort Benning, Ga., and Camp Knox, Ky., for experimental operations. As many of the tanks are being reengined and otherwise improved, the tests are not expected to be started before next spring.

Three platoons, comprising 19 tanks, are to be organized from Company F of the Second Tank Regiment, at the Fort Benning Infantry School. One platoon will consist of war-time six-ton tanks, their speed greatly increased by installation of new design and air-cooled engines of the latest type. Another will comprise convertible tanks, which travel either on wheels or on a tractor belt. The third will be made up of the newest experimental tanks, including a 23-ton monster.

Constance Bennett Wed To Marquis de la Falaise

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 22 (U.P.).—The Marquis Henri de la Falaise, French nobleman, began his second matrimonial adventure with a motion-picture actress late today when he married the blonde Constance Bennett.

Deserted by Gloria Swanson a year ago, he married Miss Bennett in the Beverly Hills home of George Fitzmaurice. Miss Bennett is said to be the highest paid star in filmland.

The wedding was private and only a few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony. Scores of reporters and photographers who were massed about the house were refused admittance.

Joan Bennett, actress, sister of the bride, and Eileen Percy, film writer, attended Miss Bennett, while Henri Didot, local French consul, was best man. Richard Bennett, father of the bride; Barbara Bennett Downey, Gene Markey, Mr. and Mrs. Fitzmaurice, Marion Davies and W. R. Hearst also were present.

The nuptials were read by Judge Lewis R. Works, presiding judge of the Second District Court of Appeals.

Miss Bennett wore an Alice blue lace afternoon dress with cape and hat to match, and a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Although the couple did not invite many friends to the ceremony, a reception tonight gave scores of motion picture notables an opportunity to congratulate the newlyweds.

Because Miss Bennett is working on a new picture, no honeymoon trip will be planned until she has completed the film, some time next month.

COURT RULING URGED ON SIGNING OF BILLS

(Associated Press.)

The Government wants the Supreme Court to end a chore that has plagued Presidents for more than a century.

At every adjournment of Congress, the Chief Executive's desk is flooded with the last-hour output of tired and harassed legislators. Since the Government began, Presidents have sat up most of the night before Congress ended, studying and signing a multitude of bills.

The difficulty arises through a provision of the Constitution giving the President ten days to return to Congress a bill he does not approve. If he does not do so when Congress is in session, it becomes a law automatically. If Congress adjourns before the ten-day period expires, the measure dies through a pocket veto.

400 in Four Days.

Within recent years this task has become nearly a physical impossibility. In the final 24 hours of its life, the Seventy-first Congress handed President Hoover 184 bills. More than 400 were dumped on his desk in the last four days.

Seeking relief, President Hoover asked Attorney General Mitchell whether it was necessary for him to follow the almost unbroken precedent of constitutional history and sign bills he favored before Congress adjourned.

Mitchell ruled it was not, but advised the President the question was controversial and suggested signing all important measures before the last gavel fell to avoid possible conflicts.

Mr. Hoover followed this advice. He paid the customary visit to the Capitol March 4, and cleared his desk of all but eighteen bills. He signed seventeen of these March 5 and the last one March 6.

Case Involving Two Laws.

Cases involving two of these 18 laws since have come before the court of claims. Mitchell grasped the opportunity presented and raised the constitutional issue. He asked also that the question, first raised in the administration of John Quincy Adams, be certified to the supreme court for a ruling.

The supreme court has decided a bill signed 10 days after Congress has taken a recess is valid. But it expressly left open the question when Congress is making a final adjournment.

In 1920 Attorney General Mitchell Palmer advised President Wilson he could sign bills within 10 days after the adjournment of a session and Wilson did so. The most important measure so approved was the Federal water power act.

The Justice Department contends Palmer's ruling was correct and says the only question left is whether there is any distinction between the end of a session and the final expiration of a congress.

Albemarle Man Dies After Rail Accident

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 22.—Preston J. Butler, of Esmont, in southern Albemarle, railway foreman, died last night at University Hospital from injuries received when he was thrown from a railway motor car. He suffered a compound fracture of the femur and amputation of the leg followed.

Mr. Butler, a native of Albemarle County, was 60 years old. He married Miss Carrie Edwards, of Howardsville, who survives, with four sons and three daughters. The funeral was held this afternoon at Mount Zion Church(at Esmont. Burial services were in charge of Albemarle Lodge, No. 277, A. F. and A. M. Interment was in the cemeterw adjacent to the church.

40 BELOW IN WEST AS EAST STAYS HOT

Winter Weather Moves Into Central States; Fifth Victim Dies in Cold.

Kansas City, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—King Winter laid a ruthless hand on the Rocky Mountain area today, marshaling his forces for an eastern march, while New England gloried in near summer temperatures comparable to those in the southland.

The full force of a swirling, blinding blizzard gathered momentum in Montana, where an unofficial thermometer reading of 40 degrees below zero was reported near Helena.

In southern California smudge pots were fired by orchardists for the first time this season. Strong winds swept the West Coast, and clear cold weather prevailed to the north.

Pushing a blanket of fog and rain ahead, the cold wave advanced during the day into Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Nebraska, the Dakotas and east toward Chicago.

New York viewed the reports of cold with apprehension, looked at thermometers that registered 70.4 degrees, the highest mark recorded on any November 22, and entertained mingled feelings of disbelief.

Temperatures at points in Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico and northern Arizona ranged from a few degrees above to below zero. A heavy snowfall, continuing since early Saturday in the San Juan basin of Colorado, blockaded mountain passes and interrupted all travel in the southwestern part of the State.

Western Kansas reported snow and near-zero temperatures. It was six degrees at Goodland. Snow fell in Nebraska and South Dakota. The fifth known victim of the cold was thur fnow is the time for all ngfood reported in North Dakota, where Arthur Revinius, 23, was found frozen to death on a highway.

The abnormal warmth in the East was reflected at Lake Placid, N. Y., where an unofficial thermometer reading of 65 degrees was believed to set a record.

Maine enjoyed summer weather. Motorists thronged the highways. Temperatures were in the seventies. Boston also reported high marks of 70 degrees, a record for Thanksgiving week.

The United States Weather Bureau at Richmond reported a high temperature of 78 and a minimum of 52 during the 24 hours.

The forecast was for overcast skies and possible showers today, but Weather Bureau officials said the warm spell would not be broken before Wednesday at the earliest. They said that the cold wave which has swept the Rocky Mountain States was moving slowly eastward and that its force would be almost spent when it reached the Atlantic seaboard.

Prisoner Transferred For Hearing on Assault

Special to The Washington Post.

Easton, Md., Nov. 22.—William M. Randall, colored, charged with criminally assaulting Florence Dashiell, white, of Gransonville, Queen Annes County, was brought to the Easton Jail under the cover of darkness last night, handcuffed to Sheriff A. Raymond Carroll. His arrival was not observed.

The grand jury of Queen Annes County found a true bill against Randell, who is alleged to have committed the crime on June 21. People of Grasonville became incensed over the affair, and Randall was taken to Baltimore for safe keeping. The prisoner asked for a change of venue and the case was transferred to Talbot County. His trial is scheduled to start tomorrow morning.

7 MEN, AND HORSES DIE IN TRAIN WRECK

winner of the royal championship for three-gaited horses, was hurt. Lark, of the Piers Stable, was killed.

The injured horses were taken to Lexington.

Of the dead horses, six were identified as owned by Miss Hilda McCormick, Chicago, and one as that of Harry Gorham, Morris, Ill. Other owners whose beloved show animals were on the train included Bridgeford & Radford, Joy, Ill.; Emil Philip Schandein, Milwaukee; R. C. Flanery, Kansas, Ill.; H. G. Eshelman, Sedgwick, Kans.; G. A. Nichols, Oklahoma City; Mary Belle Llewellyn, River Forest, Ill., and Anacacho Ranch, Spofford, Tex.

Virtually all the horses were to be shown this week in the International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago.

Traveled at High Speed.

Arthur Edwards, Lexington, Missouri-Pacific freight agent, said the train passed him at 60 miles an hour a few miles before it left the track. Edwards and his wife were motoring home from Kansas City on a highway which parallels the railroad right of way.

The train sped on over a roadbed constructed above filled in ground on the bank of the muddy Missouri River. Nearing Peterson's point, a sharp bend in the river, the engine, after a shrill blast from its whistle, started around the curve. A rail apparently spread. Observers said the roadbed appeared to have been loosened by heavy rains. The cars toppled.

C. M. Billows, the engineer, of Jefferson City, Mo., set the airbrakes and the first cars jarred into each other and fell, some upside down, others on the side, some crosswise of the track. Persons in the rear cars were thrown down and momentarily stunned. Then they leaped from the cars and rushed forward.

Motorists Aid Trainmen.

Motorists on the highway stopped and aided in caring for the injured. Calls for ambulances were made from farmhouse telephones. Lexington doctors hurried to the scene, the grim search, with the adversity of the elements a distinct handicap, went on.

Workers, battling the slime, were forced to break jammed car doors before they could reach frantic horses kicking and screaming in the same cars with injured men.

RANKIN, SECRETARY TO BROOKHART, DIES

Served 20 Years in Capital for Four Members of Iowa Group.

Roy H. Rankin, for many years secretary to Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, died yesterday in Emergency Hospital following a lengthy illness. He was 50 years old.

A native of Fort Madison, Ia., Mr. Rankin had been a resident of Washington for more than 20 years. Since coming here he had served continuously as secretary to members of the Iowa congressional delegation. For six years he served under former Representative C. A. Kennedy and later went with Senator William S. Kenyon. He became secretary to Senator Brookhart in 1922 when Senator Kenyon was appointed to a Federal judgeship.

In 1926, when Senator Brookhart lost his seat in the Senate, Mr. Rankin received an appointment as secretary to Representative William F. Kopp. He served with him until Senator Brookhart was reelected in 1927.

"Mr. Rankin was an exceptional man," Representative Kopp said last night. "He was a prominent figure in the politics of Iowa and will be mourned by a great many friends."

Surviving Mr. Rankin are his wife, a stepdaughter and a daughter, Miss Alice Rankin. He lived at 3501 Davis street northwest.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

MRS. O. B. PIERPOINT DEAD.

Funeral Services To Be Held Tomorrow For Alexandria Resident.

Mrs. Marie Elizabeth Pierpoint, wife of Oscar B. Pierpoint, died suddenly Saturday in her home at 114 North Columbus street, Alexandria. The funeral will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home, conducted by the Rev. Ernest Aaron, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and the Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, a former pastor. Services also will be held by the W. C. T. U., of which she was a member. Besides her husband she is survived by one daughter, Miss Nellie Pierpoint, of Atlanta, Ga., and a brother, John H. Johnson, of Fairfax.

RITES FOR C. M. BRYANT.

Native of Pennsylvania Worked in Pension Bureau 54 Years.

Funeral service for Charles Morton Bryant, who died suddenly yesterday at his home, 2708 Cathedral avenue, will be tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at his late residence. Interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Bryant was born in Erie County, Pa., 86 years ago and had been a resident of this city the last 61 years. He was employed by the Pension Bureau 54 years and was retired seven years ago. He was a member of the Sons of the American Revolution.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Amanda Camp Bryant, and a daughter, Mrs. Harry C. Grove.

GILPIN SERVICES TODAY.

Long-Time Resident of Capital to Be Buried in Virginia.

Funeral service for Mrs. Elizabeth J. Gilpin, who died after a brief illness at her home, 14 Concord avenue northeast, will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence. Interment will be at Berkeley Springs, Va.

Mrs. Gilpin was born in Rockville, Md., 83 years ago and was a resident of this city for the last twenty years.

She is survived by her son, Henry D. Gilpin, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and two daughters, Miss Elizabeth Gilpin and Mrs. A. D. Oyster, both of this city.

Set Solves Problem Of Wireless Traffic

(Associated Press.)

A remote receiving set built of salvage materials across the Potomac River at Battery Cove has solved the Army's wireless traffic problem here.

The chief signal officer reported to Secretary Hurley yesterday that until it was built messages piled up in the Washington communications office because of intense interference. Since construction of the Virginia set, he said, all messages have been moved with dispatch. It cost but $875.

PARTIES COOPERATE ON HIGHER TAX PLAN

Leaders on Both Sides Seek Way to Hasten Legislation on Deficit.

(Associated Press.)

A tone of moderation has brought congressional leaders of both parties into close accord on the impending tax increase legislation.

On Capitol Hill, attention is largely focused on the income rates and sales levies applying to so-called luxuries as means of raising new revenue.

Higher income rates and a broad base of new sales taxes will be recommended by Secretary Mellon. Democrats are waiting for this program, but their first inclination is to oppose going as far as would the administration in boosting the income tax.

Robinson and Smoot Differ.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic floor leader, gave one of the first hints of the party program Saturday, when he opposed any policy of levying taxes on the principle of redistributing wealth by striking only big incomes. He proposed that the bulk of the prospective billion and a half dollar deficit be met by floating Government bonds to tide the Treasury over the deficit period. He viewed favorably moderate income tax raises and establishment of excise taxes on luxuries.

Robinson favored a more moderate program than proposed by Chairman Smoot, of the Senate finance committee, the administration's spokesman on revenue affairs. Smoot has suggested raising $1,200,000,000 by new taxes and urged doubling of the maximum surtax rate of 20 per cent applying on incomes over $100,000.

With Smoot and Robinson not so very far apart in their views, the impression is growing that the prediction of Representative Garner, of Texas, the Democratic leader, of a nonpartisan tax measure may be realized.

Watson Urges Cooperation.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, has urged cooperation to avoid uncertainty by enacting speedily the tax measure.

No definite move will be made on the tax question until Secretary Mellon has reported and made his recommendation which, it is expected, President Hoover will transmit to Congress. Democratic control of the House will place up to them the task of originating the new revenue bill.

Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, a Democratic member of the finance committee, in a statement yesterday asserted that "the United States can not bring back prosperity by merely increasing income taxes."

Baltimorean Dies As Car Overturns

Sedan Leaves Road Near Centerville, Va., Pinning Driver Beneath.

Edward Trockenbrot, 65 years old, of 807 President street, Baltimore, Md., was killed yesterday morning when a large sedan he was driving turned over on the Lee highway, near Centerville, Va. He was a commission merchant.

Mr. Trockenbrot, according to information received here yesterday afternoon, was attempting to pass another automobile when his own machine skidded and overturned. The driver was pinned beneath his machine, suffering injuries that caused his death within a few minutes.

At the time of the accident Mr. Trockenbrot was driving away from Baltimore toward the mountains of Virginia. Efforts were being made to reach relatives late yesterday. Dr. C. A. Ranson, Fairfax County coroner, gave a verdict of accidental death.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 114

The place of worship had been dedicated only a short time before and the congregation numbered among its members President Benjamin Harrison and several of his Cabinet.

One can imagine the national scope of such a collapse had a large group of officials been attending services when it occurred. By mutual arrangement the architect, contractor and the church shared equally in restoring the building.

COTTON IMPOUNDING PLAN IS ANNOUNCED

Farm Board Says 6,600,000 Bales Will Be Locked Up for Year to Avert Glut.

(Associated Press.)

An agreement to lock up 6,600,000 bales of cotton for one year until the crush of the enormous current crop has spent its force was announced yesterday by the Farm Board.

Word was received from Nathan Adams, of Dallas, Tex., that Southern bankers have arranged to make or renew loans to farmers for holding 3,100,000 bales—400,000 short of the original goal.

The board and the American Cotton Cooperative Association, for their part, have agreed to hold their stores of about 3,500,000 bales until July 31, 1932, the beginning of the new crop year.

This pledge, however, would not be binding if the price should reach 12½ cents a pound during the interim.

Baruch Urges Control Plan.

The bankers, board officials and representatives of the cooperative association drafted the plan in New Orleans October 12 as an emergency move to increase prices by preventing gluts on an already congested market. A slight rise in prices resulted from the announcement.

The bankers sought financing for 3,500,000 bales, but encountered difficulty in obtaining full support.

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Uniform cotton acreage reduction by the Southern States through "community control" was urged today by Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier, as an emergency expedient to bring relief from low cotton prices.

Held Not Federal Problem.

Baruch, who held a short conference with President Hoover yesterday in Washington en route to Columbia, asserted the cotton situation is not "a problem for the Federal Government to solve."

"The South brought its present condition upon itself," he said. "It must find a way out. Self-help is the only remedy. If the producers do not agree through State action to reduce production, bankruptcy a year or so hence will force them automatically to quit cotton planting. Why should they not voluntarily cooperate to aid in bringing a balance between production and consumption and avoid disaster that otherwise is certain."

Plumber's Plight Proves Habit Not Easily Shaken

By JOHN J. DALY

WHILE the wedding bells were ringing, a Los Angeles plumber, standing with his bride before the altar, remembered that he had forgotten the ring and, true to his training, went back to get it.

As the absent-minded bridegroom left the scene of his wedding, meandering along the way, killing time, he shook off all thoughts of the moment, with their portentous responsibilities, and became a business man. So, he naturally drifted toward his shop. All dressed up, he knew that this was no time to go a-plumbing. Instead, he sat himself down at his desk and made out a bill which was later dispatched to the bride's father.

After the honeymoon the irate father-in-law acquainted his daughter with the manner of man she had married. It looked for a while as if the affair would end in the divorce courts until a learned psychiatrist was called in on the case. He explained this phase of character and all was forgiven.

* * * *

THE plumber, with a penchant for going back over his tracks, is no different from any other man. It seems, according to the opinion rendered, that certain callings and professions, vocations and avocations, all carry with them and develop traits which are not easily shaken off—even in times of stress. It is all a matter of psychology, of habit.

The floor walker does not necessarily make a good husband and father, walking the floor with the baby, but get him inside a church and immediately he starts showing people to their pews.

A United States senator, wherever he is—no matter what the occasion—is liable at any moment to burst forth in oratory.

Applaud an actor and he'll make a bow.

Give a Napoleon an army and he'll start a war.

The dual forces in man are aptly illustrated in the case of the bridegroom-plumber.

* * * *

IT was no different from the case of the surgeon who, having operated on a patient for appendicitis, forgot one of his instruments and had to reopen the wound. Upon leaving the hospital, the doctor discovered he had forgotten his hat. So he rushed back into the sick room, looking for the headgear. At sight of the physician searching for his hat the patient suffered a relapse.

These are the little things that make life interesting, so that Don Quixote could exclaim, "Every man is as heaven made him, and sometimes a great deal worse."

Let them say what they will, the plumber was true to himself, and to his calling.

He might have forgotten the ring, but he did not forget the bill.

PARLEY ON RAILWAY SALARY SLASH FAILS

would terminate at the expiration of twelve months unless continued by agreement for a longer period.

The conferences with the labor representatives, Mr. Willard said in his letter to Mr. Robinson, developed nothing, "nor is anything suggested in your letter, which would seem now to make unnecessary the course which the railway executives had decided upon before this conference was called."

Decide to Convene.

Mr. Robertson's letter to Mr. Willard said "The organizations affiliated with the railway labor executives' association have decided to convene respectively their general chairmen for the purpose of submitting this entire matter to the consideration of these immediate representatives of the employes on the various railroad systems for their appropriate action in conformity with the laws of the respective organizations."

This was taken to indicate that the employes in individual railroads would be permitted to take any action in the matter they deemed acceptable.

Views of Presidents.

In another communication to Mr. Robertson, also made public today, Mr. Willard outlined the views of the presidents on the program the labor executives proposed earlier in the week.

He informed Mr. Robertson that the presidents were "unable to accept your conclusion that the six-hour day is necessary and that it must be instituted in order to absorb the existing number of experienced employes without reduction of compensation."

He said the presidents doubted the "wisdom of recommending to the Federal Congress the appropriation of $1,000,000,000" for grade crossing elimination on main-traveled highways.

Mr. Willard said the presidents, however, would "favor a full and complete study of the subject and we believe that a common basis might be developed upon which we could jointly seek to obtain action beneficial to all concerned."

Besides Mr. Willard, the letter was signed by L. W. Baldwin, C. E. Denney, L. A. Downs, J. E. Gorman, A. C. Needles, J. J. Pelley, H. D. Pollard and C. A. Wickersham.

B.& O. Group Considers Voluntary Wage Slash

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 22.—A general committee of Baltimore & Ohio shopcrafts, telegraphers, dispatchers, clerks and other employes, aside from trainmen, has taken under advisement a request by the company that a wage cut of 10 per cent be accepted voluntarily. Meetings between company officials and the employes have just been concluded in Baltimore.

If the employes refuse to accept a voluntary reduction of 10 per cent, the matter will go to the Federal Board of Mediation at Washington for decision. This would entail a delay of several months, whereas a voluntary acceptance would put the cuts into effect immediately for a period of one year.

GUN BATTLE MARKS $200,000 GEM THEFT

Lake Forest, Ill., Nov. 22 (U.P.).—A $200,000 jewel robbery turned this millionaire lake shore colony north of Chicago into a bandit battle ground today after ten robbers had invaded a party in the mansion of William Hamilton Mitchell, financier.

When the shooting was over, police had recovered all of the jewelry with the exception of one brooch and a watch, and had arrested three of the bandits, Paul Ross, Joseph Perello and Nick Maentis, Chicago gangsters. Capture of the other seven was expected shortly.

Nine of the city's most prominent social leaders were playing backgammon late last night when the bandits drove up in two automobiles bearing fake police stars, overpowered a watchman, broke into the house and forced the Mitchells and their guests to hand over their jewelry.

Mr. Mitchell and his wife, Mrs. E A. Cudahy, jr., Leslie Wheeler and his wife, Mrs. De Koven Phelps, William McCormick Blair and his wife, and Ralph Hines knelt on the floor at pistol points. They stripped themselves of diamond bracelets, pearl necklaces, rings, watches and cash, valued by them at approximately $200,000.

While the bandits thus were engaged in one of the most spectacular robberies ever enacted in the metropolitan area, William Matheson, chauffeur for the Mitchells, was creeping silently up the backstairs to telephone police.

They arrived just as the robbers were driving away. There ensued a gun battle in a driving rain before the eyes of Mitchell's guests. The bandits escaped momentarily, some in one of the automobiles, the rest on foot through the wooded estates of Lake Forest.

Police immediately placed guards at all electric line and railroad stations, stopping every one who attempted to leave Lake Forest. Ross and Perello were captured trying to board a train for Chicago. Other guards patrolled the roads, questioning all motorists whether they were North Shore millionaires in evening dress and limousines or Northwestern University students in collegiate flivvers.

Several hundred persons were stopped before officers found Maentis in Highland Park, his clothes drenched and covered with burrs. Other officers meanwhile had searched the grounds surrounding the Mitchell home, finding on a barb-wire fence an overcoat, in the pockets of which were nearly all the jewels and most of the cash.

The coat fitted Ross perfectly. Mitchell's guests identified him as the bandit leader. They said he was the only one of the invaders who did not wear a mask.

Auto Kills Leonardtown Woman; Driver Is Held

Lillian Bevans, 35 years old, of Leonardtown, Md., was fatally injured when struck by an auto driven by Joseph H. Barnes, of Mitchellville, yesterday afternoon as she walked along the road about a quarter of a mile from Leonardtown. Barnes was arrested and held on an open charge pending a hearing in connection with the death and was charged with driving without a license.

According to State police, Barnes figured in an accident about a month ago. Barnes' driving license was revoked, it was reported.

2 SLAIN AND THROWN FROM NEW YORK CAR

Murders Laid to Brawl or Gang Vengeance; Another Stabbed to Death.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Two young men with long police records were shot to death and thrown from an automobile early today in a deserted section of the Bronx. A policeman found their bodies in front of a metal factory on East 134th street.

Fingerprints identified them as Michael J. Ahearn, 26, a "bouncer" in a Lexington avenue dance hall, where he worked as usual last night, and John Lynch, also 26, reported to have been a member of a beer-running gang.

Lynch's body, a bullet hole behind one ear, was propped up against a high board fence surrounding the factory. In his pock was a pistol from which two bullets had been fired. Ahearn's body lay sprawled where it was thrown. He had been shot in the back and under the right eye. There were tire marks near the bodies.

Police theories were that the men were killed in a speakeasy brawl or they were victims of gangland vengeance and had been "taken for a ride."

At Lenox avenue and 119th street police found William Graham, 30, unconscious on the sidewalk suffering from stab wounds. He died three hours later without regaining consciousness.

In Brooklyn, Patrolman Alexander Fraser, off duy and in civilian clothes, shot and wounded two of four men he saw coming out of a building he said they were robbing. He captured a third also.

GLASS HYPOCRITICAL, SAYS BISHOP CANNON

Virginia Senator's Statement in Broker Case Also Held Cowardly Act.

(Associated Press.)

Bishop James Cannon, jr., yesterday charged Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, with "being hypocritical" to avoid a libel suit in statements involving Miss Ellamarye Fallor, former assistant Federal district attorney of New York City.

In a formal statement, the Southern Methodist Churchman cited remarks by Senator Glass in requesting a Justice Department inquiry into the trial of Harry L. Goldhurst, convicted broker. He replied to a later statement by Senator Glass in which the senator emphasized he did not refer to Miss Fallor. She has joined in asking the inquiry. Bishop Cannon quoted Senator Glass as saying last Thursday "it is utterly inexcusable that the name of this young woman was thrust into unpleasant publicity," and added:

"On October 12 last Senator Glass gave to the press correspondence between himself and Attorney General Mitchell in which he stated that his action 'was not prompted by idle curiosity but by a desire to ascertain whether the pursuit of justice had been arrested by sanction of public officials to save from serious embarrassment a certain ecclesiastical politician.' Why did not the senator frankly admit that it was vindictive enmity against Bishop Cannon which prompted his action?

"It is only necessary to read what Senator Glass gave to the press on October 12 concerning Miss Fallor to see how cowardly and hypocritical is his present statement. * * *"

Bishop Cannon then quoted Senator Glass' October 12 statement as saying prosecution of Goldhurst, who was the bishop's broker in stock market dealings, was given to "a former female student of Bishop Cannon" and not taken from this "former student" until a New York citizen protested.

The bishop quoted Senator Glass further as saying "The letter of this New York citizen bluntly charged that an assistant district attorney in Mr. Tuttle's office (District Attorney Tuttle of New York) had been the recipient of enumerated costly gifts as an inducement to pigeon-hole the indictments.'"

Bishop Cannon charged the reason for giving the statement to the press was to create the impression his former student "had deliberately conspired to delay the trial" and "defeat the ends of justice. * * *"

"As a matter of fact, he did intend to produce the impression that 'Bishop Cannon's former student and protege' had done these things, and Miss Fallor has a clear case for a libel suit against Senator Glass and she knows it," the bishop said.

"His declaration that it is 'utterly inexcusable that the name of this young woman was thrust into unpleasant publicity' is an effort on his part to dodge out of a possible libel suit in a cowardly fashion. * * *

"This is simply an example of the recklessness of Senator Glass' method of insinuation and innuendo and of his cowardly method of retreat when called upon to face the facts in the case."

Man, 71, Bares Murder He Witnessed as Child

Pana, Ill., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The story of a murder he witnessed when he was 7 years old and kept secret for 64 years, was related today by George A. Pifer, 71-year-old Pana resident.

Pifer said he kept his secret for fear of being slain. He related he saw three men, now dead, shoot and kill Elijah Russell, a farmer, rob him of a large sum of money he had drawn from a bank at Shelbyville, and bury the body in a shallow grave near Shelbyville. Russell's bones were found in the grave and identified by means of a watch and ring.

M'FADDEN REVEALS QUIZ ON TAX FRAUDS

bankers to some of whom I have been paying my respects more or less of late.

"And now I find that some of these same bankers, partnerships, companies and corporations putting together these mergers and supervising the issuance of these securities, had the aid and assistance, to a large extent, of some of the leading public accountants.

"Not only did they prove of great service and value to the promotion of institutions that had for their main purpose the fleecing of the public, but they have carried the matter to the extreme and have fraudulently framed the annual income statements of these clients covering several years back in such a manner as to avoid paying a proper legal tax to the United States Government.

Millions Are Involved.

"They apparently were not satisfied with the profits that they made from the exploitation of the investing public, but they must also fraudulently withhold from the Government its just share of the taxation which these companies legally owed to the United States under the taxing laws.

"When the full information is made known and the Treasury Department has had opportunity thoroughly to examine the extent of these frauds the country will, I believe, be astounded. The Bureau of Internal Revenue has, I am very happy to say, evidenced its keen interest and is cooperating in locating these frauds perpetuated by the individuals and companies I am referring to, and I trust that no pressure will be brought to bear in an attempt to stop the ferreting out of all of these evasions and the people who are responsible for them.

"The prosecution of these cases to the limit will secure the payment to the United States Treasury of, I believe, hundreds of millions of dollars of taxes which have been withheld illegally through the collusion of these large taxpayers with the aid and assistance of these certified public accountant firms.

"Certainly the Congress of the United States and the honest taxpayers are interested in seeing to it that every effort is brought to bear to complete these investigations and secure for the United States justice and honesty in the collection and payment of properly authorized taxes."

Garner Observes Birthday As Texans Grin Knowingly

(Associated Press.)

Representative John Nance Garner, of Texas, white-haired, straight-talking Democratic leader and probable Speaker of the House, yesterday observed his sixty-second birthday anniversary.

As Mrs. Garner, his companion and secretary, related it, the Texan spent the day thusly:

"He went to the office as usual, at 8 o'clock; read the morning papers, looed over his mail, saw some friends, came home about a quarter to 3, sat here and talked with me a while, and now he is downstairs smoking a cigar."

Mrs. Garner said her husband "did not know it was his birthday until I told him this morning at breakfast." She said she offered him usual congratulations and wishes for many years to come.

Texans Grin Knowingly.

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The folks down here in Texas who sent John N. Garner to Washington 29 years ago grinned with a sort of "I told you so" satisfaction today as the man they expect to be the next Speaker of the House of Representatives celebrated in the Nation's Capital his sixty-second birthday.

For Mr. Garner's neighbors in Uvalde recalled their representative's own version of his introduction to Democratic party leaders soon after the turn of the century.

"The autocratic party leaders," Mr. Garner said, "thought I was just another cow thief from Texas. They enrolled me on committees with minor assignments."

But the story ends with a bit of pathos.

"When I kicked they put me on the foreign affairs committee and, being the last Democrat, I was forced to sit beside the last Republican, Nick Longworth. That was how we struck our friendship.

Holds Friendship Peculiar.

Even as the last Congress came to its end, Mr. Garner chided his friend "Nick" about the Democrats organizing this winter's session. Mr. Longworth's death soon afterward was only one of several deaths of Republican representatives that made possible Mr. Garner's succession to his closest friend's office in Congress.

Out in the mesquite thickets around Uvalde, where Mr. Garner comes between congressional sessions to ride horseback on his ranch, hunt and look after his cattle, the folks like "Chaparral Jack" so well they seldom ask him to make flowery talks at graduation exercises. They listen to Garner campaign speeches made by some one else and then elect him anyway.

They like the way he attends to business. They liked the way he made himself a close friend and confidant of President Wilson and took an important part in shaping legislation during the World War period.

Only Bill Was Vetoed.

They might have been a bit surprised at his activity, however, for in all the time Mr. Garner represented them in the Texas legislature, he introduced but one bill. That single measure, vetoed by Gov. Sayers, but still advocated by its sponsor, proposed dividing Texas into five States.

The South, Garner argues, should have more political power. A split-up of Texas would increase the Southern representation in the Senate by eight members and add eight electoral votes to the 20 Texas now has. That, Mr. Garner says, is only right for a territory equal to 220 States the size of Rhode Island.

The robust, hearty-looking representative is beloved throughout his district because his friends know he has worked hard to overcome poverty, boyhood ill-health and lack of educational advantages. They thank a slight attack of tuberculosis, while Mr. Garner was still in his 'teens, for bringing him to Uvalde. He sought higher altitudes and a drier climate than could be found near his birthplace at Blossom Prairie in Red River County.

Punched Cattle on Range.

He rode the range punching cattle by day. At night he studied law in the office of a friend at Clarksville. Hunting and fishing also contributed to his recovery and made of him an ardent sportsman. The sports still lure him to Mexico on one or two trips each summer.

Four years after Mr. Garner's admission to the bar, when 20 years old, he was elected Uvalde County judge. After two terms he went to the Texas Legislature for two sessions. He was only 34 when elected for the first of 15 consecutive congressional sessions, to represent 32 counties, covering an area as large as the State of New York.

His wife, the former Miss Ettie Rheiner, whom he married in Uvalde November 25, 1895—three days after his 26th birthday—has served as his secretary ever since. She attends to virtually all of his correspondence, greets callers at his office, and, like her husband, cares little for social life.

She is an early riser, whether at home or in Washington—so early, in fact, that Garner once said she "usually has half a day's work done before most people get up."

Arlington Zoning Appeals.

The Board of Zoning Appeals of Arlington County will meet tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the courthouse to consider the appeals filed by Nathan Scanlan and Max Levitoy.

Leader in Cabinets Of France Is Dead

Loucheur, Rich Owner of Paris Paper, Served in Many Posts.

Paris, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Louis Loucheur, former cabinet minister, in a succession of French governments and once reputed to be the wealthiest man in France, died today after a brief illness. He was 59.

He was minister of munitions during the war and was a member of the French delegation to the Versailles peace conference in 1919. Later he was successively minister of devastated regions, minister of commerce, minister of finance and minister of national economy. He represented France at Geneva several times.

M. Loucheur engaged in a number of central European and Balkan projects in prewar days and was supposed to have amassed a fortune. He owned the Parisian Daily Petit Journal and several other newspapers in his native department of Nord.

Proposed Hunger March Attacked

Planned Drive Here Dec. 7 Laid to Communists by National Group.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The National Civic Federation, in an open letter to members of Congress, asserted today that the proposed "hunger march" on Washington, set for December 7, is a Communist attack upon the Government and upon the President's Nation-wide emergency unemployment relief organization.

The communication says the call for the march embodies revolutionary propaganda and that the "unemployed councils committee" is a "Red" organization fostered by radicals who seek the overthrow of American institutions.

The National Civic Federation calls upon the public to "observe the march and its aftermath" and form its own conclusions as to the "impossible demands" the marchers will make, for the purpose, of "fostering class hatred."

Grandi, 'Penniless,' Attends High Mass in Baltimore

Baltimore, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy didn't have a cent in his pocket when the collection basket suddenly appeared before him in church this morning. Anxiously he leaned toward Commendatore Leonardo Vitetti and borrowed from him money to put in the basket for himself and Signora Grandi. He had to borrow again for the second collection.

The Grandis and Vitetti, guests of Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. John W. Garrett over Sunday, attended high mass at the church of SS. Philip and James. Their coming was announced only five minutes earlier to Father Thomas J. Lee, who celebrated mass. From the pulpit he asked the congregation to remain in their pews after the service until the Grandis left.

Grandi's presence soon was known to all, before Father Lee announced it, because the minister, accustomed to the churches of Italy, many of which have neither pews nor chairs, remained standing when the congregation was seated. Signora Grandi quickly noticed the difference in custom and kept her eyes on a young woman in the same front pew, rising, sitting and kneeling as did her neighbor. Grandi fell into line with American church practice only when mass was nearly half over.

At the Garrett home there was a continuation of last night's program of doing nothing. Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, who came from Washington for dinner last night, remained until this morning and then returned home. Conversation was general and Grandi said there was "no business; that is over."

The Italian Ambassador and Signora de Martino came from Washington for lunch today, leaving early in the afternoon. Tonight there were only five at table, the Grandis, the Garretts and Vitetti. Morning, afternoon and evening hours were spent walking in the garden or talking in the library.

Tomorrow at 9 a. m., the Grandis leave in a special car for New York for five days of swift activity.

Hiccoughs Attack Believed Near End

Operation Performed On Man After 15-Day Siege; Condition Better.

Mansfield, Ohio, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Ira A. King's two-week hiccough marathon appeared to be reaching an end tonight.

Physicians this morning performed an operation upon the Mansfield garage owner in an effort to strike at the root of the trouble, which has laid serious siege on King's life for the past fifteen days.

Dr. R. R. Black, King's physician, reported that the patient's "operation condition is good," but refused to go so far as to say flatly that the operation had been a success. It is yet too early to obtain definite results, he declared. At the hospital, where King lies in a room "papered" with thousands of remedies from well-wishers, his condition was reported good and the hiccoughs relieved to a degree.

INDEPENDENTS CALL PARLEY WEDNESDAY

(Associated Press.)

Aggressive independents plan to force a powerful wedge into the House control regardless of which party organizes that branch in the coming Congress.

A preliminary meeting of independents in both parties yesterday was called for Wednesday. The invitation was directed particularly at Democratic independents and came as leaders jockeyed for position in the quest for House control. The insurgents have not figured so strongly since the Republicans lost the majority.

Representative LaGuardia, Republican independent, New York, and Representative Kvale, of Minnesota, lone Farmer-Laborite, served notice in issuing the call that although the Democrats "have a majority at this time sufficient to elect a Speaker * * * neither party will have a working majority without the cooperation of the progressives."

The meeting, a joint statement said, was for arranging "preparatory work for a conference when all progressives have arrived for this season."

The statement indicated clearly that Kvale, who has made no announcement with which party he would align himself in organization, had decided to continue in an independent role. Both he and LaGuardia said they would "reserve the right to support and urge such legislation as they deem proper and to the best interests of the country."

"The Progressives feel that the rules of the House, which would permit the House to retain control of legislation and remove boss control, is of greater importance to the people than the personal ambition of any individual for special committee assignments," they added. "The Progressive group therefore welcomes the continued cooperation of Progressive Democrats who worked with them when the Democrats were in the minority."

Should the Republican independents swing a number of Democrats they would hold a balance of power sufficient to throw the organization to either party. However, the 217 Democrats are sponsoring Representative Garner, of Texas, for Speaker, while the 214 Republicans will decide at a conference November 30 whom they will support.

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, floor leader in the last Congress, and Representative Snell, of New York, chairman of the last rules committee, appear to have about equal support for the Republican speakership nomination.

On the Democratic side, the question of whether the floor leadership will go North or South is to be decided at the party caucus December 8. With the speakership probably going to Garner and a number of important chairmanships to the South, indications are that the leadership may go North, or to the Middle West.

Paternalistic Trend Is Scored by Tilson

Majority Chief Sees Next Year as Crucial for Constitution.

Marked extension of paternalistic doctrines or an equally marked reaction toward the type of government which was planned by the molders of the Constitution will occur in the coming year, Representative John Q. Tilson, majority leader of the House, predicted last night in a radio address sponsored by the Sentinels of the Republic.

"As we look around us here in Washington we see traces of innumerable activities by the Federal Government which are entirely outside the scope of the Constitution as it was understood by the founders of the republic," he said.

"The concentration of power in Washington through the multiplication of administrative bureaus under a perverted interpretation of the general welfare clause, is a danger which is but the outgrowth and logical consequence of a failure to understand and maintain the fundamental principles of the Constitution."

Drive for Million Dimes By Drys Is Held Success

(Associated Press.)

The national prohibition board of strategy expects to seek at least part of a second million dimes, Edwin C. Dinwiddie, executive secretary of the board, said this yesterday in announcing to prohibition workers that 900,000 coin cards, asking for dimes, have been distributed and that the remainder of the million would be distributed before November 30.

"Ten million dimes would come in if the people are reached," he said. "There are no signs of depression in this campaign."

BUSINESS FORECAST FOR NEXT MONTH

The following opinions on the business outlook for next month have been expressed by editors of United Business Publishers, Inc., whose publications include a number of the country's leading business and trade journals. The opinions of these trade experts are based on close contact with more than 400,000 business men in far-flung fields of retailing and industry.

AUTOMOTIVES (Passenger Cars).

Automotive Industries reports:

Although December sales will be the lowest in many years, nevertheless the picture will not be as black as it looks on the surface, because it is expected that the number of units sold will be in excess of that for November. This is contrary to the normal seasonal trend, but will be brought about by the new models that will be announced in the latter part of November and early December. There has been considerable delayed buying of at least two of the better selling cars, and with the pending announcements of their new models, sales should be stimulated.

Taking everything into consideration, it looks as though there should be about 80,000 passenger car units sold during December. This represents an increase over November of about 14 per cent, but at the same time is approximately 15 per cent less than December of 1930.

Based on actual sales figures for the first nine months of 1931 and an estimate for the last quarter of the year, total sales for 1931 will be about 1,960,000 units. This means that passenger car sales for 1931 will be approximately 28 per cent less than sales were for 1930.

AUTOMOTIVES (TRUCKS).

Automotive Industries reports:

Two very important events are taking place that no doubt will have a decided effect on the truck situation. While this effect might not be reflected nationally, nevertheless it is sure to have some strong influence locally.

Decided increases in both wheat and oil prices are causing psychological reactions that will not be downed for quite some time, even if the higher sales prices are not maintained. It seems very likely that the wheat prices will not only be maintained but will, in all probability advance to a higher stage.

Farmers who have been holding off buying new equipment for the past two years will be more susceptible to the wiles of the salesman, or, in many cases will replace the worn-out equipment of his own accord. The same holds true in the old field sections, where truck equipment is used extensively.

Taking these points into consideration, the estimate for truck sales for December, 1931, is 14,000 units. This represents a 17 per cent decrease from November, and compared with December of 1930, represents a decrease of about 25 per cent.

Based on actual sales for the first nine months of the year and an estimate of the last quarter, total truck sales for 1931 will be about 315,000 units, as compared with the 410,000 units sold in 1930. This shows a loss of approximately 23 per cent.

DEPARTMENT STORES.

Dry Goods Economist reports:

December business will be much ahead of November's, but not up to the record of more normal years. November emphasis has been given to holiday buying by merchants' associations and by merchants individually, much earlier and more forcefully than ever before. The effectiveness of such propaganda is still to be proved. Probably it will have considerable helpful effect in stimulating buying, but the direction of such buying is, at this early date, impossible to trace. We believe that it will be in both serviceable goods—the "practical gift" idea, and in typical goods of comparatively low monetary value.

Millions of consumers who are persuaded to maintain the Christmas-giving tradition will do so in goods less costly than in previous years. Little things will play a big part in building up a high number of transactions, but will not produce desired volume. Therefore, though December normally runs 55 to 65 per cent ahead of November business, we do not believe gains are likely of more than 40 per cent, or thereabouts. The only reason for being even so optimistic is that we believe November buying will have suffered in anticipation of December buying of gifts. If this proves not to have been the case, then 35 per cent over November will be what December may expect.

We believe that the last week before Christmas will see a strenuous effort to put stocks in shape, rather than wait for the usual post-Christmas sales.

HARDWARE.

Hardware Age reports:

Prospects for a gradual improvement in the hardware demand during December are better than they have been at any recent time. It is the consensus of opinion in hardware circles that recent favorable developments in the general situation have paved the way for steady progress toward a business recovery. Firming prices on some basic commodities have served to instill a greater degree of confidence in the strength of current quotations, and wholesalers and retailers are buying less cautiously than has recently been the rule.

Mild weather has retarded the normal movement of winter lines in some territories, but the first protracted cold snap is expected to create a brisk demand.

INSURANCE.

The Spectator reports:

Executives and producers in all lines of insurance are looking forward to December with hope and confidence. December is traditionally a fine life insurance month. Agents are inclined to spur production in an effort to wind up the year with favorable records and they seem to enjoy, too, a psychological advantage in that the Christmas spirit puts life insurance prospects in a receptive frame of mind. During the last four months life insurance sales, in comparison with last year, have been showing a gradual improvement. If this development reaches its peak in December, the month's production may equal that of December, 1930. An increase over November, 1931, production is quite definitely expected.

JEWELRY.

The Jewelers' Circular reports:

Retail jewelers are looking to the Christmas trade this year with more interest and even anxiety than for many years past. Many count on it to pull them out of financial difficulty. Everywhere sales are expected to be much greater in December than in the present month; in fact, many times as large. In but few cities, however, are they expected to be better than December a year ago. In some, they will be the same, but in many they will be less.

As far as retailers' stocks are concerned, they will be very much larger next month than this. In fact, they will be larger than at any other time of the year, but in the country taken as a whole, they will not be as large as they were in December, 1930. The jeweler has been buying little through the year and has been extremely conservative about putting in his Christmas merchandise waiting until almost the last minute to buy what he needs for the holiday sales.

It is the general expectation among retailers that collections will be the same or better than in November, but in comparison with December a year ago, the showing will probably be not so good. In some cities, the best the retailer can hope is that they will be the same, though in many sections they are expected to be poorer.

LUMBER.

National Lumberman reports:

The last week in October saw still more drastic curtailment in mill operations, and as a result orders for lumber exceeded production by 16 per cent. In hardwoods especially many items are reported scarce, and each week marks progress toward placing lumber in a more favorable statistical position for realising a sharp price upturn when buyers come back into the market for more than hand-to-mouth supplies.

Nevertheless, the industry is advised in the second report by the President's Timber Conservation Board to continue the policy of restricting output, and it is suggested that a reduction of 4½ billion feet be made in standing lumber stocks within the next twelve months. The board congratulated the lumbermen on the headway made thus far in stock reduction.

On the other hand, lumber demand also has continued its decline, as have prices paid by both retailers and industrial consumers.

In forecasting November business, the National Lumber Manufacturers Association stated that mill representatives expected a further slight decrease in sales to retailers and in softwood sales to industrials at even lower prices, although the volume of hardwood sales to industrials was expected to remain the same as in October. Retail dealers were expecting a substantial seasonal decrease in November sales at a slight price reduction.

READY-TO-WEAR.

Nugents reports:

Ordinarily, December is a good month for furs, popular-priced dresses and apparel items suitable for gifts. Last December, stores attempted to maintain sales volume by resorting to special selling events which, naturally, necessitated high advertising costs. This year, however, retailers are stressing quality and maintaining higher mark-ups. Sales of apparel for wear at Southern resorts will probably be lighter than even last year.

The warm weather has played havoc with the coat market and the lack of rain has taken the joy out of the lives of raincoat manufacturers. Manufacturers' racks have never been so empty and buyers complain that they can not find enough merchandise. Such a long delay in the arrival of cold weather means that many women who would have bought coats earlier now figure on making the old garment last another season. However, with Christmas in the offing, there is hope that sales of accessories and apparel for gift-making will cause shoppers to forget the depression for a while, anyway.

SHOES.

Boot and Shoe Recorder reports:

The outlook at retail for the month of December in shoes and footwear is decidedly encouraging. The trade expects to find customer demand for gifts of utility and naturally shoes lead. In manufacturing, the outlook is pretty bare. In December a year ago, factory sales hit the lowest level in nine years.

This December low spot is not expected to be as deep or as dismal. If it should be, then shoemakers' children will see little of Santa Claus. The tanner is facing a reducing market in footwear due to the cutting of sandals, which have less area and which are often made of fabrics. The year as a total shows an improvement over 1930 of approximately 6 per cent, which is an indication favorable to the shoe and leather industry.

GOOD JANUARY SEEN BY DUN ECONOMIST

Statements Will Show Best Liquid Condition Since '21; Dr. Miller Opines.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—January statements will show the best liquid condition since 1921—an essential forerunner of business recovery—is the opinion of Dr. Stephen E. Miller, director of economics for R. G. Dun & Co.

In "a message to the credit community," published today, Dr. Miller declares that "early business statements indicate lower inventories, receivables and liabilities than for any time during the last ten years."

"Credit represents the purchasing power of the Nation," he concluded. "It is like the volume of water in the stream; it may run full or it may run low; it may be frozen or it may be wasted. The aim of the engineer is to get such an even flow of water as will meet the demand of the community throughout the year. The aim of the economist is to get a flow of credit as will maintain a general price level.

"Credit is an endless chain. In a single year $60,000,000,000 worth of goods are retailed to the American people, and two-thirds of this business is on credit; these same commodities have been passed along, from the wholesaler or manufacturer, on credit; they were manufactured on credit and, for the greater part, produced on the farm, in the mine, in the forest on borrowed money.

"Lest we wake up some morning, facing more difficulties than we face today, it should be remembered that managed economy means management by individuals, bureaus or commissions, directly or indirectly amenable to the whims and expediency of political parties. As wasteful and insolent as competition may be, it might be a paradise compared to a lock-stepping bureaucracy and fanatical constituency."

STEEL OUTPUT RISE EXPECTED FOR WEEK

Production Last Seven Days Has Barely Maintained 31 Per Cent Rate.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Steel production barely maintained the 31 per cent rate of the preceding week during the last seven days, but is expected to spring to 32 or 33 per cent this week, the magazine Steel reports.

If no further gain is recorded this week, an operating average for November at least 3 points above the October average of 27.7 per cent is assured.

Expansions were largely credited to the automotive industry, Buick, Chevrolet and Chrysler making the chief contributions. While there were no spectacular releases of large tonnage, the aggregate of scattered small lots was substantial. In practically all finished lines increases in demand were noted, the New York district alone failing to show signs of improvement.

Pipe requirements stand out as a bright spot. Ten thousand tons of 20-inch pipe for the Continental Construction Co., Chicago, will be purchased in about ten days for the Geneseo to Rockford, Ill., line. Standard Oil of California will build a line from Ketleman Hills to Estero Bay, Calif.

Railroads are hesitant, but the Burlington is expected in the market shortly for 35,000 tons of rails and 12,000 tons of track fastenings, about equal to its purchases last year. Reading will buy 30 coaches and 50 trailers. Structural steel awards for the week amounted to only 10,900 tons and reinforcing bars totaled 10,200 tons.

RASKOB MAKES RUM POLL

vention which will frame the party platform. It will be of value to have your recommendations also.

Chairman Raskob then asks the 90,000 contributors to answer the following questions:

List of Seven Questions.

1. Do you recommend that the Democratic platform should avoid all evasion and be a short, concise declaration of the party's determination to restore our liberties and the spirit of the Constitution through recognizing States' rights, home rule, the need of decentralization at Washington, the cutting of riotous national expenditures with consequent relief from excessive taxation?

2. Do you recommend that the Democratic platform should commit all Democratic members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives to vote in favor of a resolution that will submit the prohibition question (eighteenth amendment) to the people of the United States for their individual consideration and decision?

* * * *

This recommendation is now under consideration by the Democratic party and has been approved by the American Legion and the American Bar Association. It is important to note that a vote to submit this question to the people themselves does not commit a member of Congress to either side of the prohibition controversy.

Senator Morris Sheppard, of Texas, one of the coauthors of the eighteenth amendment, made the following statement in the United States Senate in debate on the submission of the eighteenth amendment on July 30, 1917:

The member of Congress who will not vote for the submission of a constitutional amendment to the decision of the States, where it belongs, unless he personally believes it should become a part of the Constitution, usurps the function of the States, arrogates to himself and the Federal Government a prerogative that belongs to the States and violates the very essence of their sovereignty. * * *

"Were I opposed on principle to Nation-wide prohibition, I would vote to submit the amendment to the States in order that they might exercise one of their fundamental rights. An issue is thus presented by the Nation-wide amendment entirely independent of prohibition." (Congressional Record, Vol. 55, part 6, Sixty-fifth Congress, first session, page 5553.)

3. The Constitution provides no machinery for a national referendum on any question. It does, however, provide a way under which the people of the United States can vote on constitutional questions. No part of the Constitution can be altered, repealed or modified in any way except through proposing new amendments, and this has been done many times in the past. The first step necessary is that two-thirds of the United States Senate and of the House of Representatives vote in favor of new amendments. Congress may provide that to become part of the Constitution such new amendments must be ratified, not by the Legislatures of the States, as has been done with previous amendments, but by the people themselves through conventions in each State specially called for this purpose only.

* * * *

Do you recommend that the Democratic platform declared in favor of requiring that all future amendments to the Constitution be ratified by the people themselves through conventions of the people in each State and not permit ratification through State Legislatures in future? This action will insure a national referendum of the people themselves on all future amendments before they can become part of the Constitution?

4. At the last meeting of the Democratic national committee there was presented what is termed a "home rule plan for liquor control." This plan recommends that the Democratic members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives be committed to vote in favor of a new constitutional amendment which in effect will modify the eighteenth amendment as follows:

"Nothing in the Constitution shall prevent any State from taking over absolute complete control of the manufacture, transportation, importation and sale of intoxicating beverages within its own territory and exportation thereof to such other States, countries and territories as do not prohibit same, provided however, that the plan under which that State proposes to take over such liquor control is first approved by the people of that State in State-wide referendum."

It will be noted that, should this amendment be adopted, the eighteenth amendment will stay in full force and effect with respect to all of the States until some States work out liquor control plans of their own which must be approved by their people in State-wide referendum before they can be adopted.

This plan leaves all the other States in the position of still having national prohibition and all the power of the Federal Government for its enforcement, and almost certainly guards against the return of the old-fashioned saloon because a majority of people in no State would vote in favor of a local State liquor control plan which permitted a return of the deplorable conditions which existed under the old saloon system.

The amendment might also provide that a State at any time may rescind its previous action, thus again submitting itself to the provisions of the eighteenth amendment.

* * * *

Do you recommend that the Democratic platform commit the Democratic members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives to vote in favor of a proposal which will give the people themselves through conventions of the people in each State opportunity to vote on a new constitutional amendment which, in effect, modifies the eighteenth amendment through the adoption of the "home-rule plan for liquor control," as above described?

5. Do you recommend that the Democratic platform commit the Democratic members of the Senate and House of Representatives to vote in favor of a proposal which will give the people themselves, through conventions of the people in each State, opportunity to vote on the question of straight repeal of the eighteenth amendment?

6. Do you prefer that the Democratic platform commit the Democratic members of the Senate and House of Representatives to vote in favor of a resolution proposing modification of the eighteenth amendment, as outlined in question 4, as against voting in favor of a resolution proposing straight repeal of the eighteenth amendment, as outlined in question 5?

7. Do you believe that other economic issues will be so overwhelming in the 1932 campaign that the Democratic platform can successfully ignore the prohibition question, with its economic problems, by remaining silent, or by adopting a mere law enforcement plank, as was done in the 1928 convention.

The contributors to the Democratic campaign fund of 1928, according to States, follow:

'Lincoln Letter' on Italy Unification Held Faked

Rome, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Henry Nelson Gay, secretary of the Italo-American Society and Rome historian, today described as a "forgery" a letter attributed to Abraham Lincoln in which he urged the unification of Italy and predicted that Rome would become the capital of a United States of Europe.

Himself the author of a life of Lincoln in Italian, Gay said: "Lincoln could not have written it. Anyone who has studied Lincoln would be certain of that. I have read Lincoln's correspondence and know that he did not have enough knowledge of European affairs to have written it."

SPLITTING HIS PARTY.

Chairman Raskob of the Democratic national committee has adopted an ingenious plan for widening the split in the Democratic party over the prohibition question. Not satisfied with the violent protests which went up when he made his wet proposal last March, which should have warned him that his propaganda was loaded with dynamite, Mr. Raskob now issues a questionnaire to the 88,580 individuals who contributed to Al Smith's campaign in 1928, suggesting that they indorse the Raskob "home rule" plan for restoration of the liquor traffic.

Naturally, the great majority of these contributors are wets, or they would not have given money to support Gov. Smith. Nearly one-half of the contributors live in the wet States of New York, New Jersey, Illinois and Massachusetts. Counting the contributors from Rhode Island and Pennsylvania as predominantly wet also, Chairman Raskob can count upon 47,000 affirmative votes from six States alone.

The dry South contributed very little money to the Smith campaign. Its vote on the Raskob referendum will be correspondingly negligible.

Assuming that every one of the 88,580 contributors should vote for the Raskob wet plan, what would it prove? Over 15,000,000 votes were cast for Smith. Would 88,580 answers to the questionnaire constitute an expression of the Democratic party on the prohibition question? What about the other 14,150,000 voters? They might object to the theory that the tail wags the dog. Disgusted as they were when Gov. Smith repudiated the Houston platform as soon as he had procured the nomination, millions of Democrats voted for him rather than bolt. They are drys, not wets. They may not have contributed money, but they contributed votes to Al Smith. Apparently Mr. Raskob is now planning to make it appear that the Democratic party is overwhelmingly wet and that it is determined to adopt a wet plank in the next platform.

Before the Democratic party adopts a wet platform there must be a finish fight in the next convention. Referendums and questionnaires will not settle this question beforehand. Every effort of the Raskob-Smith faction to commit the Democratic party to the wet cause will tend to solidify the ranks of the Democratic drys. The passions of 1928 will be stirred again, but this time the situation will take a different turn, because the drys will have power to veto the nomination of a wet candidate, if not to prevent adoption of a wet plank. At Houston they nominated a candidate and found out about his wetness afterward; at the next convention they will have power to frustrate such a trick.

The two-thirds rule of the Democratic national convention is the great barrier that must be surmounted by Chairman Raskob before he can make the Democratic party wet. The South and one or two dry Western States can not name a candidate, but they can block any one. Mr. Raskob, by preparing to obtain an expression from the contributors to Al Smith's campaign, as proof that the party is overwhelmingly wet, is provoking the struggle that threatens to split the Democratic party.

AFTER THE MORATORIUM.

The accord that has been reached by France and Germany for reexamination of the latter's ability to pay reparations is the most tangible result of the conferences between Premier Laval and President Hoover in Washington. When M. Laval came to this country a movement was on foot to call a world conference for discussion of reparations and war debts. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and other European statesmen were making desperate efforts to unload Europe's troubles upon the United States. President Hoover clearly saw the trend of events and took effective steps to throw the reparations problem back to Europe.

Germany has requested the Bank of International Settlements to organize a special advisory board to inquire into the Reich's capacity to pay after expiration of the Hoover moratorium next July. This procedure will be carried out within the framework of the Young plan. Although Germany contends that reparations can not be considered as an issue separate from her private debts, Chancellor Bruening's government has agreed to adhere to the letter of the Young plan so as not to impugn its validity.

Private creditors are pressing for the organization of another committee to investigate all of Germany's obligations and to formulate a plan covering private debts as well as reparations. It is difficult to see the necessity of such an inquiry at this time. No reasonable estimate of Germany's ability to pay reparations could be formulated without taking private debts into consideration. When the reparations committee has finished its work it will be time for the private creditors to decide what measures are necessary to protect their interests. Private loans were made to Germany when the bankers were fully aware of that country's obligations resulting from the war. The plans of international bankers to sacrifice reparations so that private debts can be paid aim at shifting part of Germany's burdens to the American taxpayers.

The United States will take no action whatever until Germany and her creditors have reached an agreement. When that has been accomplished President Hoover may recommend to Congress that the capacity of European nations to pay their war debts be examined again. If that inquiry is thorough it should result in little or no loss to American taxpayers. Some of the debtor nations are not as capable of paying as they were when the funding agreements were made. Others are now able to pay more than they agreed to pay.

The rapprochement between France and Germany brings the Hoover moratorium into clearer perspective. All fear that it might become a first step toward cancellation of the war debts has been dissipated. The Young plan has been preserved intact, and the United States has not become entangled in the reparations issue. The Hoover moratorium merely served to give Germany a breathing spell and to arouse European nations to the necessity of cooperative action among themselves.

PRESERVING WAR MARKERS.

American troops in France sought to preserve some concrete evidence of their victories, and so immediately after the armistice, the soldiers themselves erected monuments on the historic sites. With the materials at hand, often captured from the enemy, they made 55 markers to commemorate the objectives they had attained. Most of these are cement obelisks plainly adorned with bronze plaques bearing appropriate inscriptions. Some are flanked by captured machine guns. They can not be considered as a detriment to the landscape as their simplicity makes them unobtrusive and the people regard them as sacred shrines.

Last summer one of the monuments located at Romagne-sous-Montfaucon was found to be in the way of a proposed branch of the Eastern Railway Company of France. A request was made to the American Battle Monuments Commission to remove the memorial. On being referred to the Fifth Division Society, which has maintained the monument since its erection, the request was denied. The railroad then ignored the action and demolished the obelisk.

A protest was filed with the American Battle Monuments Commission, but this body has no authority in the matter. It was created for the purpose of erecting a number of new monuments and is only a temporary body. There is no organization or individual responsible for the maintenance of the remaining 54 cenotaphs, and with the precedent of this one being destroyed with impunity the others stand in danger of a similar fate. Such a loss could never be remedied, for though any number of splendid memorials might be established in years to come, nothing could take the place of these simple markers built by the American soldiers during their occupation of the sites.

It has been suggested by Maj. B. H. Namm, of the New York State War Memorial Commission, that the destruction of this first monument should be brought to the attention of the French government, with a request that it be replaced at a nearby point. An agency could then be appointed in France which would have direct responsibility for the markers and would see that they are preserved in a fitting manner.

AMERICAN ART.

The opening of the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York is a significant event. For the first time this country has a museum devoted exclusively to American painting and sculpture. The American people have been tardy in recognizing their own artistic talent. Some local communities have diligently cultivated artistic inclinations, but as a whole the country has been too willing to bow to Europe as the center of all esthetic creation.

Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney has made a gift of this museum to the American public. For 25 years she has been collecting the work of American artists. Being a sculptress herself, she is well qualified to choose worth-while examples of native art. It is her purpose to exhibit the finest creations of this country, to enhance the prestige and dignity of American art and to increase the public appreciation of it.

In a message of congratulation read at the opening ceremonies President Hoover referred to the museum as a "notable contribution to the Nation," and a "promising step toward placing American art in the position of importance and dignity which its excellence and individuality merit."

It is an appropriate time to turn more attention to art and culture. The people have been so immersed in economics during recent years that they have neglected the esthetic side of life. Through bitter experience the country is learning that too much energy poured into the production of material things leads only to maladjustments and distress. One important cause of the depression may be the woeful lack of balance between economic and cultural interests. The United States can well afford to devote more of its energy and its means to the cultivation of artistic talents and appreciation, for it is the richest country on earth. Failure to do so may perpetuate economic topheaviness that leads to overexpansion and consequent depression.

When President Hoover spoke of this museum increasing "America's pride in her own culture" he may have been turning over in his mind the excessive pride which is frequently manifest in the accumulation of wealth. Neglect of culture, intellectual development and esthetic appreciation in the interests of greater economic prowess usually leads to unfortunate consequences. The economic disillusionment that has grown out of the depression may stimulate more interest in cultivation of the arts, which involves less danger of blighting overproduction.

It is claimed that there are greater financial rewards in making people laugh than in making them think, but politicians have found it more profitable to keep them from either laughing or thinking.

BOOKS AND BOOKS

From the Providence Journal.

American book publishers, we are told, are decidedly optimistic in spite of the depression. Reports from some of the leaders indicate that business is better than it was a year ago, and it is said that there are positive signs of a more intelligent interest and keener discrimination on the part of the public.

The output of the publishers has been materially reduced, and we are assured (by the publishers) that they are now concentrating on books which they consider possessed of elements of permanent value. All of which may be regarded as evidence of a safe and sane policy in the book business and should be gratifying to every one concerned. There was a well-founded suspicion not very long ago that publishers were accepting all kinds of manuscripts with impetuous haste and printing hundreds of books that were literally not worth the paper consumed by the editors. Many authors, we have heard, were convinced to the contrary. At least, while they agreed as to the worthlessness of many of the books printed, they were convinced that the publishers were rejecting many worthy offerings.

Now they may obtain statistics proving that the business has been reformed, restrained and stabilized. As the casual observer notes the new editions at the book counters, he may find reason to wonder at this reported curtailment. Perhaps it will seem to him that the mass of books without any "elements of permanent value" is as great as ever it was. Indeed, the flood of brackish literary water may seem to have risen to a new high level. But appearances are often deceptive; the fact of the great reduction is given to us as inside trade information.

One fact apparently can not be questioned by anybody. That is that readers are reacting most favorably to the publication of more books that have a substantial value. There is a greatly increased sale of volumes that a decade and a half ago would have been contemptuously pushed aside by the average reader as "highbrow." There is a large new desire, sprung up within the past dozen years, for authentic information on 100 widely varied subjects. Perhaps it was born of the war. In any event, it is apparent that hundreds of thousands, young and old, are informing themselves about economics, politics, international relations, racial problems, scientific adventures, religious and philosophical questions and all sorts of topics that only the other day were practically left to specialists and concentrating students. It is an exceedingly promising sign. It has seemed to many in the past decade that the world was turning whole-heartedly to frantic and delirious play, that the dominant craving of the age was for speed, time-killing recreation and forgetfulness. But this is a complex world, and there is also a powerful trend toward more intelligent thinking, if we may judge by the vastly increased serious reading that is done.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

TO A FAITHLESS TOOTH.

Farewell, old tooth; comes now our parting day,
Though long I've tried to keep you from decay
I must get rid of you, the doctors say.
Down through the years I've worn you in my gum,
Fed you and loved you; now my heart grows numb;
They tell me, tooth, my poisoner you've become!
After long years of friendship can it be
That you, all unobserved, should turn on me
And plot worse tortures than an enemy?
Sharing my smile, my thought and tender care,
Trusted and cherished. Is it kind or fair
For you to be the root of my despair?
I who have loved you from my earliest youth,
By spying doctors now am told the truth,
"The foe that works such evil is a tooth!"
When friends prove false then bitter is the blow,
One cannot cope with foes he doesn't know,
So faithless cuspid—out today you go!
Never again through juicy steak or crust,
Or pie, or chicken shall your form be thrust;
I'm going to get a false tooth I can trust.

Buying the Milk Costs No More Than Feeding the Cow That Gives It.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

STATESMEN of the world, listening at last to the warning of bankers, are making plans to forgive other people's debts.

That forgiveness will affect your pocketbook. Any war debt left unpaid by Europe will be added to the burden of American taxpayers.

Knowing that to be true, you are tempted to believe the charge that great bankers urge debt cancellation because their own loans will be easier to collect when Government loans are marked paid.

But there is another and greater reason why statesmen are willing to cancel these war debts. They have discovered that a debtor nation can not pay without injuring those who collect.

That sounds unreasonable, but is true.

Suppose other nations should force Germany to pay by stripping the land of all money and other valuables.

The result would be revolution, chaos, utter ruin. The billions of dollars invested in Germany by citizens of other lands would be forever lost. And a great market on which other nations depend would be destroyed for generations.

For their own sakes, creditor nations must preserve Germany as a going concern and collect from her as she is able to pay. They dare not weaken her too much.

But if Germany pays on the installment plan, she can do it only by exporting more than she imports. Since she can't dig gold from the ground, she must create new wealth by applying labor to raw material.

Suppose this new wealth is dolls. Germany makes and sends to America 1,000 dolls worth $1 each. By selling those dolls in America she gets the money to pay America—and that is the only way she can get it.

But America makes and sends to Germany 1,000 alarm clocks worth $1 each. When the two deals are completed, Germany has gained nothing and has made no money to pay on her debt.

What, then, is the solution? Germany, trying desperately to keep the trade balance in her favor, buys only 100 clocks. Thus she gains $900.

But observe the result. Their market reduced, American clock makers are thrown out of work. And the importation of German dolls deprives American doll-makers of their jobs.

Figure it any way you will, America must furnish every dollar that Germany uses to pay America.

Is it better to cancel a debt, or to collect it by purchasing the debtor's manufactured goods and depriving our own factories of a market?

PRO AND CON

Yes, Congress Will Ajdourn.

Kansas City Star.

The clerk of the House is not particularly comforting in a view of the next Congress. But perhaps few persons could be. He says that if all the problems to come before the session are to receive the attention required for legislation, Congress would not adjourn at all next year, but would run, "without stopping, into the short session a year hence." The running powers of Congress are recognized. Yet there can be the hope that the body will not attempt to solve all the problems of the universe at a single session. As 1932 will be a national campaign year, many of the members of Congress will have urgent business to look after back home. The season may be favorable for early spring planting, with the expectation of bounteous harvesting in the fall. Then, with the national conventions coming on in June, too, Congress will adjourn to save the country. It could help save it by adjourning earlier, but probably won't.

No More Balance of Power.

Mason City (Iowa) Globe-Gazette.

The shifting of control in the house or representatives from republicanism to Democracy will have the effect of giving less power and glory to the insurgent group which in the past few sessions of Congress have had the "balance of power." For persons who believe that using a party name for purposes of getting elected carries with it a certain degree of partisan responsibility, there will be a definite consolation in this interesting development.

How About It, Democrats?

We do not wish to be unkind, but how can the pundits of the Democratic party expect the country to have faith in their business ability after they have struggled for four years to get their party finances out of the red, without meeting with any notable success?

Senate Control in Balance.

Houston Post-Dispatch.

During the rejoicing and jubilation throughout the South over Democratic control of the House, very little has been said about the possibility that the Senate also may be organized by the Democrats.

With the appointment of Mrs. Hattie Caraway to fill the unexpired term of her husband, the late Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway, of Arkansas, both Republicans and Democrats have 47 seats each in the Senate.

The absence of a single Republican or Democrat because of illness would determine the outcome of the balloting when the Senate is organized. Even with a full membership present during the opening days of Congressional session, the Democrats are conceded an excellent chance to organize the upper house. Republicans are not at all certain that the solidarity of their ranks can be maintained.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Questions Asked by E. Michaelson in Regard to Relief of the Needy Are Herein Answered.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of November 13, E. Michaelson asked two questions which I am glad to answer.

1. Where in Washington is there a food kitchen maintained by the so-called charitable, and, or, unemployment committee?

2. Is there any place where we may send persons in need for clothing or a bed?

There are no food kitchens as such, maintained by the charitable agencies of Washington. There are agencies which supply food and lodging to men and women who are without homes. These are the Salvation Army, which maintains quarters for men and women and whose welfare work is supported by the Community Chest; the Central Union Mission and Gospel Mission, which are supported by Washington churches, provide meals and lodging for men; and the Municipal Lodging House, which is a part of the Board of Public Welfare, does the same.

In reply to the second question, the Council of Social Agencies at 1418 I street northwest, has by an arrangement with the Community Chest, agreed to have all persons who apply to citizens for assistance referred to its office, and the workers in the Application Bureau of the council will direct the needy person to the agency which is equipped to handle the particular need presented.

After 5 o'clock in the evening and on Sundays and holidays, these needy persons may be sent to any of the above mentioned agencies or to the Travelers' Aid Society at Union Station, which maintains a 24-hour service. Workers there will be glad to supply emergency service which may be needed. LOUISA S. ROBERTS.

Chief Industry of Southern Maryland Faces Poor Holiday Trade Appeal to Hunters.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Several hunting parties from Washington have been around here lately, but they don't help the holiday trade much. A party headed by Mr. Jacoby had a good chance to pick off a couple of "man-eaters," as we call the buck rabbits that break into our stills and then go on the rampage. The hunters ran into three drunken rabbits on the Morgantown road, but when the animals showed fight the hunters turned their Ford around and dodged a battle.

The party headed by Mr. Carabas, of Cherrydale, got a few rabbits, but all of the pacifist kind. We heard a lot of this Nimrod, and had hopes that he would protect our plants against rabbit raids. But these raids go on nearly every night. Our holiday stock will be smaller than usual.

City hunters are either afraid to face the fighting bucks or they don't know that there are two distinct varieties of Southern Maryland rabbits—the pacifist kind and the big, savage, corn-licker brutes that waylay everybody as soon as they get lit up. They are the curse of our industry down here. I'd rather have a dozen dry agents after me than a couple of these high-power brutes that knock over our tubs and guzzle all our best stuff. Tell Washington hunters to help us out, and they can be sure of a more steady holiday supply. M. P. J., Jr.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In February, 1900, I came to Washington the first time. The city is now quite different from what it was then. More than 400 large buildings have gone up, and many more are being erected. In five years, when the present building program is finished, our National Capital will compare favorably with any national Capital in the world.

Then, there were not fewer than 1,500 saloons in Washington, now Washington has no saloons, and I have not seen an intoxicated person since I came here. The change is wonderful, and even the most stupid minded can see the difference. As it is in beautiful Washington, so it is everywhere in the United States. Then, there was not an automobile in Washington, now everybody seems to have a car. Whiskey is a great evil. Prohibition is the only remedy. All we need now is law enforcement and for every one to stand by President Hoover and his law enforcement force. This is the way to make Washington the most beautiful city in the world, and the United States the greatest country in the world.

Suggests a Three-Cornered Football Game Between Tech, Gonzaga and Western — Proceeds to Go to Charity.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As one who has enjoyed the high and prep school football season, I want to deplore its early ending. This has been a very mild fall, with no indications as yet of an early winter. Why not one or two more school games for charity?

The curtain goes down with three very good teams in the field—Tech, Gonzaga, and Western. Gonzaga has beaten Western and so has Tech, but Western has since been strengthened by several additions, and would probably welcome another chance against both Gonzaga and Tech.

Why not a game next Friday afternoon between Gonzaga an Western, the winner of that game to play Tech the following week?

U.S. FUND CAMPAIGN FOR IDLE NEAR GOAL

Returns From Chest Drives Show 99 Per Cent of Quotas Reached.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The slogan, "Sure We Can Do It," around which the President's organization on unemployment relief built its campaign for funds, seemed certain of realization today.

Returns from 101 Community Chest campaigns completed up to Saturday night showed 99.2 per cent of the aggregate goal of $31,602,425 had been raised with the promise of further increases in the total as a postcampaign cleanup is undertaken.

The report was made by the National Association of Community Chests and Councils to Walter S. Gifford, director of the President's organization on unemployment relief, and to Owen D. Young, chairman of the committee on the mobilization of relief resources. It included 47 campaigns in addition to those previously reported.

14 Per Cent Increase in Year.

In only 92 of the 101 cities, however, were comparisons with last year's Community Chest totals possible. The other nine chests either had only recently been established or had been reorganized.

In those 92 cities, $31,060,492 were raised, an increase of 14 per cent over the total of $27,241,030 subscribed by their citizens last year. This computation was an improvement over the report of last week, when the national association showed an increase of 13.1 per cent over last year's figures in the cities in which comparisons could be made.

Seventy of the 101 cities reached or exceeded their goals. Three others were so near they were certain to exceed them as late contributions rolled in, while the other 28 fell only slightly below the amounts needed. Several of this last group will conduct supplementary efforts which are expected to improve their showings.

New York City Results.

Meanwhile, New York City's emergency unemployment relief committee reported $13,105,472 had been raised in its campaign for $18,000,000. The goal originally was set at $12,000,000, but was increased after the campaign got under way.

San Francisco, where a budget of $2,500,000 was the sixth largest in the country, reported $2,635,000 subscribed, although it changed its usual community chest campaign period to participate in the Nation-wide effort. A personal gift of $5,000 from President Hoover was included in the amount.

Portland, Oreg., subscribed fully to its goal of $786,156, against $650,000 raised last year. Successful campaigns were completed also in Sacramento and San Jose, Calif., and in Seattle and Bellingham, Wash.

Totals in Southern Cities.

Among eleven Southern cities reporting, goals were exceeded in Birmingham, Harrisonburg, Va., Columbia and Reidsville, N. C., and in Kingsport and Nashville, Tenn. Jacksonville, Fla., raised $301,000, a total of $100,000 above last year, but slightly below that sought.

Mechanics' Tools Taken When Trio Is Arrested

Sheriff E. P. Kirby, of Fairfax County, states that he has in his possession a number of valuable mechanics' tools, which he seized at the time of the capture of Tom Emory, Will Emory and Melvin Kagle, wanted in North Carolina on serious charges.

Sheriff Kirby believes the trio was concerned in some of the robberies in this county, and persons who have reported losses of garage equipment, may communicate with the sheriff's office. They may be able to identify the equipment.

3 G.U. SOPHOMORES GET VIRGIL MEDALS

Three sophomores received silver medals of the Virginian Academy of Georgetown University from President W. Coleman Nevils at an actus in Gaston Hall yesterday afternoon, in recognition of their achievements as scholars of the works of Virgil.

Those who received the medals were: William A. Pindar, jr., of New Jersey; James Condren, of Pennsylvania, and Thomas F. Scully, of Kentucky. Mr. Scully also received the Horace medal, awarded annually to the student excelling in oral examination in selected odes of Horace. Names of the medalists were read by the Rev. J. J. McLaughlin, S. J., dean of the faculty of arts and sciences.

J. Loren Freund, of Washington, also a sophomore, was chairman of the Actus, the second held by the Vergilian Academy since its inauguration a year ago, when the 2,000th anniversary of the birth of Virgil was observed. Mr. Pindar was questioned concerning the four books of the Georgics; Mr. Condren about the ten Eclogues, and Mr. Scully about the twelve books of the Aenid. They gave literary criticisms and repeated passages selected at random.

A debate featured the first part of the program, Philip A. Hart and George D. Crowley contending that Virgil is richer in meaning to a Roman, while the significance of the poet to a modern Christian was upheld by Howard W. Gunlocke and Jerome J. Downey, all sophomores. Mr. Freund brought the program to a close with an address in praise of the Latin poet. The three medalists were questioned by Cassidy Driscoll, Edward J. Fahy, John W. Ahern, Richard F. McPartlin, Andrew J. Cooney, jr., and Richard H. Clarke 3d.

Fairfax U.D.C. to Mark Graves of Confederates

The Fairfax Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, has voted to place a marker on the grave of Thomas Holbrook, Confederate veteran, in Fairfax Cemetery. Another very attractive French Boxed Paper, in note size, $1

Birds of Paradise, in gilt, on a green marble base make distinguished book ends, $18.50

Decorative as well as thoroughly useful, is the folio — well-filled for use at home, or "abroad" $5.50

A decorative leather case has tiny drawers for pins and stamps, pens and clips—all under one's finger tips $9.50

An initialed paper, folded in the new three-fold style, in white with colored border $1

In trend with the vogue of pewter — comes the very chic pewter desk set—five pieces $18.50

An unusually fine leather address book, loose leaf for greater convenience $5

Any traveler would highly welcome the convenient leather writing-folio — fitted with address and stamp books — and paper knife ...$12.50

A Guest Book, for those who entertain "largely" — and particularly smart for one's hostess in the country $7.50

SOCIETY

Son-in-Law and Daughter of Turkish Ambassador Leave Capital Tomorrow; Garrett Sails for Italy Dec. 11.

THE Turkish Ambassador, Mr. Ahmet Muhtar, has had as his guests for several weeks his son-in-law and daughter, the Charge d'Affaires of the Turkish Embassy in Tokyo and Mme. Nebil, who with their two children will leave Washington tomorrow for the Pacific Coast. They will spend some time in California, and will sail on December 24 from San Francisco for Japan, where Mr. Nebil will assume his new duties.

The American Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. John W. Garrett, who have been at their Baltimore home, Evergreen House, for several weeks, will sail on December 11 for Italy.

The Ambassador and Mrs. Garrett had as their guests over the week-end, the Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs and Signora Grandi, and last week their guests were the American Ambassador to France and Mrs. Walter E. Edge.

The Bolivian Minister and Senora de Abelli entertained last evening at a large supper party in honor of the Bolivian delegate to the Bolivia-Paraguay conference, Senor Enrique Sinot, and Senora de Sinot. There were about 40 guests.

Walcott and Townsend To Arrive Next Week.

Senator Frederic C. Walcott, of Connecticut, and Senator John G. Townsend, jr., of Delaware, have taken apartments at the Shoreham for the winter. They will arrive in Washington the end of next week.

Representative and Mrs. Adam Martin Wyant have issued invitations to a tea at the Congressional Club, on New Hampshire avenue, Tuesday, December 15, to introduce their daughter, Miss Anne Moore Wyant.

In the week's calendar of social events published in the society section of yesterday's Washington Post it was incorrectly stated that the Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Frederick H. Payne would give a tea Thursday afternoon at the Mayflower Hotel to introduce their daughter, Miss Carolyn Payne. The Post regrets the error.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. White, jr., have issued invitations for a tea at their home, at 1910 Twenty-fourth street, Friday, December 11, to introduce their daughters, Miss Mary Stamps White and Miss Emma Gray White, to society.

The wedding of Miss Anne Butler, daughter of Justice and Mrs. Pierce Butler, and Mr. Edward K. Dunn, of Baltimore, will take place tomorrow afternoon in the home of Justice and Mrs. Butler at 4 o'clock. The ceremony will be performed by Mgr. Edward Buckey, rector of St. Matthew's Church in the presence of members of the two families and close friends. Following the ceremony there will be a reception to which a number of additional guests have been invited.

Miss Butler will be unattended, and Mr. Dunn will have his brother, Mr. Roswell C. Dunn, for his best man.

Commander and Mrs. William D. Thomas entertained Saturday evening at a dinner and later a dance at Greystone, which they are now occupying. The party was a house warming, and a large group of young people, including many from out of town gathered in the charming home for a gay evening.

Mr. C. Bascom Slemp, commissioner general of the American exhibit of the Colonial Exposition, will arrive in New York today on the S. S. Leviathan after passing several weeks in Paris. Mr. Slemp returned to Paris early in November for the closing of the exposition. He will come to Washington early this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmon A. Miller have issued invitations for a breakfast at 1 o'clock on Thanksgiving Day at Greenway Farm, their home in Loudoun County, Va. The breakfast will follow the Thanksgiving meet of the Loudoun Hunt Hourds.

Joseph T. Mackey Guest of Mr. and Mrs. McKenney.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick D. McKenney, of Wardman Park Hotel, have staying with them as their guest, Mr. Joseph T. Mackey, who came to Washington from his home in New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Greenbaum, the daughter and son-in-law of Mrs. Emile Berliner, widow of the late inventor, who makes her home at Wardman Park Hotel, have come to Washington from New York City for a brief visit.

Col. and Mrs. D. H. Sawyer have issued invitations for a dinner to be given at Wardman Park Hotel on Thanksgiving evening. There will be about 20 guests.

Mrs. W. Wentworth Peirce will entertain at luncheon at the Shoreham tomorrow in honor of her debutante daughter, Miss Eleanor Peirce.

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Albert Evans will leave by motor tomorrow for Philadelphia, where they will spend Thanksgiving with friends, returning to their home at 2713 Wisconsin avenue December 1.

Mrs. Russell Bennett has changed the date of her tea dance, which she will give in honor of her daughter, Miss Florence Harris, in the Palm Court at the Mayflower, from December 23 to Wednesday, January 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Riggs, Jr., Back From Wedding Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Riggs, jr., have returned from their wedding trip and are with the latter's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Eugene LeMerle. Mrs. S. J. Costa and Mrs. M. Eugenie LeMerle.

Mrs. S. J. Costa and Mrs. M. Welsh, of Philadelphia, have been spending the week-end in Washington as guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Gardin, at the Potomac Park Apartments.

Mrs. Fenton F. Leith and her daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Leith, entertained at luncheon Saturday at the Columbia Country Club in honor of Miss Sidney Thompson, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Percy Thompson.

Whelan, Mrs. Frederick Siddons, Mrs. Francis M. Tompkins, Miss Rebecca Davidson, Miss Phyllis Hight, Miss Ann Perin and Miss Margo Wyeth.

A wedding of unusual interest both in Washington and in Virginia society took place in the chapel of the Methodist Building Saturday evening, when Miss Ruth Elizabeth Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Thompson, of Stony Point, Hillsboro, became the bride of Mr. Howard Vincent Williams, son of Mr. Walter V. Williams, of St. Joseph, Mo.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the United States House of Representatives. The bride was gowned in ivory satin with silver slippers and carried orchids and lilies of the valley.

Her only attendants were Miss Elsie Brooke, of Maryland, and Miss Bernice Basinger, of Plymouth, N. C.

Immediately following the ceremony the party was entertained at a dinner dance at the Shoreham Hotel. Among the guests at the wedding were Mr. Ruskin McArdle, librarian of the United States Senate; Mr. Edward C. Wrede, private secretary to Senator Howell, of Nebraska; Miss Ruth Price, aunt of the bride, and Messrs. Lawrence and Russell Thompson, brothers of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Williams will reside at the Marquette.

Members of the Minnesota delegation in Congress will be guests of honor of the Minnesota State Society on Monday evening, November 30, at the Willard Hotel. They are Senator and Mrs. Hendrik Shipstead, Senator and Mrs. Thomas D. Schall, Representative and Mrs. August Anderson, Representative and Mrs. Clague, Representative and Mrs. August Andresen, Representative Melvin J. Hans, Representative and Mrs. William I. Nolan, Representative Harold Knutson, Representative and Mrs. Paul John Kvale, Representative and Mrs. Conrad Selvig, Representative and Mrs. Victor Christgau, Representative and Mrs. Godfrey Goodwin, and Representative and Mrs. William Pittinger.

The congressional meeting is being held earlier this season on account of the forthcoming George Washington bicentennial program, in which the society expects to play an important part.

Dancing will start at 9 o'clock. During an intermission, Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest, director of pageants and plays for the District of Columbia Bicentennial Commission, whose grandfather, Brig. Gen. Seth Eastman, was the first commandant of Fort Snelling, Minn., will tell the story of how old Browns Falls became the famous Minnehaha Falls.

Miss Bede Johnson, president of the society, extends a most cordial invitation to all Minnesotans and their friends to attend.

Miss Janet Richards, at her talk on "Affairs Political and International," this morning at the Willard Hotel, in addition to the general review of the outstanding questions of the hour, will touch especially upon a series of political "deadlocks" in many places, notably in the Indian conference at London, in our own congressional situation and in the present status of the Japanese-Chinese conflict. A new map of Manchuria will be used to clarify Japan's present occupation of that territory. The talk is given in the Willard room and begins at 11 o'clock.

Following the lecture Miss Richards will entertain at luncheon in the crystal room the following guests: Mrs. John Biddle, Mrs. Perry Heath, Mrs. Dallas Wainwright, Mrs. D. C. Stapleton, Mrs. Kingman Kern, Mrs. Rust-Smith, Mrs. Albert Baggs and Mrs. Sallie Pickett.

One of the most brilliant weddings of the season and one of much interest took place recently at the Front Royal Baptist Church, Front Royal, Va., when Miss Betsy Payne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Payne, became the bride of S. Byrne Downing, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Byrne Downing, of this place.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Walter T. Burton, pastor. The church was beautifully decorated in a color scheme of green and white and was illuminated with candles arranged about the altar, which cast a soft glow upon the scene.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was lovely in her gown of white velvet made in the Empress Eugenie style with bolero effect, wearing a veil of tulle and old family lace arranged in cap effect, and carrying a sheaf of calla lilies. The maid of honor was Miss Helen Payne, sister of the bride, who wore a gown of orchid velvet with a velvet turban to match.

The bridesmaids were Miss Nellie Mae Payne, sister of the bride, and Miss Ruth Collins, each wearing gowns of salmon pink velvet with turbans to match; Miss Grace Borden and Miss Louise Baker, of Richmond, Va., each wearing turquoise blue velvet with turbans to match, all carrying bouquets of Joanna Hill roses.

Little Miss Virginia Mason Harmon, cousin of the bride, of Newport News, was flower girl and was lovely in her frock of pink crepe de chine, and carrying a basket of rose petals, strewing them in the path of the bride as she entered the church.

The bridegroom had as his best man his cousin, Mr. Alfred McKay, of Baltimore, Md. His groomsmen were Mr. W. C. Armstrong, jr., Mr. Wyndham Lee, Mr. Stewart Payne, brother of the bride, and Mr. Henry Downing, brother of the bridegroom.

Preceding the ceremony a program of music was given by Mrs. Achillis Wilson, of Orange, Va., aunt of the bride, and just before the bridal party entered the church, Mrs. LeRoy Harmon, of Newport News, aunt of the bride, sang "I Love You." To the strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" the bridal party entered the church, and during the ceremony "O Promise Me" was played by the organist, followed by the recessional.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was given at the Afton Inn, the home of the bride's parents, at which about 300 guests were present.

Since the announcement of the engagement of Mr. Downing and Miss Payne, the bride has been lavishly entertained at a number of parties and showers, and her bridal gifts were handsome and numerous.

Following the rehearsal Friday night the bridal party was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wyndham Lee, on Royal avenue. On Saturday morning the bride entertained her attendants at a wedding breakfast at her home.

Among the out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Crowder, Mr. Woodward Cook, Mr. Bim Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tipton and daughter, Miss Mary Paxton Macatee, Miss Margaret Olmstead and Mr. Lynn de Lashmutt, all of Washington, D. C.; Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Payne, of Haymarket, Va.; Mrs. Eula Merchant and Mr. Jack Merchant, of Manassas, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Owens, of Danville, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. H. O'Bannon Cooper, of Alexandria, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Harmon and daughter, Virginia Mason, of Newport News; Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilson, of Orange, Va.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

EVERY now and then there is an explosion in Congress about the evils of chain programs, but there was quite another kind of an explosion when the citizens of Great Falls, Mont., learned that the NBC contemplated going into Montana with outlets at Billings and Butte, and were passing up Great Falls.

Evidently they made it so hot for M. H. Aylesworth, president of the NBC, in New York, that he took to the tall timbers. Whereupon F. A. Buttrey, of Station KFBB, Great Falls, began burning up the long distance telephone wires into Washington (at $6.75 for the first three minutes and $2.25 for each additional minute) to see if anybody here could do anything to help them get to Aylesworth.

Buttrey, who thinks less of making the 3,000-mile trip to Washington than some of our people do of a pilgrimage to Alexandria, offered to take the next airplane East, if that would do any good, but in the meantime appealed to the friends of Great Falls to please get busy as with "only Butte and Billings" the NBC could not possibly reach half of the Montana audience.

Doubtless the networks could cite many such instances where cities are clamoring to get aboard. One we know about was Baltimore, which put up the biggest kind of a fight and wasn't satisfied until it secured the WEAF network in addition to WJZ, which it already had.

As a result of this, Baltimore has it on Washington. In addition to Columbia it now has the full-time programs of both the NBC networks, while the best the Capital can do is to split programs on the three.

IT is seldom success hits any one with such a bang as it did Eugene Ormandy. Three weks ago when Toscanini was unable to keep his engagement as guest conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, Ormandy, who is but 30 years old, was asked by Stokowski almost overnight to step into the great conductor's shoes.

In the meantime, in addition to his regular radio feature over NBC, "Melody Moments," Ormandy was made a member of Columbia's staff and was understood to be slated to be their general musical director. At any rate they featured him in a new program known as "Eugene Ormandy Presents—"

However so spontaneous was his reception in Philadelphia, that a call came to him to act as guest conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

Ormandy duplicated his Philadelphia success in the Northwestern city and the next word from there was that he had been appointed regular conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra. He succeeds the famous Belgian conductor, Henri Verbrugghen.

As Hans Kindler, leader of the National Symphony Orchestra, is with the cello, Ormandy is a gifted violinist, and started to make that his career. However, like a newspaper man we know, who yearned to be a reporter, but spent most of his life as a managing editor, Ormandy was always in demand as a conductor. He was concert master of the Bluetner Orchestra, in Berlin, head of the Master School of Music at the State Conservatoire, in Budapest, and conductor of the Capitol Theater Orchestra, in New York, where he was one of the stars who helped put Roxy on the map.

This last experience almost brought disaster, because just before he was to play a violin solo before President and Mrs. Coolidge, in Washington, with Roxy's Gang, he ripped the seat of the pants of a brand new dress suit he had bought for the occasion. Wee Willie Bobyn came to the rescue with a couple of pins, but poor Ormandy was in agony for fear there might be a further catastrophe while he was appearing before the President of the United States.

ALTHOUGH the National Broadcasting Company announces that 200 concerts by America's three service bands—Army, Navy and Marine—have been scheduled for the coming season it neglects to say that, insofar as the NBC is concerned, these fine organizations will be completely crowded off the air by commercial programs during the desirable evening hours.

The WRC schedule follows: Army Band, Capt. William J. Stannard, Tuesdays, 4 p. m., and Fridays, 2 p. m.; Navy Band, Lieut. Charles Benter, Mondays, 10 a. m., Thursdays, 4:15 p. m.; Marine Band, Capt. Taylor Branson, Mondays, 3 to 4 p. m., Tuesday, 10 a. m.

The full membership of the bands, numbering approximately 80 men each, will be heard in the broadcasts. Capt. Taylor Branson is dedicating his Monday afternoon program to "shut-ins." This program will be made up entirely of requests from the radio audience.

Egbert Van Alstyne, who wrote "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree," back in 1903, will play a piano medley of his tunes today (WRC, 12:30 p. m.).

THROUGH an agreement with WMAL, Columbia will distribute the feature "Kaltenborn Edits the News," through WJSV Tuesdays and Thursdays, 7:30 p. m. • • • A new program featuring Aunt Jemima, blues singer, will be heard Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays (WMAL, 2:30 p. m.) • • • "Don Quixote" will be dramatized School of the Air this afternoon. • • • Beatrice Lillie is due for an appearance (WMAL, 10 o'clock) tonight • • • Rudolf Friml will be guest during the Mobiloil concert Wednesday night (WRC, 8:30 o'clock) • • • James Wilkinson, barytone, will sing "River Stay 'Way From My Door," and "Toreador Song," tonight (WRC, 6:00 o'clock) • • • Frances Bowdoin, the little girl from the Ozark Mountains of Missouri, will begin a series of chats over WRC this afternoon, 5:15 o'clock • • • "Thanksgiving, 1949," is the title of the Death Valley Days sketch (WJZ network, 8:30 o'clock tonight • • • Massachusetts will be honored during the Parade of the States • • • Lila McClelland, mezzo-soprano, will make her radio debut during the Black and Gold Room broadcast today (WRC, 12:15 p. m.).

Little Jack Little, the singing-composer who became famous over WLW, will be heard from the studios of WMAL at 10:30 o'clock tonight, and again on Wednesday night, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Little is at the Earle Theater this week.

ADDRESSES at the meeting of the joint committee of unemployment will be broadcast by WRC this afternoon, 1:30 o'clock Speakers include Norman Thomas, Prof. John Dewey, Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit, Mayor William A. Anderson of Minneapolis, and Dr. Sidney Goldstein, of New York City.

Oldest Inhabitants Plan Banquet.

Annual banquet of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants will be held at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening, December 7, at the Raleigh Hotel. The regular monthly meeting of the association will be held Wednesday, December 2, at 7:30 o'clock at the Old Engine House.

Jane Interprets the Mode

On Caribbean Sea, Nov. 22.

IT isn't Paris that is responsible for recent styles, in spite of the popular belief that this is so! It is the women themselves who demand what they want to express by their clothing, and Paris who grants their wishes. And as no less an authority than Lucien Lelong made this statement when he visited New York recently, we can not disregard it.

Lelong gives this reason for the short reign the little Eugenie hats enjoyed. Women didn't mind putting on shallow little hats for a change, he stated, but when it came to wearing them in various fabrics for all hours of the day, women found them most unsatisfactory. Of course, their feathers blew around unbecomingly in a strong breeze, and unless the coiffure was perfect these hats displayed it cruelly to the interested world, and these hats, being wholly innocent of brim, did nothing to protect miladi's eyes from the glare. For these and many more reasons, women were quickly bored with the gay little hats that threatened to be all there was in the hat world earlier in the season.

Lelong told reporters another curious fact—the restaurant dress was unknown in Paris! After he saw a few models of New York's popular frocks of speakeasy genus, he did admit that Paris had a frock similar to it but called by smart Parisiennes simply an "end of the day dress." This type of dress illustrates his contention that women get what they want. Women wanted, and needed, a frock that was a cross between out-and-out evening wear and ordinary afternoon wear—and what they wanted, Paris created!

• • • •

There is something faintly and delightfully reminiscent of the Russian influence in present-day wear in the suit from Lyolene that I have illustrated today. This suit is of navy blue wool, the skirt pleated on the sides to give a crisp fullness, and the jacket incrusted, front and back, not to mention the sleeves, in points, which are largely responsible for the wide-shouldered and form-fitting effect. The jacket is rounded in back and slightly longer there than in front. And narrow bands of black astrakhan border the entire jacket with its stand-up collar.

• • • •

And as if the suit itself were not sufficiently stunning, Lyolene has added a blouse of beige jersey with very decorative incrustations, and silver buttons down the front and on the sleeves.

• • • •

If you, like most women, are intrigued by the hint of "manniere Russe," indulge this Russian taste of yours discreetly. For the slight touch is delightful, and too heavy a touch is indecorous in this day of sophisticated adaptations!

• • • •

Those two hours between office and dinner! That Sunday morning when you simply hate to dress! That evening at home when you wish to be, oh, very elegant and attractive! Yes, you simply do need a new negligee; now you know you do—and one that you can make for yourself in an hour's time, too. So, you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, and you follow the directions for making a negligee that would cost you four times as much to buy ready made, and there you are! A negligee or two for yourself, and a couple for Christmas gifts—and all the same delightful model which takes no sewing nor cutting and fitting, honestly. And it stays on when put on, too.

Au revoir!

TIME VERSUS THE ACE.

AN Ace is a common measuring stick to determine trick-taking power and all writers on Bridge correctly say that an Ace is worth a trick. There is, however, one important qualification of this statement and that is that the Ace must take the trick before it comes in contact with the time element which is one of the most important factors in the game of Contract Bridge.

Today's hand is a case in point.

South—Dealer.

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♣	Pass	3◇	Pass
4♣	Pass	5♣	Pass
6♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding requires no particular comment. North has a very strong hand in honor-tricks and South has exceptional strength from the distributional standpoint. The combination of the two should produce game, or in exceptional cases even Slam. The Slam was properly contracted for.

West decided that his Ace was good for a trick any time and selected the top of his heart holding as the means for seeking the trick with which to defeat South's ambitious contract. South, of course, won this trick with his Singleton King then proceeded to draw six rounds of trumps. West discarded three hearts and one diamond, leaving the Ace bare. He knew nothing about the location of the spades, hence felt it was esential to retain the four spades to the Knave. In the meantime all Dummy's diamonds had been discarded. Before selecting another discard from the Dummy, South decided to discard himself, so the nine of spades was led and won in the Dummy. The Ace of hearts was then led and the small diamond discarded in the closed hand. South now returned to his own hand with the Queen of spades and West's decision that he must retain the Knave of spades was confirmed as it was apparent that South must hold another spade. South now laid down his last trump and West was hopelessly squeezed. Hoping against the hope that East held the Knave of diamonds, he discarded the Ace, whereupon South laid down the Knave of diamonds and took the thirteenth trick with the remaining spade honor in the North hand. While West's Ace was worth a trick once, it had to contend against the barrier of time which in the later play of the hand proved insuperable.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Answer:

1. An Opening bid of two in a suit except when but two tricks are needed for game. Then with Slam strength bid three if wishing partner to respond.
2. A Jump response in a different suit.
3. An Overcall in opponents' suit.
4. A Takeout Double.
5. A Jump Rebid in another suit.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Out of the Frying Pan.

DEAR FRANCES M'DONALD—I wonder if you will help me with my problem as you have others.

I am a divorced woman, 26 years old. After my husband and I separated, I came to live with my people. The only place I had to go. They helped me by not charging me board but they throw it up in my face all the time. Well, I am working and trying to pay some bills which I owe.

About a year ago I met a young man, three years my senior, whom I do love. Well, he came to see me and my mother said insulting things to him, so I met him on the street after that and we would go for a walk or go to the movies.

Finally a group of gossips got together and told my mother some terrible things about him. Of course, I know there is no truth in the things they said, but she believed them. She came home and told me if I ever saw him again she would put me out and never would have another thing to do with me. This I know she would carry out, for she has that disposition.

I know everything they said about him wasn't so, but when he was younger he got into some trouble, but he is trying to live it down and be decent but my mother keeps nagging me all the time about him. I care for him and he does for me. He does all he can to make me happy and wants me to marry him as soon as he has saved enough money. He only works every other week, as the times are so hard he can't get a steady job, but he works as much as he can.

He also has been married and has a little girl 5 years old.

My mother would think he was lovely if he had money and a big automobile, but he hasn't and is only a working man.

She is bound I won't marry him. What shall I do? Give up my family or marry him? It seems as though I should have some happiness. Although I love my folks and hate to lose them, I know if I give him up, I'll be a wreck. Won't you please help me? I don't know what to do.

"BUNNY."

Like most of our youth who have never been taught the first thing about the real facts of life, your idea of "happiness" is encompassed by the idea of having a mate—however unfit, unsuited, unprepared. No amount of misery, disillusionment, bitter experience can eradicate the idea. It is often the only idea in an otherwise unused brain. More's the pity.

Your mother is not only right, 100 per cent, but she is to be pitied as she sits by helpless, while you go headlong out of the frying pan into the fire. Here is a man with a past that would be a warning to any sane woman, and on top of that, a child he is unable to support. And you are ready to marry him, in all his incompetency, share his poverty, rob his child, and trust to the charity of overburdened tax-payers to support and save from starvation, the children you will bring into the world. Are you in your right mind as you deliberately plan this program of madness?

Happiness, as you call it, keeps girls like you in the courts. First you want freedom from whatever mate you have—usually some poor moron who does not know what it is all about and never will. Next you appear two years later seeking support for the infant child of the successor to the first mate. Said successor has usually disappeared after six months of matrimony—the "happiness" you yearn for—and is in parts unknown, or finding "happiness" with some one else. It is an endless chain and it is a disgrace to humanity, and to the society that permits it to go on.

Take your mother's advice. Stop concentrating upon the idea of annexing another worthless man to your messed-up life. Begin to live intelligently. A man is not essential to existence. Accept the fact. Proceed as a rational human to enjoy your work, to make your parents' home attractive, to take interest in the things that make life interesting to thinking beings, and escape a place in that ever lengthening line of tawdry souls who stand bedraggled, their unhappy offspring in their arms, awaiting their turn to tell a harassed judge their oft-heard tale of a string of worthless men and half a dozen unfed children.

What Today Means to You

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF November 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:40 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4:10 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m. and from 7:45 p. m. to 9 p. m.

Unsettled conditions are augured for this date. Fixed habits will be disturbed, traditions will be uprooted, and you will be jerked out of the armchairs of the past to face vital matters of the moment. An unpleasant revelation of something, which will prove to be a blessing in disguise.

Astrological influences will tend to make the child born on this November 23 emotional, receptive, meditative and imitative. Its feelings will be deep seated, and it will be very sensitive to criticism and afraid of other people's opinions. There will be a slight tendency to indecision.

Born on November 23, you are very much a creature of habit, and you enjoy a routine life, traveled along the same planes and through the same ruts from day to day. Anything which takes you away from your chosen circle, favorite pastimes, preferred haunts, and customary round of duties, is upsetting to your equilibrium. You make no attempt to keep up with the times, and you are proud of being old-fashioned.

If permitted to do things in your own way, you are very capable as a worker, but you often remain a drudge because you are not quick to adopt, adapt or improve. It brings contentment of mind, but it does not spell progress. You have practical business ability and will be somewhat fortunate in money matters. Your accumulations will be made through carefulness and economy. You do not stint yourself in any manner, but you are careful of the small wastes, and you know how to take care of that which you already have.

You have a very hospitable disposition, and are a genial and generous host or hostess. You never put on any ostentation, but the freedom of your home and the best that is in it, is extended to your friends or guests. You are sympathetic, and you give from both the heart and hand to those who need your assistance. Loyalty is one of your traits, and you are always most sincere in both words and actions.

Successful people born November 23: Theodore D. Weld, abolitionist. Frank Morrison, labor leader. Richard Croker, Tammany chief. Fanny Ward, actress. Franklin Pierce, fourteenth President of the United States.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

THE use of a saucer in connection with any potted plant may be a benefit or an evil, according to the way it is used. Of course, we all know that some provision must be made to protect our woodwork and floors from the water which runs through the hole in the bottom of the pot.

When a saucer is used it should be emptied every time water is detected in the bottom of it. If this is not done, the plant will soon begin to show signs of fading. The reason for this condition is the fact that the fine rootlets in the bottom of the pot, if kept constantly standing in water, will soon decay and undermine the general constitution of the plant.

To avoid this, it is wise to use a saucer two sizes larger than the one designed to fit the pot. This should be half filled with small pebbles, which can be purchased in any seed store. The excess water from the pot will run among the stones and thus prevent the lower strata of soil from being constantly in a condition of mud.

Perhaps the most practical way to care for a group of house plants, which must be near the light, and therefore on the window sill, is to have a tinsmith make a tin or galvanized iron tray to fit the measurements of the window ledge. It should be the length of the window and about 18 inches wide and 2½ inches deep. When completed the bottom of the tray should be filled to the depth of 1 inch with pebbles on which the pots may be set without saucers.

When such an arrangement is used, the surplus water drains into the pebbles and is soon evaporated. Plants so situated may be watered without any fear of overwatering. The evaporating of the surplus water will prove a real benefit to the plants, as it will provide the moist atmosphere necessary for all plant life and so hard to attain in the average house.

THE MEMORY IN CONCUSSION.

WHEN a man is hit on the head violently and suffers from concussion of the brain in consequence, he does not remember what hit him, or how, and generally says so. If he always said so he would spare his friends some trouble. Occasionally, he remembers things that did not happen.

A London letter which recently appeared in the Journal of the American Medical Association contained a report on "Concussion and Memory," by C. W. Somerville. Dr. Somerville found that when a man had been knocked hard enough to have concussion of the brain his memory of what happened generally stopped a little short of the accident. He generally remembered what led up to it, but not the accident itself, or what followed it. In most cases memory stopped a definite though short period of time before the accident occurred. This was not easy to understand, though it may have been the result of shock from a paralyzing fear. For instance, a man struck by an automobile so as to produce concussion might remember seeing the automobile approaching, but he would have no recollection of what happened in the last fraction of a second before he was struck, possibly because the realization of what was coming threw his thinking apparatus out of gear. In every case reported by Dr. Somerville, the subject had no memory of the accident itself.

Of greater interest from the medico-legal standpoint are certain tendencies to invent things to remember, and usually in good faith. In some cases the days during which unconsciousness or "mental wooziness" lasted are dropped and the patient insists on a new set of dates.

In one case the accident occurred on the third and it was not until the tenth that the patient was ready to take up the thread of his life. He insisted that the tenth was the third and reckoned accordingly. A man on a bicycle was run down by another bicyclist. When he became conscious in the hospital he insisted it was the physician in attendance who had caused the accident.

He had a detailed recollection of it all and this he repeated in good faith. The physician was compelled to defend himself by proving that he had been nowhere near the place of the accident. A woman was found shot. She was unconscious. Presently she became conscious, whereupon she recited a detailed story of how the accident occurred, telling just how the doctor had shot her. In this case the physician had great difficulty in meeting the charge.

In the discussion two physicians repeated their experiences after being knocked senseless. One was thrown and rendered unconscious. On the way to the hospital he delivered a lecture on trephining. When his mind became clear he had no recollection of this lecture.

IT IS NOT DANGEROUS.

Miss A. D. writes: Is it dangerous to drink a quart of hot water, with a teaspoonful of salt in it, a half hour before breakfast? It is the best I have ever tried to move my bowels and I want to continue drinking it if it is not harmful. I have been told that it is very dangerous to drink the salt and water.

REPLY.

5 Movie Houses Defy Blue Law for Charity

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 22.—Five motion picture houses were open here tonight despite protest of the Cumberland Ministerial Union to State authorities that operation of the houses on Sunday would be in violation of the law. The entire gross of all the places that gave shows, it was stated, would be turned over to the emergency charity relief fund. The shows were well patronized, there having been heavy advance sale of tickets.

One theater proprietor desired to open, but as he had been fined last winter for conducting Sunday movies and placed on parole, it was feared he might be in contempt of court should he give a show. His was the only house that opened on Sunday last winter to give charity shows, but he discontinued following court action.

Cyprian Bishops Land In England Destitute

Hull, England, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Looking like destitute emigrants, Bishop Mesionas and Bishop Makarios, who were banished from the island of Cyprus in connection with the recent revolt, arrived today aboard an Italian cargo steamer.

Treasury Bill Sale Is Set for Friday

$100,000,000 Offering to Be Redeemable on March 2, 1932.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Mellon announced yesterday the Treasury would sell $100,000,000 in Treasury bills to the highest bidder Friday. This will bring to $50,000,000 the preponderance of such securities issued over those redeemed in the month. The new bills, which will be for 93 days, will be redeemed at face value March 2, 1932.

The Treasury has borrowed an average of $50,000,000 a week since the first of the fiscal year—July 1, but such borrowing has been largely a turnover to retire an equal amount of securities.

This month, however, in two of the weekly borrowings, the Treasury sold $15,000,000 more than was retired.

Manila Fire Costs $1,000,000.

Manila, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Fire of undetermined origin tonight destroyed the offices, rope factory, ship chandlery and hardware store of Ynchausti & Co., importers and exporters. Company officials estimated the loss at $1,000,000.

NEW LEAGUE PLANS BRIDGE TOURNAMENT

Three-Day Event to Be Held at Shoreham Hotel, Beginning Dec. 10.

Stimulated by enthusiasm aroused in contract bridge by the successful Washington Post tournament last May, local devotees of the game have formed the Washington Bridge League with E. B. Eynon, jr., as president, and yesterday made announcement of the first tournament to be held under auspices of that organization.

The events will take place at the Shoreham Hotel, on December 10, 11 and 12. There will be an afternoon session at 2 o'clock and an evening session at 8:30 o'clock each day. More than 1,000 invitations have been sent out by the committee in charge to bridge players in Washington and elsewhere, and these and others who may wish to participate and who conform to the rules of the tournament will be eligible, upon making application. Membership in the league is not necessary for permission to engage in the tournament.

The tournament will open on Thursday afternoon, December 10, with the first round for the contract pair championship, and will be continued on the following afternoon, all entries competing. Thereafter, a qualifying section will be arranged on the basis of cumulative match point score to compete in the finals on Saturday.

Cup for Champions.

The pair making the highest percentage in match points during the entire three sessions, cumulative average, will be adjudged the champions. A championship cup, the donor of which is to be made known later, will be awarded. There will also be individual cups and prizes for runners-up in the contest.

The first and second rounds of the contract team matches will take place on Thursday and Friday evenings. The four teams having won the greatest percentage of matches in these sessions will participate in a "round robin" on Saturday night for the championship. Decision will be based upon the score of that day only. The championship team will be awarded the custody for one year of the Eynon Cup, donated by E. B. Eynon, jr., president of the Washington Bridge League. Individual members of the winning team will receive cups for their permanent possession, and prizes also will be given runners-up. Possession of the championship cup is to be retained for one year.

At both sessions on Saturday there will be consolation games open only to contestants eliminated in the championship events, and for winners in these there will be special prizes.

Other Open Games.

Open games of auction as well as contract will be arranged for each session for those who do not desire to participate in the championship events. Top score pins will be awarded winners in each section.

The tournament committee consists of A. P. Stockvis, chairman; W. R. Lewis, Miss Mazie Bule, Mrs. Frank B. Guest, Frank B. Lord and Van A. Clarke.

Mrs. Charles Keene, chairman; Mrs. Marian Barre, Mrs. D. E. Stephen, Mrs. G. Brown Hill, Mrs. John K. Freiot, Mrs. Frank B. Guest, Mrs. Howard Priest, Mrs. Alma Byrne, Mrs. Marguerite E. Lord, Miss Mazie Bule, Miss Lucille C. Smith and Miss Mary Beadle comprise the committee of hostesses.

R. E. Needham will officiate as tournament manager, and Russell Baldwin as scorer.

The tournament will operate with the approval of the American Bridge League and its rules will govern play.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THIS column is, indebted to Mr. Hubbard Keavy, whom, of course, you know by this time as chief of our West Coast finger-in-the-wind department, for a little story that throws a bit of illumination upon the real character of the much-maligned Mary Nolan—formerly Imogen Wilson, of the musical comedy stage—once again pounced upon by the law and summoned into court to explain her failure to meet a $50 debt.

It seems that Mr. Keavy was present one day, a few years back, when Mary breezed into the office of a high executive in filmdom, leaped upon a chair, brandishing a riding crop, and launched into some high-voltage and ridiculous inanities, apropos of nothing whatever.

"The studio employes are getting up a little fund," said the owner of the desk on which Mary now was trying to jig, "for that truck driver who was so badly hurt last week."

It seemed he was wasting his breath telling about some poor unfortunate.

Mary immediately became rational. The change was startling. Then she said:

"How much was he getting? Forty dollars a week! Is that all?"

Then she picked up a phone and called her secretary.

"Mr. —— will give you the name and address of a man who was injured. Send him a check for $50 every week until he's able to work."

"There's no need of that, Mary," interrupted the man who was about to suggest that she contribute $10.

"He was working in my picture, wasn't he? And don't solicit money from the guys he worked with. They need theirs. I got plenty."

There is no way of determining how often Mary played the good angel like that, but it is a safe assumption that Mr. Keavy was not an eye-witness to the only demonstration of her kindly impulses that ever occurred.

She was typical of the old order in Hollywood. On top and wading in dollars today; penniless and in debt tomorrow.

Mary Nolan was so eccentric, so mercurial, so inconsistent that she had few friends—which is, perhaps, one of the reasons she was arrested!

And if you care for coincidences, it happens that when "Over the Hill" was first made in silent form by Fox, with Mary Carr and Johnny Walker in the roles, now being played on F street by Mae Marsh and James Dunn, Arthur de Titta, territorial manager of Fox Movietone News, with headquarters in Washington, was assistant cameraman.

The present audible version of the famous story was photographed by John Seitz, who, contemporaneously with its first Washington presentation at the Fox, just happens to be in town filming scenes for Will Rogers' next picture which is said to be heavily tinctured with national politics.

So if you happen to overhear a couple of apparently daffy young fellows prattling away on the progress of the movies during the past decade, it will be Mr. Seitz and Mr. de Titta—not necessarily in the order named.

Should you notice one of those "circus" lines trailing away from the box-office window of the National this morning, the reason need not be far to seek.

It will merely mean that Russell Thomas, house treasurer, got the old wicket open on time and a lot of the neighbors have come down to get their seats for the first edition of the good Dr. Ziegfeld's justly celebrated "Follies" to play the Capital in five years—the twenty-third, or latest, production in the series that began in 1907.

The big revue, headed by Harry Richman, Hal Le Roy, Mitzi Mayfair and Jack Pearl, comes to Washington Monday, November 30.

Not to be outdone by the other branches of the theater, extra performances for the relief of the unemployed will be given in all of the 25 theaters constituting the new Columbia Burlesque Circuit. I am informed by Jimmy Lake, manager of the Gayety, that orders issued by President I. H. Herk of the Columbia wheel, direct that the gross receipts shall be donated to the local authorized agencies in each city.

At 8:45 o'clock tonight the most accurate penny-guessers in the contest recently conducted by the Fox Theater to determine the disposition of five radio receiving sets, offered as prize awards, will be announced from the stage of the theater. The contest closed last Thursday night.

Winning any part of this contest is no expectation of mine. It didn't take long to discover that with only the experience gained by estimating the contents of my own purse on which to base a guess, I couldn't somehow even get into the 'teens!

However, I have the tin cup if some one will only donate a few pencils!

THE THEATER

"ALL OVER ITALY." Fourth in a series of five pictured travel revues presented on Sunday afternoons by Burton Holmes. At the National Theater. Reviewed by C. Ransom.

In the fourth of his current series of travel talks, at the National Theater yesterday afternoon, Burton Holmes carried a delighted audience along on a sweeping survey of the beauty spots of Italy, covering much ground already familiar to his followers, but finding new points of observation in the well-known cities and entering many byways seldom trod by the tourist or caught by the lecturer's camera.

Beauty has been the keynote in his selection of subjects, so that the general effect is to exhibit the land as one of boundless fascination, unqualified repose and pleasure. Yet he has not wholly neglected the lighter human aspect, and for a touch of variety he has introduced at the close of the lecture some reminders of Italy's heroic mountain warfare in sterner years.

We enter Italy in the region of Mont Blanc, circling the peak by airplane and approaching neighboring pinnacles over seas of cloud, thus taking a mean advantage over the laborious mountain climber. We enjoy glimpses of the Matterhorn and other familiar Swiss peaks from remote Italian valleys. Thence we come to the region of the Italian lakes, touring among charming villas and romantic islets, and pass on to glimpses of little-known villages and the greater cities of the north, Milan, Turin, Verona, Padua. To familiar vistas of the Grand Canal and the Piazzetta at Venice there are happily added films taken in traversing some of the smaller watery byways and some of the narrow footways, not often disclosed to those who know Venice only from pictures.

In Florence, too, the camera travels beyond the Duomo and the Ponte Vecchio and shows us lesser known streets and glimpses of every-day life and industry. Rome is passed over lightly, except for some exquisite photographs in natural color of famous interiors, such as the Vatican Museum and the Sistine Chapel. Naples is touched on the way to Vesuvius, and here Mr. Holmes brings in some remarkable films that he obtained when he saw the volcano in eruption in 1906.

Thence we pass to the still rarer beauties of the southern coasts, Amalfi and Capri, cruise in a motion film past smoldering Stromboli and close the tour with views of many widely separated points of interest in Sicily, from Syracuse and the region of Mount Etna to the lonely Temple of Segesta, at the western end of the island. Last of all, we turn back in space and time to join the lecturer as he watches shellfire on the Austrian front in 1918 and the hauling of great guns by hundreds of soldiers up the Alpine slopes.

THREE PRETENDERS CLOSE TO NATIONAL GRID TITLE

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THEY peeled the moss off the field goal last Saturday and exposed it to the November sunlight to engineer the defeats of Notre Dame and Harvard and once more establish the foot as an integral part of football.

The advent of the forward pass relegated the field goal to the sidelines along with the bustle and the hoop. Knute Rockne, playing end for Notre Dame in 1913, caught so many passes from Gus Dorais one afternoon on the plains of West Point that the football world was stunned by the defeat of Army. That Notre Dame Team solidly implanted the forward pass as the most destructive weapon in any team's equipment.

With the growing popularity of the forward pass, the field goal lost its effectiveness, comparatively. Coaches who used to spend long hours training their charges in the art of drop kicking and placement kicking, forgot about the field goal in the forward passing frenzy and in many cases the aerial offensives superseded the running game as the basis of the attack.

The rules chiefs took a hand in the subordination of the field goal back in 1928 when they ordered the goal posts set back 10 yards behind the goal line on the theory that the presence of the uprights, even though padded, accounted for too many injuries, and seriously handicapped an attacking team if the ball was in close proximity to the posts.

The effect was to lengthen by 10 yards every field goal kicking attempt. Kicks ranging from 20 to 30 yards which were the most frequent, took on an added 10-yard hazard. A 30-yard kick in the days before 1928 became a 40-yard kick with the removal of the goal posts 10 yards back. Coaches and quarter backs were reluctant to attempt field goals under these conditions. The forward pass was the thing.

Specialists in the art of field goal kicking dwindled. Whereas every team boasted at least one trained kicker in the heyday of the field goal, recent seasons have demonstrated a woeful lack of these specialists with a safe guess being that 50 per cent of the colleges have not attempted a field goal throughout an entire season.

The fact that it was Notre Dame and Harvard that fell before the thrust of the field goal augurs well for the new popularity of the three-point scoring vehicle. The transcendent boots of Johnny Baker and Albie Booth took place in the two outstanding games of the Nation on the same day and gave coaches and quarter backs a consciousness that they possess weapons that might win many a ball game.

A contributing factor to the scarcity of field goals besides the forward pass is the lust for touchdowns that coaches and quarter backs are prone to display. Too often they hold the belief that the lack of a scoring play, either by a pass or running attempt, was a reflection on the team's offensive power. But Yale and Southern California were glad to take their field goals and call it quits.

Proponents of the passing and running attack can point with justification to the fact that Notre Dame's great teams never depended upon the field goal to score in recent memory. But Notre Dame is Notre Dame. Rockne's carefully devised scoring plays left little scope for the field goal and his offensives were so uniformly successful that three points rarely meant the difference between victory and defeat.

But even Notre Dame teams have not neglected the art of drop and placement kicking. Against Penn, they successfully kicked the point after each one of their seven touchdowns and against Southern California yesterday, they added the extra point twice.

The spectator has been cheated with the eclipse of the field goal. There is no more spectacular play in the game than an attempted kick for three points. These three points usually mean the difference between victory and defeat, or a tie.

When the rules makers moved back the goal posts they robbed the fans of those spectacular stands in "the shadow of the goal post." How, now, can a team make a stand in the shadow of its own goal posts when the goal posts are so far away they cast no shadow?

Death, Injury Causes School Football Ban

St. Edward, Nebr., Nov. 22 (U.P.).—High school football was abolished here today after the death of Allan Wake, 16, the second student to die of football injuries this week. Wake, a full back, died today of injuries sustained earlier in the season, unaware that William Weed, 18-year-old end, who had given his blood in an attempt to save him, also was dead.

Weed died Friday of a fractured skull received during a game with Oscelo High School a week after he had given nearly a pint of his blood to Wake in a transfusion. Wake was injured early in the season and developed an abscess.

Citizens, aroused by the boys' deaths, protested against the "brutality" of the game to Forrest Long, president of the school board, and announcement was made that the sport had been abolished.

HOCKEY TOURNEY.

Montclair, N. J., Nov. 22.—The three-day Southeast field hockey tournament, featuring teams from Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and North New Jersey, came to an end this afternoon at the Montclair Athletic Club here before a large crowd. The first team scored a 2 to 0 win over the reserves in the sole battle of the day. Holding most of the posts on both teams, the result of a sensational play on Friday and Saturday were nineteen Philadelphia girls, headed by Anne Townsend, who is also a star in national women's tennis.

Apaches Beat Mohawks, 13 to 6

Drive of Hawks Near End Is Stopped; Snyder Stars.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

A FIGHTING Apache eleven, that fought as though its very life blood was at stake, turned back a savage last-minute attack of the challenging Mohawks to win a 13-6 victory and retain its District championship at Griffith Stadium yesterday. It was the Apaches' third win over the Hawks in the last four years. Only a few weeks ago the two clubs had battled to a 7-7 deadlock, but Seymour Hall's men stod out head and shoulders over those of Patsy Donovan yesterday, and left no doubt in the minds of the spectatores as to which was the better team.

The Apaches were on trial before a jury of some 2,000 fans yesterday, and they realized it. St. Mary's Celtics had trounced them the week before by a score of 25-0, and there were cries that the team, now chiefly composed of former college players, was not as good as the old neighborhood gang of a few years ago. "Tell us it ain't so, Seymour, tell us it ain't so," they wailed. Seymour told them, the team told them, and most convincing of all, the final score told its own story.

Fouts Little Help to Mohawks.

The Mohawks may be league leaders in the South Atlantic circuit, but they can't beat the Apaches, as many a wise wagerer knows this morning.

One of the contributing factors to the defeat of Donovan's men was the play of Leon Fouts, who caused no end of trouble after the Mohawk-Irvington game, which led to a protest by the latter team. Fouts conclusively demonstrated his rights to the third string full back job with George Washington University's team, and on the strength of his performance yesterday he may have even made the fourth team. From an Apache viewpoint, it was tough that the Mohawks did not have two or three more players of the same name in their back field.

Fouts scored the Mohawks' only touchdown early in the first quarter after they had worked the ball down to the Apaches' 5-yard stripe. Fouts tossed a pass to Helvestine that netted 25 yards, and then took a lateral pass from Snyder to place the ball on the Apaches' 15-yard line. A 5-yard penalty and Helvestine's plunge off-tackle placed the ball on the 3-yard mark, and then Fouts took the responsibility of carrying it over. He tore off huge gains of several inches on three successive trips with the pigskin, bringing the ball one foot from the goal. The Apaches, thinking they had won a moral vic-

Injured N. C. Captain Now Out of Danger

Durham, N. C., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Pierce "Kid" Brewer, Duke football captain, who was injured in the game with University of North Carolina here Saturday, was fully conscious today. Physicians said he was much better and said he was out of danger.

Brewer sustained a severe cerebral concussion. He was unconscious until early this morning. Physicians said it would be impossible for Brewer to play against Washington and Lee next Saturday, the last game of the year for Duke.

BRITISH TIE VA. SOCCER TEAM, 2-2

2,000 Watch Newport News Team Held to Draw.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., usually sends a good soccer team to Washington and yesterday was no exception. British United Club found the Virginians to be stubborn opponents and the local kickers were fortunate to earn a 2-to-2 draw in an extra period match in the third round of the United States Football Association's cup tie tourney.

The Newport News squad gave the District Britishers a terrific battle until the summer-like heat, mingled with the 180, or more, mile ride here before the game, took its toll and then and then only did the English kickers compare with the visiting soccerists.

Starting in the first half, the Newport News crowd displayed better passing and condition than the Uniteds and pressed the latter to a penalty kick in the first half that was converted by Janes, of the visitors, into a marker that looked like sufficient for victory at that stage of the game.

Janes Makes Score.

Even in the second half, until the final fifteen minutes of play, the Virginia booters had an edge. Early in the last period Janes sent a fast shot by Jones for the second marker for the shipbuilding Virginia club and it continued to press. Matters looked hopeless for the Uniteds a few minutes after the second marker, when Janes again scored, but he was off side and the goal was disallowed.

It required strong hearts on the part of the British United eleven to tie up the game after the first 65 of the regular 90 minutes of play. The visitors, with the aid of two of the ablest backs ever performing here, A. Mitchell and D. Jacques, repulsed with apparent ease the worthy attacks of Jack Watts and Jack Turner during the majority of the first two halves.

Once the two Jacks broke through the Virginia two-man defense and then fate seemed to have combined forces with the visitors. First Turner and then Watts shot at open goals, but the former hit the upright and the latter headed into the crosspiece.

Instead of quaking under adversities and apparent fate the English kickers blazed a fiery attack at the Newport goal and so relentless was the charge that fatigued defense gave Trojan Players Praise Performance of Notre Dame.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Five of the Southern California football players have herewith given their impressions of the Trojans' 16-14 victory over Notre Dame Saturday at South Bend).

(Copyright, 1931, by the United Press.)

CHICAGO, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—"Team play won for us after we seemd hopelessly beaten," Erny Pinckert, Southern California's stalwart blocking half back, told the United Press today. "It was the will to win in the mind of every Trojan player which was finally galvanized into one desperate, dynamic rally which overthrew the reign of one of the greatest football teams I have ever seen or played against.

"Man for man I think Notre Dame is as good as last year, but they haven't the team play. Man for man we are about the same as last year, but we had that team play—eleven men working and driving toward one objective.

"They say that Notre Dame used several guards and tackles and numerous replacements when the tide shifted, but we never noticed their faces. We were going after their bodies and legs.

"Notre Dame overshifted on the defense in the last period and this paved the way for Howard Jones' old power to play to gain consistently.

Schwartz and Kurth Praised.

"I think Schwartz and Kurth were Notre Dame's greatest players and certainly deserve consideration as all-Americans."

Johnny Baker, the Trojans' running guard, who did not come into the game until Notre Dame had a 14-0 lead, does not give himself any credit for winning the game with a place-kick in the last minute and a half of play.

"I guess I didn't get such a thrill out of that place-kick as I will as time goes by, because we were all on edge and couldn't realize exactly what was happening. Behind a line that held like ours and with a cool-headed player like Mohler holding the ball, any grammar school kid could have booted it over.

"It was the team that made the field goal. My part was the easiest of all. Gordon Clark made a great block to stop a Notre Dame tackler who had broken through the line which did as much as anything to enable us to win."

Capt. Stanley Williamson took the complete responsibility of the game on his shoulders when he refused to allow Homer Griffith, sent in by Coach Howard Jones, to try for a drop-kick, to come into the game in

Booth Finally Wins From Harvard

Role of Hero, Long Deferred, Very Sweet in Reality.

All-American Berth Virtually Assured for Wood.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—It's a great year for the law of averages in the whirl of sports. It caught up with the celebrated Pepper Martin. It turned the scales finally against such champions as the Athletics and Notre Dame. As a climax, the charmed career of Harvard's superathlete, William Barry Wood, jr., has been added to its victims and the acclaim of the Eastern gridiron melodrama belongs today to Yale's little boy blue, Albie Booth.

Three years ago when Booth entered Yale as the home-town hero of New Haven, bright college years of continued gridiron glory were deflected in the optimism of Eli adherents. The mighty midget seemed cast for an heroic role, only to find the breaks and Harvard, especially Harvard's tall, slim Barry Wood, very much against him. As a freshman, sophomore and junior, Booth failed to break through the Crimson barriers.

Two years ago, on a bleak November day, Booth was unwrapped on the frozen gridiron and tossed into the Harvard game here for an attempted drop-kick that turned into a boomerang. The kick was blocked, Booth was smothered and the Crimson counter-marched to a decisive touchdown.

Booth Makes Good.

Skip two more years and the scene is almost identical. Harvard and Yale are scoreless. Yale is pounding at the Crimson goal with only three minutes to go before the final gun. Again, the situation calls for a drop-kick by Booth. This time even the weather gods are smiling, for it is as balmy as a day in June. Albie drops back, his teammates block the Harvard charge perfectly and the Yale captain's aim is sure and true.

A drop-kicked field goal, three precious points. They were sufficient for Yale to turn the tables, finally; for Booth to beat his arch-rival, Barry Wood, and give Yale its first delirious thrill of victory since 1927.

It was a stunning setback for Harvard, the favorite, the unbeaten and the pace-setter of Eastern gridiron machines. Conqueror of Army, Texas, Dartmouth and Holy Cross, the Crimson's hopes of an unbeaten season for the first time since 1913 went soaring into the soft November twilight on the arching flight of Booth's beautiful boot. Once again the foot proved mightier than the hand that throws the Harvard pass, for Yale almost completely spiked Barry Wood's most dangerous weapon in this surging battle for revenge.

Colonials, Hoyas, Cards In Charity Grid Game Rally

A "pep" meeting to generate interest in the unemployment benefit football game scheduled in Griffith Stadium December 12, when Alabama's Rose Bowl team will meet George Washington, Catholic and Georgetown universities, is to be held tomorrow at 12:15 p. m. in front of the District Building. The principal speakers are the head football coaches of the local institutions, shown above, left to right—"Dutch" Bergman, Catholic; Jim Pixlee, George Washington, and Tommy Mills, Georgetown.

Coaches, Captains, Cheer Leaders to Tell D. C. Fans Tomorrow What Alabama May Expect in Dec. 12 Contest.

COACHES, team captains, cheer leaders, students and alumni of George Washington, Catholic and Georgetown universities will clash in oratorical combat tomorrow in front of the stately District Building. The only thing missing from what will be an old-fashioned collegiate pep meeting are the football teams of the three institutions involved. The teams will save their voices and brains—and brawn, for the more exacting task scheduled for them on December 12, when they will meet the University of Alabama, Rose Bowl champions of 1930, in three 20-minute games in Griffith Stadium for the benefit of Washington's unemployed.

Coaches Pixlee, of George Washington; Bergman, of Catholic, and Mills, of Georgetown, will address the gathering (everybody is welcome) for two minutes each. Their talks will deal with the charity game in general and just what their respective teams' prospects are for defeating the famous Crimson Tide from Tuscaloosa, conquerors of Washington State last New Year's Day in the classic Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, Calif.

Cheer Leaders on Program.

The cheer leaders will talk for two minutes each and the captains of the three local teams will consume one minute each in giving opinions of what Capital fans may expect from their teams against the common opponent.

Helping to "pep up" the occasion, a band will be on hand to render selections representative of the colleges. Then the cheer leaders will direct the old grads and supporters of the schools in a short session of lung exercise.

According to the committee in charge, the entire affair will consume but 15 minutes, beginning promptly at 12:15 p. m. Police will keep traffic from interfering.

Hobart Gridmen Win After 3 Lean Years

Geneva, N. Y., Nov. 22 (U.P.).—There were plenty of celebrations of football victories in America's colleges last night and today, but none was quite as enthusiastic as that of the less than 400 youths who call Hobart alma mater.

For three years Hobart students had waited for a football victory to celebrate, and when Seaders took the ball through the entire Rochester University team Saturday for 57 yards and a touchdown, more than just another celebration occurred here and in the team's Rochester hotel.

The score was 13 to 7, but the figures were not important in Geneva so long as Hobart stood on the long side.

It was a profitable night for the barbers, too. Four weeks ago a group of students pledged themselves not to shave until Hobart had a football victory. When the last whistle blew in Rochester Saturday, those students hunted out the nearest barber shops and disbanded the "no win, no shave" club before joining the frolic.

Harvard and Notre Dame Erased

Tulane, S. California and Northwestern Are Leaders.

Trojans, Green Wave May Meet in Rose Bowl Game.

By HERBERT W. BARKER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Three pretenders, Tulane, Southern California and Northwestern, sat close to the national football throne today, ready to assume the royal robes, if and when a clear title claim can validly be made.

There were other possible contenders, notably Tennessee and Southern Methodist, among colleges playing major schedules, but their right to place so close to the throne did not seem quite so clearly defined.

If, as most observers expect, Tulane is invited to battle Southern California in the annual Rose Bowl game, the title situation will be considerably clarified, although Northwestern will have to be given careful consideration if they whip Purdue next Saturday to wind up a season unmarred by defeat.

Beaten back just when both figured to have a hand in any argument over a national award were Notre Dame and Harvard—both by the margin of a field goal.

Notre Dame Finally Stopped.

Notre Dame, which had run through 26 games since 1928 without suffering defeat, finally were forced to bow to a series of last-period thrusts by the powerful Trojans, of Southern California, yesterday, 16-14, Johnny Baker booting a field goal for the winning points in the last minute of play.

Harvard, generally considered the class of the East, bowed to Yale, 3 to 0, on Albie Booth's last quarter drop-kick from the 12-yard line.

Southern California's gallant comeback against Notre Dame, after trailing 14 to 0, entitles the Trojans to national consideration despite the defeat they suffered in their first game at the hands of St. Mary's, of Oakland, Calif. Tulane, unbeaten and untied, plowed through Sewanee, 40 to 0, and Northwestern handed Iowa a 19-to-0 beating.

Yale's victory over Harvard, of course, was the high spot of the Eastern program, but the one big upset of the day saw the Bucknell Bisons wind up an undefeated season by overthrowing the previously unbeaten Fordham Rams, 14 to 13. Southern Methodist found Navy a tough foe, but finaly won, 13 to 6. Columbia and Syracuse played to a scoreless tie and Lafayette whipped Lehigh, 13 to 7, after a bitter struggle.

In the Big Ten, the big surprise of the day was Michigan's 6-to-0 victory over the powerful Gophers, of Minnesota. Ohio State ran up a 40-to-0 count on Illinois; Purdue turned back Indiana, 19 to 0, and Wisconsin nosed out Chicago, 12 to 7.

Nebraska Gains Title.

Nebraska clinched the Big Six title with a 23 to 0 win over Iowa State as Kansas turned back Missouri, 14 to 0. Drake won the Missouri Valley Conference crown with a 6 to 0 verdict over Grinnell. Detroit surprised with a 20 to 13 triumph over Michigan State.

In the Far West, California finally broke a seven-year string of Stanford victories, beating the Indians, 6 to 0, before a crowd of 90,000. A third period touchdown gave Oregon a 13 to 6 win over the University of California at Los Angeles.

There was a lull in the South, where Tulane's easy conquest of Sewanee was the only game affecting the title situation, Tennessee being idle. Georgia had a fight on her hands to stop Auburn, 12 to 6, and Duke surprised by holding North Carolina to a scoreless tie. Georgia Tech, showing further improvement, crushed Florida, 23 to 0; South Carolina whipped North Carolina State, 21 to 0, and Maryland outpointed Washington and Lee 13 to 7.

Texas Christian and Rice checked in with Southwest Conference wins, the former over Baylor, 19 to 6, and Rice over Arkansas, 26 to 12.

Temple's 18 to 0 win over Denver was the high spot in the Rocky Mountain district, where Colorado University turned back Colorado College, 17 to 7, in their annual clash.

Tulane to Be Invited To Coast, Is Report

New Orleans, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—Tulane University, generally accepted as an outstanding undefeated and untied football team of the Nation, will be invited within the next four or five days, to play the University of Southern California in the famous Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, Calif., on New Year's Day, it was reported reliably here today.

Commenting on the invitation, Charles L. Dufour, football writer for the New Orleans Item-Tribune, said he had learned on unimpeachable authority that Tulane would receive the bid and would accept it.

Northwestern, which was also considered as the opponent for U. S. C., is definitely out now because it is scheduled to meet Purdue in a charity game after the season ends and because the Big Ten Conference has shown "no inclination whatever to change its rule on post-season games," Dufour said.

TWO $10,000 HANDICAPS FEATURE FINAL WEEK AT BOWIE

Mutuel Play Far Ahead Of 1930

Vice President Pays Tribute to Burch, Turfman.

Whipper Cracker Favored in Feature Race Today.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 22. The seventh day of the Bowie meeting of thirteen days is featured by the Long Green Purse for 3-year-olds, and supporting this are the Genteel for 2-year-olds and an all-aged purse, with four other races, only two of the races on the entire program being at sprint distances.

Bowie will continue to have a monopoly of racing—omitting Tanforan—until Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, when two of the winter tracks get into action, one at Jefferson Park, New Orleans, and the other at Agua Caliente. The meeting at Bowie has been a revelation to the turf, for, aided by perfect weather so far, the crowds for each day, during the last week, exceeded those of last year, and the parimutuel betting has shown a larger volume of money than corresponding days of a year ago.

Bowie's climax was Saturday, when its largest attendance witnessed its best day of racing, and the "handle" of the mutuels amounted to $680,000 in round numbers, many thousands above that of last year on the first Saturday of the session.

Horses of high class performed in the various races, but especial distinction was won by Walter Salmon's Dr. Freeland in the Southern Maryland Handicap, in which he earned $25,450; William I. duPont's White Clover, $4,000 for placing; Mrs. John D. Hertz's Valenciennes, $2,000 for third, and A. C. Bostwick's Mate, $1,000 fourth money, a total distribution of $32,450 in the one race.

Unusual honor was paid to the late W. P. Burch, pioneer horseman, after the winning of the W. P. Burch Memorial by the great Balko, when Vice President Charles Curtis extolled the character of that rugged sportsman when presenting the cup and a floral wreath to Bud Stottler, trainer of the Sagamore Stable, and a replica of the cup to Mrs. Charles Amory, owner of the Sagamore Stable. A touch of sentiment was added when the flowers were sent to Willie Nertney, star jockey, languishing in a hospital after his injuries at Pimlico in a fall.

Such gatherings and such high-class racing as that of Saturday give to Maryland racing its color and its atmosphere. In his references to Mr. Burch, the Vice President said: "Burch was one of the pioneer horsemen, with an acquaintance extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and one of the very best the turf has ever produced."

Two important stakes enhance the current week at Bowie, the $10,000 added Thanksgiving Handicap, and on Saturday the $10,000 added Endurance Handicap, the last for 2-year-olds.

Reverting to the program tomorrow, seven are to go in the Long Green purse. WHIPPER CRACKER has been improving, and this is his easiest race. It may be close between him and GIGANTIC, which nipped WHIPPER CRACKER for place Saturday. This was GIGANTIC'S best recent race, while WHIPPER CRACKER has been close up in several starts in Maryland. MINE SWEEPER has early speed and may hold on. MEASURE would have a chance on her best races.

FIRST RACE—The Marshall Field, Mrs. Corning entry, is regarded best of the 2-year-olds in the first race. This entry is composed of MERRILY ON, GOOBER and LANSON. Either of these has a chance to win. C. V. Whitney's HABERNERO will be one of the choices, and should be the contender. FLOOR WALKER was beaten a nose in his last and is expected to get part of the purse.

SECOND RACE—BACCIOCCO has had a rest, has worked well, and is selected to win the second race. This high Time gelding ran last time at Laurel and was fourth to Grand Prince. GUN ROYAL, if he gets in the race, should be the contender.

THIRD RACE—For all-aged horses should go to SNAPPY SNUB, which beat Angry Plume. BLACK PATRICIA, second to Fairdale last out, should place, and FAIR FOLLY, which beat Justiciary at Pimlico, seems a strong contender.

FOURTH RACE—FLAG TRICK should win the Genteel Purse. She was pulled up in her last start, but in the previous contest had beaten BOSCOBEL, which again should be the contender, and DELICACY appears best of the others.

SIXTH RACE—SHIVA is selected to win the sixth race for 2-year-olds at a mile and 70 yards. He has been running with a higher class of horses. KLIP DRIFT has worked very fast and raced well in the West. NANSEN has class and on his best races would be very dangerous.

SEVENTH RACE—GAY BIRD is reported to be ready for brackets. KESTKO, beaten a nose by Live One at Pimlico, is rated the contender. JUDICIARY may get third money.

DAVID NELSON DENMAN III was made a member of the Pennsylvania State Legislature, House of Representatives, March 30, 1931. David's mother, Hon. Mary T. Denman, is also a duly elected member of the House, having served in the 1931 session at Harrisburg. His official entry into affairs of the Commonwealth came after a resolution had been read, considered, and unanimously adopted.

The resolution read, in part, as follows:

"Whereas, the Easter Bunny, in advance of his customary advent, has, in the guise of the stork, left at the home of Hon. Mary T. Denman, in Latrobe, a baby boy, and

Whereas, for the first time in the history of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania a member of this House has become a mother, and

"Whereas, this boy by reason of a rich heritage of mentality coming from a father and mother who are both members of the bar of Westmoreland County, and from a mother who has already achieved distinction as a statesman of ability, is well qualified to take his place as the 209th member of the House, be it

"Resolved, that an unlimited leave of absence be granted to the Hon. Mary T. Denman and her son, and that the House extend its unstinted congratulations to them both."

Right from the first, David proved to be a born politician. His first official action was to place a big OKAY on the MILK BILL.

BOOTH GETS REVENGE IN HARVARD GAME

Wood has completed his varsity football career for Harvard. By his performances over a long winning stretch, he apparently has clinched the All-America quarter back post for 1931 on a surging wave of approval that can not be stemmed by a 3-point defeat in a game that hung in the balance right up to the last.

Booth will face at least two, possibly three more football foes before he rounds out his varsity campaign but the capstone of Albie's spectacular career is the ride he took atop heaving Eli shoulders on Harvard's gridiron after yesterday's triumph.

Two Mayors, 300 Women Among 1,701 Spectators Who Are "Frisked" As They Enter Gates; 3,000 Turned Away.

OSSINING, N. Y., Nov. 22 (A.P.). A policeman's football team drove home the old slogan, "You Can't Win," today by defeating the Sing Sing convict aggregation, 13 to 0. It was the inmates' second game. They defeated a Naval Militia team last Sunday, 33 to 0, and had cherished high hopes of doing something similar to the "cops."

It was a faster, smoother outfit that donned the Blue and Red and faced the orange-garbed police from Fort Jervis, N. Y., this afternoon, but the best they could muster, to the cheers of 2,300 fellow inmates in the stands, was not enough to get the ball beyond the enemy's posts.

3,000 Crowd Turned Away.

There were 300 women in the stands as against a handful at the first game. Atop a nearby hill, nearly 3,000 persons who had failed to gain admission saw snatches of the play, among them also at least 1,000 more feminine fans.

"We'll have to do something about this," said Warden Lewis E. Lawes, as he surveyed the throng seeking admittance in vain. "We haven't room for all these people, we can't enlarge the prison and I don't see how we can take the players and their mates down to the Polo Grounds. The situation is getting serious."

Among the spectators were Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, Mayor Thomas Conmy of Port Jervis, William E. Hall, deputy fire commissioner of New York, and William Orr, former State's prison superintendent.

At the last minute, the prison authorities had to enlist the aid of 200 extra attendants to "frisk" the ticket holders, who were admitted one by one, for possible firearms.

Convicts and Police Split Spoils.

The day's receipts were divided, 10 per cent to the Ossining emergency unemployment relief fund, 75 per cent to the Port Jervis police department and the balance to the prison's Christmas fund.

It cost a dollar to see today's game, as against 50 cents last Sunday.

Only three players were injured and they were able to resume play.

Capt. Pits, quarter back of Sing Sing, and Brown and Thomas for Port Jervis made the outstanding plays. Thomas scored a touchdown on a 56-yard run in the second quarter, after a scoreless first period. He topped it off with a perfect kick for the extra point.

In the third period after he made the second touchdown, however, he failed on the kick.

Another game will be played next Sunday, but the prison team's opponents have not yet been picked from a rapidly growing list of challengers.

Happy Valley Eleven Bows to Pirates, 23-0

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., Nov. 22.—Bill Hammond's Pirate Athletic Club staged a real come-back this afternoon and defeated the Happy Valley eleven, of Arlington County, 13-0, on Guckert's Field.

APACHES DEFEAT MOHAWKS, 13-6

A good kick by Paddy Byrne, that bounded outside on the Mohawk 3-yard line, started the eventual winners of their way to victory. The Hawks kicked and Dugan got back to the 32-yard line before being hauled down. A couple of line plays netted short gains, and then Mike Tracey heaved a 15-yard pass to Antos who wriggled free from a mass of Mohawks to cross the goal.

It was a perfectly executed trick play. The ball was passed to Dugan. Byrne faked a run off left tackle, and two Mohawks went for him. Dugan then whirled as he was about to be tackled and tossed the ball to Tracey, who ran about 5 yards to the right side of the field and well behind the line of scrimmage and passed to Antos. Chessy had slipped off unnoticed and took the ball close to the sideline, but he managed to get back into safe territory.

One of the breaks of the game led to the winning score in the second period. Fouts was unable to handle a bad pass from center and was tackled on his own 30-yard line. Dugan passed to Tracey to advance the ball to the 10-yard line, and after three line plays, Byrne plunged over. Byrne also added the extra point with a well aimed dropkick.

From then on it was nip and tuck, with the Apaches holding a slight edge until late in the final period, when the Hawks threatened to knot the count. "Snitz" Snyder carried the ball most of the time and usually gained from 5 to 8 yards.

One Mohawk thrust carried them to their opponent's 20-yard line, but they were halted at this point, lacking only inches of making a first down. It was the second fine stand of the day by the Apaches. Ray DuFour had personally attended to the halting of Snyder on the 5-yard stripe, where the ball rested as the half ended.

It is a curious fact, however, that when another yard or two was needed to make it a first down, Snyder was not given the ball. "Turk" Tobin, Mike Tracey, "Chessy" Antos, Himmelberg, and in fact all of the Apaches played great football. Jim Montague and Tobin played themselves into almost complete exhaustion before being removed.

Snyder Outstanding Hawk Star.

Snyder, and an unknown, but persistent fan (Hawks! Hawks! Hawks!) were the chief mainstays of the Mohawks. Snyder's ball-carrying and defensive work was par excellence. "Vinney" Flaherty, the big, red-headed end, also gave a fine exhibition.

St. Mary's Celtics Tie Baltimore Eleven, 0-0

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 22.—The powerful St. Mary's Celtics team, of Alexandria, Va., played the Irvington gridders to a scoreless tie here today. The game, in many respects, was the best of the season. Brilliant forward passing, hard tackling, spectacular broken field running and fierce line plunging was displayed by both teams.

Irvington had an air-tight defense against the passing of Howard McMenamin, rated one of the best forward heavers in the game. The teams were evenly matched, but bad breaks militated against scoring. In the third quarter, Irvington, by a series of passes and end runs, placed the ball on the Celtics' 2-yard line, but was unable to score. The Celtics threatened in the second quarter, when they rushed the ball to the Irvingtons' 8-yard line, but were held.

Charity Golf Tourneys Held by District Clubs

SEVERAL golf clubs in this section yesterday responded to the appeal of the United States Golf Association and held tournaments in aid of the unemployment relief fund. The Maryland State Golf Association, complying heartily with the request of the national organization, offered prizes in order to stimulate interest in the event.

At the Columbia Club, however, it was stated last night that no figures were available as to the amount of the receipts nor were the names of the prize winners, if any, known to the golf committee. The Beaver Dam Club reported that owing to the large number of cards submitted no results would be made known until today.

Congressional Raises $160 for Charity.

At the Congressional Club, on the contrary, it was stated that approximately $160 had been realized for the fund, owing to the generous response of the members, each of whom paid an entrance fee of $2. In class A the low gross prize was won by M. Parker Nolan with a card of 38—39—77.

In the blind bogey contest there was a tie, the lucky number of 75 being the low net score of both C. M. Weigle and W. H. Grimes. There was a triple tie for second prize between J. F. McCarron, Spencer Wise and A. H. Plant, jr., each with 74. In Class B, the low gross prize was won by A. W. Henderson with 46—45—91. First low net was a triple tie between Chester A. Bennett, E. J. Harding and William Ullman, each with 78, while P. B. Baldridge was second with 80.

At the Indian Spring Club, J. Monro Hunter, jr., won the low gross prize in Class A with a card of 35—36—71, while Dr. L. S. O'Tell won low net with 72—1—71. In Class B, the low gross winner was L. E. Strong with 43—43—86, and J. W. Reese won low net with 91—22—69. In Class C, the winner of the low gross prize was James P. Schick, with 45—47—92, and W. L. Miller was low net, with 98—30—68.

Manor Women in Tourney This Morning.

Women members of the Manor Club will hold an unemployment fund benefit this morning, all women golfers in the District being invited to participate in an eighteen-hole, medal play, handicap allowance competition. Handicaps up to 24 will be allowed. Play is scheduled to start at 9 o'clock.

G. W. IS HOST TO NORTH DAKOTA

Highly Touted Westerners Play Here Thanksgiving.

NORTH DAKOTA, one of the outstanding football teams of 1931, is to show its grid wares here Thanksgiving afternoon when it concludes its schedule by opposing the George Washington Colonials. Known as the Nodaks or Sioux, the visitors have cleaned up everything in their own country, and have lost but one game, that to Duquesne in Pittsburgh yesterday in the first of their two games in this section.

This year for the fourth straight time North Dakota has won its own north central grid championship. In that time it has never so much as been tied with any of its opponents.

Only one other team than Duquesne has been able to hold the Sioux this year. This team was Oregon, which came East the following week and trimmed New York University. Oregon and North Dakota played a scoreless tie in which the Nodaks were without the services of Ralph Pierce, who is rated as the greatest ball carrier in North Dakota's history.

Sioux Beat De Paul, 41 to 7.

Among the victims of North Dakota this year is DePauw, which was beaten by 41 to 7. This is the only defeat suffered by DePauw this year, which earlier accounted for Detroit University by 12 to 0.

Last year North Dakota met its only defeat from Army, which came close to defeating the national championship Notre Dame Team.

The North Dakotans are shooting for the high scoring mark of the year. They are close behind Davis-Elkins, according to the latest compilations.

The visitors are coached by C. A. West, who next fall will sign with the University of California Lower Branch to handle its grid destinies. West has made a marvelous record with North Dakota in his tenure there and is likely to complicate the grid situation on the Coast with his new team in the future.

Fred Felber, a giant end, is the outstanding All-American candidate on the Sioux eleven. He does everything so well that fans in the Northwest hail him as one of the greatest wingmen they have ever seen.

G. U. IS HOST TO DETROIT SATURDAY

Strong Mid-Western Team Promises Real Fight.

GEORGETOWN football team still on the upgrade after having taken a new lease on life two weeks ago, promises to give the strong Detroit University eleven a terrific fight when they clash next Saturday in Griffith Stadium. It will be the closing game of the season for both teams.

New spirit born in heartening conquests of West Virginia and Villanova on successive Saturdays prevails in the ranks of Tommy Mills' players who, for the first five weeks of the season, were beset with many strokes of misfortune. Though they do not possess all of their best players even now, they figure to cause trouble for any team in the East.

Detroit One of West's Best Teams.

Detroit is one of the best teams in the West, but the doughty Hilltoppers have no more fear of Western outfits than for those of their own section. They proved that when they extended the powerful Michigan State Spartans and even outplayed them for a greater part of the game.

Victory over Detroit will be especially sweet to Georgetown because it will counteract the bitterness of the Michigan State defeat. Detroit walloped Michigan State last Saturday, 20 to 13.

Considering comparative scores, a Georgetown triumph next Saturday is not in the least improbable. Detroit had difficulty in beating West Virginia, 9-7, while Georgetown disposed of the Mountaineers rather handily, 13-0. Then, too, Georgetown held Bucknell to a 7-0 score and Buckwell defeated Fordham, which trounced Detroit, 39-9.

PHI DELTA WINS.

SEAMAN GUNNERS WIN TO INCREASE UNLIMITED CLASS LEAD

Mercury 6-0 Victim of Sailors

Gunners Score Only Point Soon After Game Starts.

Dixie Pigs Beat Blue Coals; Brookland Ties Fraters, 0-0.

TEAM STANDINGS.

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.

THE Seaman Gunners added to their lead in the unlimited division of The Post's Capital City League by administering a 6-0 defeat to the champion Mercury eleven in a bitterly contested game at Gonzaga Field yesterday. In the other contests played in this division Brookland surprised by holding the powerful Frater eleven to a scoreless tie at Alexandria, and the Dixie Pigs routed the Griffith-Blue Coals, 19-0, at Seat Pleasant. Brookland's feat of holding the Fraters on even terms was the most startling upset recorded in the league this season.

The Tars clinched the decision in the first period of their game with the Wingfeet as Pierce stepped off 15 yards to the goal line after taking a short pass from Young. The try for the point after touchdown was wide.

Mercury Shows Strong Attack.

Mercury uncovered a powerful ground-gaining attack, reaching its opponent's 1-yard line on two occasions. Each time, however, the Gunners rose to the occasion and turned them back when a touchdown seemed certain. Several times during the fray play had to be halted while the officials cleared the field of supporters of the two teams. The winners have only one more Capital City League game to play, and if they win that they are assured of a high ranking in the final standings.

Several hundred fans were treated to one of the cleanest and fastest football games of the year by the Brookland and Frater Teams. From the opening whistle the pair battled tooth and nail, but to no avail. Brookland carried the ball to the Alexandrians' 1-yard mark late in the second half, but the period ended before they could get the oval over for what would have been the winning points. Again in the fourth quarter the visitors reached the Fraters' 11-yard line. Tom Evans plunged to the 3-yard stripe, but a fumble at this critical stage of the proceedings halted the drive.

Cabell Makes Longest Run.

Elliott Cabell, Frater back-field ace, turned in the longest run of the game, a 15-yard dash around end, which placed the ball on Brookland's 37-yard line. This the only semblance of a scoring threat made by his team, play for the most part being in Frater territory. Brookland registered fifteen first downs to two for their opponents, but the latter were crippled by the absence of five injured players. The result places Brookland in a tie for second place with the Dixie Pigs, and the Fraters tie Mercury for third position.

Ball, Radtke and Carrick led the Dixies to their victory over the Griffs. Ball ran 15 yards to score in the second period, after taking a pass from Radtke for the first touchdown. Radtke added the second in the next period, after a series of off-tackle plays, and Carrick scored the final in the last quarter when he intercepted a pass and ran 20 yards to the final chalk mark.

Neither team was at its best form and play was rather sluggish. The Dixies, however, possessed a big advantage over their opponents, who failed to threaten.

Green Bay Rally Defeats Giants

Bruder, Saunders Star as Packers Come From Behind to Win, 14-10.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—With Hank Bruder and Russell Saunders rushing the Giants' line to shreds, the Green Bay Packers came from behind in the last quarter to defeat New York Giants, 14 to 10, in a National Pro-Foot Ball League game today. A crowd of 40,000 saw the Packers take a lead in the first minute of play, relinquish it in the Giants' brilliant second-period rally, and then grab victory out of what appeared to be their second defeat of the season.

The Packers struck fast and sure for their first touchdown. Hurdis McCray, former Georgia back, returned the opening kick-off to midfield and Red Dunn crossed a long pass to Johnny Blood, which netted the remaining 50 yards. Dunn kicked goal for the extra point.

With Benny Friedman on the sending end of passes to Burnett and Badgro, the Giants drove down the field late in the period and Moran plunged over from the 3-yard line as the second period opened. Moran added the extra point.

A surprise pass, Moran to Flaherty, late in the second session, put the Giants in the position where Moran booted a place-kick from the 12-yard line.

TEAM MADE KICK, SAYS MODEST BAKER

the last minute and a half of play.

"I sent Griffith back to the bench because we already had decided to risk everything on a place-kick if we were not able to score a touchdown up to the last 30 seconds of play. I was confident that with Mohler holding the ball and Baker kicking we had our best chance to win with a field goal.

Made Some Mistakes.

"Notre Dame is a fighting team and the kind of an opponent that it is satisfying to defeat. If we had lost it would have been our fault because Coach Howard Jones had mapped out a defense to stop Notre Dame. We made some mistakes, but we came back in spite of them."

Ray Sparling, Southern California's great end who caught a 40-yard pass to start the rally that led to the field goal, said he had never played in a game in which there was so much hard, man-to-man contact.

"It was a bruising battle between every man in the two lines from the first play to the last," he said. "I played all but two minutes and I know I had to charge with everything I had or somebody would put me on the ground. Every player seemed to charge like the game depended on what he did on that play."

Gus Shaver, who scored Southern California's two touchdowns, called the game his greatest thrill.

"To score two touchdowns against Notre Dame is a feat I'll never forget," said Shaver, "but it was blocking by Pickert, Arbelbide and the others who made it possible. Notre Dame hits hard, but I think the Irish have a little respect for Southern California by now."

LION PARK AHEAD.

Palace Wins Sixth in Row; Holds Senior Class Lead

Downs Brookland, 6 to 0, for Sixth Straight Shutout; Brentwood Hawks, Stantons and Petworth Victors in Other Games.

TEAM STANDINGS.

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Palace	6	0	0	12
Centennials	4	0	2	10
Brentwood Hawks	3	1	2	8
Brookland	3	1	2	8
Meridians	2	3	1	5
Stantons	2	4	0	4
Northern Preps	1	4	0	2
Petworth Pennants	1	4	0	2

THE Palace eleven chalked up its sixth consecutive victory in the 150-pound division of The Post's Capital City League without being scored on, and by virtue of its victory assumed undisputed leadership of the league. The champion Centennials, who idled, were tied with Palace for the top rung of the ladder until yesterday. In the other games played in this division the Brentwood Hawks gained a 12-to-7 decision over the Meridians, the Stantons scored a 12-to-7 win over the Northern Preps in the biggest upset of the day, and the Columbias won the cellar title by losing to the Petworth Pennants, 7 to 6.

Jim Howe's scrappy Brookland team fought its powerful opponent blow for blow throughout the best part of the game, but a 40-yard runback of a punt in the second period paved the way for the Palace victory. Scanlon carried the oval to the 12-yard line from where Tonker ploughed his way through the line for the only score of the game. Brookland threatened in the third period, moving to its opponent's 25-yard line.

Fumbles Halt Two Drives.

A fumble halted this drive, but the team came right back into the same zone on another drive. Again a fumble interfered with the advance, and Brookland was out of the running. J. Scanlon, D. McDermott and Schorb played well for the winners.

A forward pass, Cole to Harper, in the third period brought victory to the Stantons. The heave netted 45 yards and advanced the pigskin to the 1-yard line. Cole plunged over for the score. Trotter accounted for the second after a series of line plays in the first quarter. Boughton tallied the Northerns' touchdown. It was the first league victory for Tony Jordan's charges, and they deserved it, outplaying their rivals over most of the distance.

Brentwood encountered a plucky Meridian Team and received more of a fight than it had bargained for. A touchdown by McManus in the first period, and one by Fellner, in the final quarter, provided the margin of victory. Askins scored for the eventual losers in the third quarter after a 40-yard run through a broken field. Watson, Meridian full back, twice broke away for long gains only to be called back because of a player offside. Vincent Scafide also put up a whale of a game for the Columbia Heights troupe.

A well-directed drop-kick by Fegan, full back, for the point after touchdown gave the Petworth Pennants their 1-point victory over the Columbias. Fegan also played an important part in scoring his team's touchdown. He threw passes to Chapma, Fiscus and Law in succession for good gains, the last-named player scoring the goal. Rodgers intercepted a Petworth pass and ran 40 yards for the touchdown.

JUNIOR TITLE WON BY ST. STEPHENS

FINAL STANDINGS.

Federals	2	2	1	5
Apache Preps	2	2	1	5
Notre Dame Preps	1	4	0	2
Northeast Motors	0	5	0	0

SCORING all of their points in the first half of the game, St. Stephen's Preps yesterday won the championship of the 135-pound division of The Post's Capital City League by winning a 20-0 victory over Federals on the Tidal Basin field. Plays of a spectacular nature predominated throughout the contest.

It was St. Stephens' fifth consecutive league victory. The team breezed through its league schedule with little trouble and is by far the outstanding 135-pound team in the District.

Mulhall Throws Pass 30 Yards.

Joe Mulhall's 30-yard forward pass to Fred Scheele gave the West-Enders their first score of the game in the first period. To this Bobby Lucas added the second marker of the fray, late in the same period, when he dashed around end for a 25-yard gain. The play followed a series of line plunges. The final touchdown was tallied by Joray on a 10-yard plunge through center.

The Saints' line was well-nigh impregnable. R. Mulhall, Cumberland and Quigley played especially well in the forward wall.

McMillan, St. Paul's Grid League Victors

In a pair of hard-fought Burrougha League engagements yesterday, McMillan Park downed St. Stephen's by a score of 21 to 7, and St. Paul's took the measure of Mount Rainier by a 12-to-0 count. A sturdy defense saved the day for St. Pauls, as Mount Rainier threatened in the waning moments of the game. McKenna's 50-yard run after intercepting a forward pass featured the McMillan-St. Paul fray.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

NOVEMBER MARVEL.

I.

My boy friend has no claim to fame,
He doesn't flash or scintillate,
But always at the football game
He quickly finds the proper gate.

II.

He's not a very brilliant soul,
And doesn't look so keen or smart,
But he can drive me to the bowl
In time to see the contest start.

III.

His mind throws off no brilliant spark—
To call him brainy is to laugh,
But he can find a place to park
The car before the second half.

IV.

He mentally is not so hot
And he doesn't make the Best Minds scram
But driving to a game he'll not Get caught in ev'ry traffic jam.

V.

He looks a little like a sap—
He is no great mental whiz,
But he can tell without a map
Exactly where our portal is.

VI.

In learning's light he'll never bask,
But this I'll tell you up-and-up-
He never fails to bring a flask
And, what is more, a paper cup!

VII.

"A sutpid guy" is what some call
My friend, and sometimes so do I,
But he can tell who's got the ball—
And very often tell me why.

VIII.

But this is why he's lionized
By me as having brains galore—
When either team is penalized
HE SOMETIMES CAN EXPLIAN WHAT FOR!

One of the startling events of the season is the debut of Douglas Fairbanks in a movie travelogue. It just seems incredible, but on the contrary it is announced that Mr. Fairbanks is now on another world tour to take travel pictures which he will appear in and produce. Now anything can happen. Presently we may hear of John Gilbert doing an Our Gang feature, Charles Chaplin getting up a series of sporting reels and possibly Jackie Coogan doing a series of old-fashioned songs of the heart, illustrated.

Hunting Season to Aid In Feeding Unemployed

Harrisburg, Pa., (U.P.).—State officials looked toward the hunting season as one means of providing food for the families of unemployed.

They estimated that much of the 6,000 tons of game killed will find its way into the homes of needy families. An open season on doe deer will provide more venison than usual.

Charitable institutions and hospitals will receive the meat from all deer and bear found illegally or accidentally killed.

PARIS FAVORS CONTRAST.

Paris says "contrast," so black velvet and sheer white metal lame embroidered in gold vies for interest in this charming afternoon dress.

Style No. 267 may be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years; 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. The 36-inch size requires 2¼ yards of 39-inch dark with 1⅜ yards of 39-inch figured material.

If you prefer it fashioned of one fabric, it will prove equally lovely.

Pattern price 15 cents. Address Fashion Department, The Washington Post, Fifth avenue and Twenty-ninth street, New York City.

GASOLINE ALLEY — Don't miss this feature in colors in The Sunday Post. — Let This Be a Lesson, Skeezix

YOU'LL CALL ME UP TONIGHT, PRIGGY
SURE THING, LORA.
NOBODY BUT SKEEZIX WOULD HAVE TIED THAT ROPE ACROSS THE DOOR. YOU MUST REPRIMAND HIM, WALT.
I'LL SAY I WILL.
SKEEZIX, DON'T YOU KNOW THAT ONE OF THE FAMILY MIGHT HAVE TRIPPED OVER THAT ROPE?
YES, UNCLE WALT.
WELL AS LONG AS IT WAS ONLY PRIGGY WE'LL FORGET ABOUT IT

JUST AS DE BRACY WAS ABOUT TO LOOSEN THE GREAT STONE TO CRUSH THE BLACK KNIGHT AND CEDRIC, BOIS-GUILBERT APPEARED ON THE WALL GREATLY EXCITED
ALL IS LOST, DE BRACY, THE CASTE IS ON FIRE!! I HAVE STRIVEN IN VAIN TO EXTINGUISH IT!!
THROW OPEN THE WEST GATE AND ATTEMPT TO BREAK THRU', WHILST I WITH MY MEN WILL STRIKE THE SAXONS FROM THE OTHER SIDE!!....IT IS OUR ONLY HOPE OF ESCAPE!!
AT THAT MOMENT THE MADHAG ULRICA APPEARED ON THE TOWER WILDLY WAVING A RED FLAG
SAXONS, NOW STRIKE HARD AGAINST THIS ACCURSED CASTLE!!
ACTING ON THE TEMPLAR'S ADVICE DE-BRACY AND HIS MEN OPENED THE GATE TO BE MET BY THE BLACK KNIGHT AND CEDRIC
DE BRACY HIMSELF SOON FELL BEFORE THE BLOWS OF THIS MIGHTY WARRIOR YIELD THEE, DE BRACY!!
NOT TO AN UNKNOWN!!
THE BLACK KNIGHT QUICKLY WHISPERED HIS NAME IN DE-BRACY'S EAR
I YIELD, I YIELD!!

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Washington, Sunday, Nov. 22—8 p. m.

Forecast for the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia—Fair with continued mild temperature Monday and Tuesday; gentle winds, mostly south.

The southwestern disturbance is still central over New Mexico, Santa Fe, 29.58 inches, and pressure is relatively low and falling from Texas northeastward to southern Minnesota. This disturbance has been attended by snow in the Rocky Mountain region, the Dakotas, and the western portions of Nebraska and Kansas, and by rains from Texas northeastward to the upper Mississippi Valley and the upper lake region. Fair weather has prevailed over practically all sections. Another disturbance is moving southeastward over Manitoba and Saskatchewan. The Pas, Manitoba, 29.84 inches; still another is over the Hudson Strait region. Hopes Advance, 29.42 inches, and pressure remains low over western and northern Alaska and the Greenland-Iceland area. Pressure remains high east of the Mississippi River. Lynchburg, Va., 30.42 inches, and over British Columbia. Prince George, 30.40 inches, and it is still high but falling over the northern Rocky Mountain region and the northern Plains States, Kalispell, 30.34 inches. The temperature has fallen in Vermont and northern New York, and from southern Kansas and eastern Colorado southward over Oklahoma, northwestern Texas, and eastern New Mexico. The temperature is still much above normal over the eastern half of the United States, and much below normal almost generally over the western half. Many stations east of the Mississippi River report the highest temperature so late in the season.

General forecast for the Atlantic States, the lower lake region, the Ohio Valley and Tennessee: The indications are for generally fair weather and continued mild temperature during the next two days, except for light showers from northern New York eastward to northern Maine Monday, and for showers and cooler Tuesday from western Tennessee to western Ohio.

2 OTHER BRUTALITY CASES READY WHILE 4 POLICE WAIT FATE

Harker Charges Expected to Be Given to Jury Late This Afternoon.

Headquarters Detective Is Named as Beating Man Later Released.

With a verdict on third degree charges concerning four First Precinct policemen expected today, the courts will be ready to open trials of two other officers on similar charges tomorrow. It is exactly three months today since The Post printed the exclusive story of the alleged beating of James Henry Harker, robbery suspect.

The case of Headquarters Detective Robert J. Barrett, who is accused of a fistic assault on George B. Baber, arrested in connection with the Garden-T-Shoppe holdup and murder, since exonerated, will open before Justice James M. Proctor in Criminal Court No. 1.

Sorber Trial Deferred.

Policeman George Sorber, charged with an attack on Arthur T. Paul, a prisoner, was to be brought to trial this morning. However, this trial will be deferred at the request of Sorber's attorney, James O'Shea, who must be in court for three of the four defendants in the Harker case.

Following final addresses of opposing counsel, the fates of Policemen James Mostyn, W. C. Grooms, W. R. Laflin and W. T. Burroughs will be deliberated this afternoon by a jury in Justice Proctor's court.

Arguments are Limited.

Justice Proctor Saturday limited the final arguments of both the prosecution and the defense to two hours each, so the case will reach the jury about 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The court session Saturday was devoted to discussion by counsel, in absence of the jury, of the court's final charge to the jury. Before the jury retires Justice Proctor will give the body thorough instructions in the weighing of evidence and arriving at a verdict.

Mostyn has yet to be tried on three additional assault charges against colored prisoners. Fixing of dates for these trials awaits outcome of the present case.

Policemen Disarm Man In Scuffle at Station

After snatching a pistol from the holster of Patrolman E. R. Waters in the Third Precinct Station yesterday, William Anderson, colored, 22 years old, 2133 L street northwest, engaged in a tussle with three policemen until he was disarmed.

Anderson, who was being searched by Patrolman Waters, snatched the policeman's service revolver and pressed it against the officer. Patrolmen C. W. Feagan and J. H. Gwinn leaped at Anderson and after a scuffle disarmed him. The policemen were slightly injured in the fight. Anderson had been arrested for assaulting another man with a knife.

Program Set Tomorrow At Chevy Chase Center

A program for children and adults will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:15 o'clock at the Chevy Chase Center in the E. V. Brown School building, under auspices of the Community Center Department, and under direction of Mrs. F. K. Espenschied, community secretary at Chevy Chase Community Center.

Features will be a movie of Western life, and a comedy picture. Miss Lucile Brackett, of Mrs. Donna L. Taggart's group at the center, will give a demonstration of acrobatic dancing, and Miss Ivy Randall will present one of her group in a series of tap dances.

Man Removing Screen Hurt in 2-Story Fall

Davis was treated by Dr. W. A. Ryan, 2100 North Capitol street, for bruises, shock and possible fractured ribs. He was later removed to Casualty Hospital for further treatment where it was said his condition was undetermined.

Ruth Hurley at Home After Swallowing Pin

Ruth Hurley, 8-year-old daughter of the Secretary of War, will return to school today after a stay at Walter Reed Hospital where she had gone after swallowing a Red Cross pin.

Her attendants found that her tears, which proved difficult to stop, came not from fear of doctors and hospitals, but because she had to spoil a perfect record of school attendance.

Inquirendo to Hear Linebarger.

Judge Paul Linebarger, legal adviser to the Chinese Nationalist government, will discuss the Japanese-Manchurian situation at a meeting of the Inquirendo tomorrow night at the home of Fred F. Schow, 2701 Chesapeake street northwest. The Inquirendo is an association composed of lawyers, legislators and diplomats.

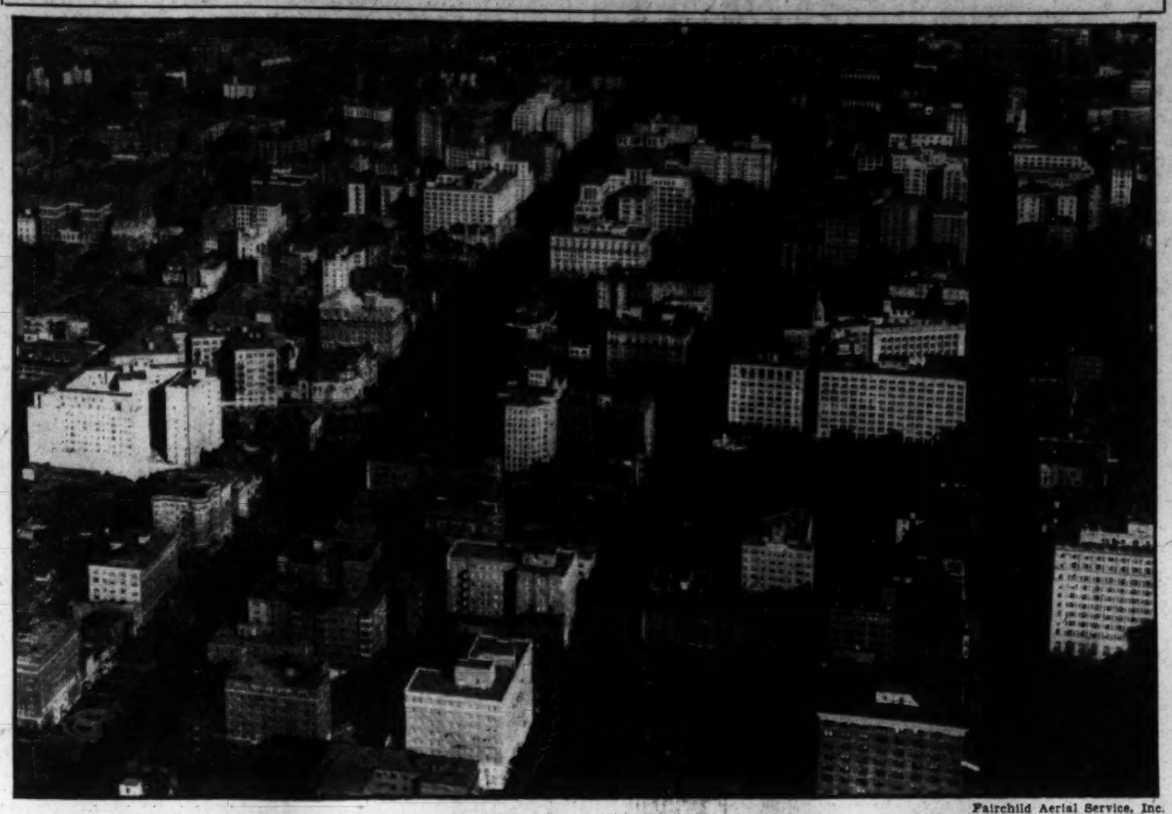
Skyviews of Washington, No. 23



Fairchild Aerial Service, Inc.

FLYING west over the downtown office and apartment house district, the Skyviews photographer snapped the above unusual picture.

Buildings take odd shapes from the air, hence there will be many ready to deny that the white building looming large on the right of the picture is the La Salle Apartments, or the structure in the lower right-hand corner is the old Department of Commerce.

The long black lanes extending upward are, running from left to right, K street, I street and H street. To the right of the Commerce Building, joining H street and Pennsylvania avenue, is the Powhatan Hotel. Farther up H, to the left, is the Transportation Building. The upper three stories of the United States Chamber of Commerce may be seen just above it.

At the lower end of I street the Columbia Medical Building can be distinguished, and just above it, at Eighteenth and I streets, the Washington Medical Building. The large building, a block to the east, is the Farragut Apartments, facing Farragut Square, at Seventeenth and I streets northwest. Just above may be seen the Army and Navy Club, and, to the right, the Barr Building.

Fire-Fighter Discovers Fire as Nearly Blind Resident Prepares to Jump.

SAVES TRAPPED VICTIM AFTER SOUNDING ALARM

Groves Swings Over Areaway to Halt Leap; Painful Burns Suffered.

The old "smoke-eating" traditions of the Fire Department were maintained by Battalion Chief J. R. Groves yesterday in the daring rescue of an aged and nearly blind man who was trapped by flames in an upper room at 1456 Park road northwest.

One true test of a fireman perhaps is his ability to discover a blaze as well as to extinguish it. Chief Groves was returning from No. 21 Engine Company, where he had been on business, when he noticed wisps of smoke above the Park road house.

Flames Hem in Man.

He had the driver of his car turn in an alarm while he rushed to the burning building. He was met by a woman who cried that her father was helplessly hemmed in by flames in an upper front room.

Through the smoke and flame, up the burning staircase, Chief Groves dashed. Reaching the room he found it empty. Past the blazing stairway he raced to a rear room. Raising a window, he looked across an areaway and saw William A. Keeler about to jump from the opposite window.

Swung Over Areaway.

He shouted but the 86-year-old man failed to heed. Groves climbed out of the window, swung across the areaway abyss, and took the man in his arms.

By this time the engines had arrived and Mr. Keeler was taken safely from the house to Garfield Hospital where he was treated for painful burns which were not believed to be serious.

The fire chief's coat and hair were singed but he was not injured. Firefighters soon put out the blaze which caused $500 damage. Its origin was not determined.

Pedestrian, 73, Struck By Baby Carriage, Hurt

A sidewalk collision with a baby carriage knocked down and slightly injured William Murray, 73, of 3900 Fourteenth street northwest, yesterday. The carriage struck Mr. Murray as he was walking near Fourteenth and Irving streets.

Mrs. A. P. Payne, of 2808 Fifteenth street northwest, was pushing the carriage. Mr. Murray went home, where he was treated for contusions of the head and knees and a cut on his face.

Arrest for Liquor Ends 15-Mile Chase

Maryland Police Nab Man in Race From Savage to College Park.

John Titmaus, who gave his address as 1507 M street northwest, was arrested last night on a charge of transportation of liquor, after a 15-mile chase from Savage to College Park, Md., in which several shots were fired.

State Policemen H. S. Schultheis started to chase Titmaus, who is alleged to have laid down a smoke screen in the path of his pursuer. At Laurel policemen telephoned ahead to stop the fleeing car. Schultheis was joined in the chase by other policemen.

Titmaus will be given a hearing in Hyattsville Wednesday on the transportation charge and on five traffic charges.

Capital Man Arrested In 2 Virginia Collisions

Special to The Washington Post.

Washington, N., Nov. 22.—Kemper Meadows, of Washington, D. C., is being held in jail here for a hearing on a traffic charge growing out of two automobile accidents.

Meadows is accused of having sped through the town striking automobiles operated by L. A. Smith, and of continuing on, striking another car. He is being held in default of $500 bond.

Model Home of Post Visited by Thousands

Thousands have been delighted by visits to The Washington Post model home at Thirty-fourth and Garrison streets northwest since its opening.

The home, built by William S. Phillis, erector of thousands of fine homes and many beautiful apartments, is being presented to the public by A. G. Hughes, of Realty Associates. The home, completely furnished and decorated, will be open on Sundays until 9 p. m., and during the week from 2 to 9 p. m.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOL IMPORTANCE TOLD

Dr. Barrett Says 57,690 Children Are Enrolled in Archdiocese.

Chaos would result if the Catholic schools of Washington, Baltimore and the rest of Maryland were suddenly closed because these cities would not be able to make provision for "the vast new army of school children," Dr. John I. Barrett, superintendent of archdiocesan schools, declared yesterday afternoon in an address in the Washington Catholic radio hour.

The Catholic Church in this archdiocese has 57,690 children in her elementary, secondary and commercial schools, 1,800 more than last year, Dr. Barrett told his audience. Of this number, 50,683 are enrolled in grade schools alone, he added. In November, 1921, there were 30,000 children in the Catholic schools in this jurisdiction, and since then schools have been established in many sections of the archdiocese where they previously did not exist, the superintendent said.

Prior to his appointment as superintendent, Dr. Barrett was assigned to St. Patrick's Church in this city. The Rev. Francis J. Hurney, director of the Sunday radio programs, presided at the service yesterday which was broadcast by station WOL from the Church of the Immaculate Conception. He was assisted by the Rev. J. Kelly Reese and the Rev. Stanley A. Czyz at the Blessing of the Sick, which took place at the Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes in the church.

Frederick Nolan and Florence Yocum were vocal soloists and Miss Ann Arlen, violin soloist. Prof. Harry Wheaton Howard was in charge of music. The boys sanctuary choir sang.

Miss Dora Bassin Wed To William H. Levy

William H. Levy, manager of the Ambassador Hotel swimming pool and publicity director of the hotel, and Miss Dora Bassin, of 53 D street southeast, were married yesterday in Frederick, Md., it was learned here last night. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Wilner.

They left for Atlantic City, where they will spend their honeymoon. Upon their return to Washington they will make their home at 2100 California street northwest. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Bassin. Mr. Levy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Levy, of 1840 California street northwest.

Burns to Hands Result As Fire Starts in Auto

William Adams, 27, of 22 Adams street northwest, was burned on the hands yesterday when gasoline he had used to clean his automobile caught fire as he started the motor. He attempted to extinguish the flames on the car, which was at the rear of his home.

Fire apparatus was called, and after the blaze was put out firemen took Adams to Garfield Hospital, where his burns were treated.

Householder Is Robbed Of $50 at Door of Home

Held up at the point of a pistol in the doorway of his home, William M. Logan, 929 I street northwest, was robbed of $50 early yesterday morning. Logan suffered a cut on the back of his hand when he grappled with the thief.

Description of Logan's assailant was broadcast and police were seeking the man yesterday. Logan was of the opinion that the man had suffered lacerations about the face in the tussle and police hoped this would help them in finding him.

ELEMENTS OF TRUE MARRIAGE DEFINED BY TAKOMA PASTOR

Rev. William E. La Rue Denounces "Trial" Type as Subversive.

HOLDS MORAL PURPOSE BASIS OF PERMANENCE

Defends Laws to Compel Mental and Physical Fitness of Couples.

"The true marriage is one in which the lovers are sure that they will always remain lovers, and such a thing as 'trial marriage' is contrary to the purest sentiments of true love," declared the Rev. William E. La Rue, of the Takoma Park Baptist Church, yesterday, preaching on "Marriage and Divorce."

Dr. La Rue took the text of his talk from the thirty-first verse of the fifth chapter of Ephesians, "And the two shall become one."

"From a biological point of view the perpetuation of the human race depends upon the union of two parents of the opposite sex," he said. "When this urge is ennobled and morally controlled it is made to contribute to ideal life. Where it is left without control the direst evils and the vilest forms of degradation are sure to result.

Christian Ideal of Marriage.

"The Christian interpretation of marriage involves such a glorifying of the love of man for woman that it is the basis for the highest type of living.

"Marriage to be ideally consummated must be contracted with the idea of binding two lives together into one, with the aim of sharing life together. The permanence of marriage must be based on moral purpose as well as on personal love.

"The celebration of the wedding under religious auspices serves as a powerful reinforcement of the highest interpretation of the meaning of marriage.

"However, placing the divine or the civil seal upon such a union is incidental. Such a ceremony should be esteemed as very sacred, but not sacramental.

Scope of Legal Control.

"If we can legislate upon such matters as the age when marriage shall be permissible, who shall dare say that no legislation shall be had upon the mental and the physical fitness of persons applying for marriage licenses? As to birth control, such a matter must be left to the inherent common sense of the people. Children born into this world have a right to be well born.

"Let common sense be the prevailing guide of the people in such matters as neither the church nor the state should invade the sacred precincts of the home to influence persons in matters which belong to their discretion."

Turning his attention to the subject of divorce, Dr. La Rue said: "Christian sentiment against divorce is based upon the fact that a happy marriage is not simply a matter of sentiment, but also of continuous moral cooperation. Is it not true that many a marriage has survived the alleged 'scriptural cause for divorce,' simply because love was there in sufficient degree to make forgiveness and reconciliation possible?"

Problem of Remarriage.

"Undoubtedly, the traditional influences and teachings of Christianity have been a strong bulwark against the quick dissolution of the marriage bond," he added.

Dr. La Rue pointed out that even though the church may often refuse to marry a divorced person the law will recognize marriage by a magistrate, and in these instances the persons involved often feel that the church, by its refusal, has failed them in a time of need and will set up a home bitter against the strictness of the church.

"There will be no disagreement that the ideal we all seek to maintain is an uninterrupted, happy married life for all who enter that sacred relationship. However, where intolerable conditions do arise that make impossible the continuance of that relationship, some one must assume moral responsibility, and for those who are afraid to do that there is no way out," Dr. La Rue concluded.

Broken Steering Unit Causes Injury of Four

Four persons were slightly injured yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding near Quantico, Va., overturned after a steering knuckle broke. All were treated at Emergency Hospital for slight injuries.

They are Miss Werdna House, 41 years old; Mrs. Delia Allen, 55 years old, and Mrs. Emily Stillman, 61 years old, all of 1324 Monroe street northwest, and Mrs. A. Meckle, 57 years old, of 1411 Monroe street northwest.

Mrs. Letetia S. Bloxton Dies.

Mrs. Letetia S. Bloxton, 73 years old, widow of James P. Bloxton, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. P. E. Tyler, at 420 Hume avenue, Alexandria. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home, conducted by the Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, pastor of Del Ray Methodist Episcopal Church South. Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery.

Manassas Man Hurt in Crash.

George Tapscot, 28 years old, of Manassas, Va., received a possible fracture of the skull yesterday when the automobile he was driving collided with another machine on the Washington-Richmond highway near Woodbridge. Tapscot was taken to the Alexandria Hospital by Earl Wells, of Woodbridge.

Police Seek Man's Slayer.

Police last night were searching for a colored man who shot to death Freddie Hall, colored, 29, at his home, 1214 L street southeast, in a dice game argument. The slayer left behind two pistols when he fled the scene. His identity is known, police said.

FOUR HOMES ROBBED IN SOUTHEAST AREA

Thieves Go Through Kitchen Windows to Take Cash and Belongings.

Residents of four homes on South Carolina avenue southeast between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets awoke from their Sunday morning slumbers yesterday and found that thieves had entered during the night through kitchen windows and made away with varying amounts of cash and personal belongings.

Sally Roberts, 1366 South Carolina avenue, reported loss of $4 in cash and personal effects aggregating $15, while Margaret Roberts, of the same address, was robbed of cash and other belongings amounting to $25. At 1370 South Carolina avenue William Beatty reported $25 in cash taken.

Newton Hummer, of 1360 South Carolina avenue, was robbed of $7 in cash and a wrist watch valued at $20, and Frank Biondi, of 1341 South Carolina avenue, the least victimized, reported a dozen eggs missing from the ice box in his kitchen.

Boy Suffers Neck Hurts In Football Scrimmage

Francis McDevitt, 18 years old, a member of the Noel House Community Center football team, received neck injuries yesterday while scrimmaging in a football game on the Tidal Basin grounds. Young McDevitt was taken to Casualty Hospital where his condition was said not to be serious. He lives at 1326 F street northeast.

3,000,000 Children Only Have Defects of Hearing

In an article in The Post yesterday, treating on hearing defects among children, it was stated in the headline appearing over the story that 12,000,000 children were affected with some degree of deafness. This is an error. The text of the story, which says that 3,000,000 are so affected is correct.

Thieves Rob Dime Store Of Sum Hidden on Shelf

Gaining entrance with a duplicate key, thieves entered the Peoples Five and Ten Cent Store, 4913 Georgia avenue northwest, some time early yesterday and stole $117 which was secreted on a shelf under the cash register.

Gasoline Ignites; Two Burned.

Attempting to extinguish flames caused by ignition of gasoline they were using to clean an automobile in the rear of 1225 B street northeast, James Freeman, 21, of that address, and Richard C. Callison, 17, 1519 East Capitol street, received minor burns of the face and hand which were treated at Casualty Hospital yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Bird Points Out Recipe For Prosperity Restoration

Church of the Pilgrims Pastor, in Sermon, Says Lack of Helpful Cooperation Between Employers and Employes Retarding Better Times.

"Lack of helpful cooperation between employers and employes is delaying the advent of better times in business," declared Dr. Andrew Reid Bird, of the Church of the Pilgrims on the Parkway yesterday morning. The topic of the sermon was "Guide Posts to Peace."

"To read the fourth and fifth chapters of the Gospel according to Matthew is to understand the lack of peace in the heart, in the home, in the business world and among the nations that characterize our day," he said.

"Evidences of unsatisfied and lonely hearts are on every hand. The statistics of broken homes in our favored land break the heart of every one who is able to care.

"The absence of considerate and trustful fellowship between the nations in these days of sharp economic competition has burdened all peoples with armaments and threatens the existence of society," Dr. Bird continued.

"Matthew's record of the temptation of the Lord Jesus, of His first word to His followers, and of His first formal address may bring us genuine encouragement."

"In the wilderness as our Lord looked forward to His mission among men he was tempted to compromise His message, to so adapt it to men's desires that it might more readily gain their adherence. But He refused to thus compromise and to materialize His message," the speaker said.

"As He opened His ministry His first words were 'Repent, turn back.' It is a declaration that men had pursued the wrong road in depending upon force or racial prejudice or selfish interest.

"What wonder that we face danger and disaster if we have taken the wrong road. What encouragement to know that there is a road guaranteed by Jesus Christ, our Lord, which we may take."

"In His first formal address our Lord erected six guideposts to peace, and then declared that those who follow these guideposts may have the joy of becoming themselves makers of peace in all realms of life and thereby of becoming the very children of God."

"He made this great declaration concerning peacemakers the seventh or climatic declaration following it with an encouragement to the type of character peacemakers must also possess.

"The outstanding fact about our Lord's plans which differentiate them from all others is that He depends upon character."

In conclusion, Dr. Bird pointed out that we should be humble in heart, sympathetic, meek, keen, merciful and single-minded in our devotion to God. "If any nation will follow these guideposts they will be coworkers with Jesus Christ our Lord in bringing mankind into fellowship with God and with each other, and thus become makers of that joyous peace which shall be unending," he concluded.

FORMER MRS. LEWIS DESCRIBES AUTHORS

Gives "Low Down" on Wells, Shaw, Bennett, Walpole and Others.

The "low down" on several leading British authors was given by Grace Hegger Lewis, the former Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, to a large audience at the Woman's National Democratic Club yesterday afternoon.

Displaying a gift of mimicry, Mrs. Lewis presented intimate glimpses of H. G. Wells, Bernard Shaw, the late Arnold Bennett, Hugh Walpole, John Galsworthy, Lord Dunsany and John Cowper Powys. Wells she described as a lover of games, many of his own invention, successfully forgetting the past and creating a new life through moving to a new environment.

The late Mr. Bennett was depicted by Mrs. Lewis as "a party lover and gay;" Galsworthy as "gentle and almost shy;" and Walpole as the most popular English author in the United States.

Mrs. Lewis said that in Mr. Shaw she found everything she had hoped for in an author, but added that some of the first glamour wears off after successive meetings. Mr. Powys, the speaker said, is the best English author-lecturer she has heard. Mrs. Lewis is the author of "Half a Loaf," a best seller, revealing the private life of a famous author and his wife.

6-Year-Old Girl Is Hurt In Triple Auto Collision

Louise Hudgins, 6, received possible internal injuries last night when an automobile operated by B. E. Huggins was involved in a triple collision on the Alexandria-Washington highway near Four-Mile Run. The child is at Emergency Hospital.

Bryant Rainey, of 106 Grove avenue, Alexandria, reported to police that his automobile collided with another car driven by Edward Triville, of 501 New Jersey avenue northwest, which struck Hudgins' automobile. Hudgins lives at 729 Third street northeast. Mrs. Sally Hudgins, aunt of the child, received slight injuries.

Secretary Doak Returns To Official Duties Today

Secretary of Labor Doak will return to work today, but because of his physical condition will be forced to "take things easy."

The Cabinet officer has been under physicians care for the past month because of physical exhaustion due to heavy official burdens since he took office nearly a year ago.

Anacostia Citizens to Meet.

The Anacostia Citizens Association will hold its monthly meeting at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the Masonic Temple, Fourteenth and U streets northwest. Dr. George C. Havenner, president of the association, will preside.

2 Held in Assault After Auto Crash

Lawrence J. Auth, 25, and Companion Under Bond Following Fight.

Lawrence J. Auth, 25 years old, son of Anton Auth of the N. Auth Provision Co., meat packers, and a companion, Michael Durso, also 25, of 1225 H street northeast, were arrested by police of the Third Precinct and charged with assault following an automobile accident early yesterday.

According to police, an automobile operated by John E. Bromwell, 23 years old, of 1229 Irving street northwest, struck the rear of Auth's machine at the intersection of Connecticut avenue and S street northwest. The trio became engaged in an argument, police said, during which a number of blows were struck and Bromwell lost two front teeth.

Auth and Durso were taken to the precinct station and later released under bond of $100 each. Bromwell was taken to Emergency Hospital and released after receiving first aid treatment.

Two Men Injured In Card Party Row

One Seriously Stabbed; Girl Is Among Four Being Held.

In a melee which climaxed a card game quarrel in a young woman's apartment at 1260 Tenth street northwest yesterday, Norman Trevathan, 30, of 1345 L street northwest, was seriously stabbed by Jesse M. Robbins, 34, of the same address, according to police.

Trevathan was removed to Emergency Hospital. Police held Robbins and three others who were present on investigation charges. They are the injured man's brother, John W. Trevathan, 26, William H. Benton, 33, both of the L street address, and Miss Gay Lawson, resident of the apartment.

When Norman Trevathan was stabbed, his brother struck Robbins over the head with a beer bottle, police said. They took him to Freedman's Hospital for treatment of a lacerated scalp.

Fame of Washington Police To Be Spread Over Country

The Washington Police Department is soon to be advertised over the Nation.

The Advertising Club of Washington has appointed, through its president, Howard W. Berry, a police advertising committee, whose sole function will be to devise ways and means of telling the world about this city's Police Department. The idea originated with Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, new chief of police, who put it forward in a talk before the club recently. Mr. Berry immediately fell in with the plan and named the group.

"We should have thought of it before, ourselves," said Mr. Berry. "The Washington Police Department has been repeatedly congratulated by visitors and definite exploitation of the safety and security which this organization has brought about will do much good to the community as a whole."

The committee is as follows: Ernest S. Johnston, advertising manager of The Post; Allen V. DeFord and William T. Pierson, of WMAL; Harry Crull, Fox Theater; Norman C. Kal, advertising man; C. Melvin Sharpe, Washington Railway & Electric Co., and John E. Shoemaker, General Outdoor Advertising Co. The committee will meet Wednesday, at the Raleigh Hotel, to begin work on its campaign.

Oscar, Police Cat Mascot, Found After Week's Search

Oscar has been found.

Of course, to a great many persons, that declaration doesn't mean a thing, but to police of the Second Precinct it means the solving of one of the outstanding mysteries of the month. For more than a week an extensive search had been conducted for Oscar, but only last night were efforts of a special investigating squad rewarded.

Oscar is a gray kitten. A month or so ago he strolled into the precinct station and immediately established headquarters. From then on he became a favorite. Nothing was too good for him as far as eating was concerned, and many times work ceased while all eyes turned to watch him perform in the middle of the floor.

But suddenly, a week ago, Oscar disappeared. Lieut. J. W. Pierson organized a searching party. From cellar to garret, not a chair was left unturned in the hunt for the missing cat. Days passed. Little hope remained that he would be found alive.

Last night Lieut. Pierson heard a faint cry. It was unmistakably Oscar's voice. The search was renewed with zest. The kitten, little the worse for its experience, was located in a hot-air vent in the wall. With the aid of a blow torch he was released and welcomed home with a big saucer of milk.

But the policemen are still wondering how Oscar happened to get himself into such a place.

RASKOB POLLS '28 DONORS ON RUM QUESTION

Asks 90,000 Democrats Seven Questions About Their Views.

ANOTHER PARTY ROW EXPECTED TO RESULT

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Chairman John J. Raskob, of the Democratic national committee, is conducting a referendum on the prohibition question. A rampant wet himself, he wants to know how the "rank and file" in his party feel about it; whether or not they think the next Democratic national convention should take a definite stand on prohibition.

The "rank and file," in the opinion of Chairman Raskob, are the 90,000 or so Democrats who contributed nearly $4,000,000 to the party's 1928 campaign fund.

Consequently, Chairman Raskob has sent letters to the 90,000 contributors, asking them to answer "yes" or "no" to seven questions on the prohibition issue.

Another Controversy Seen.

The prospect is that Mr. Raskob's referendum will cause another prohibition controversy in the Democratic party, an echo of the row that broke out at the meeting of the Democratic national committee in the Mayflower Hotel here last March when Raskob proposed his "home rule" prohibition plan and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, told him that he could not emblazon the "skull and crossbones of an outlawed trade" on the Democratic banner.

In this particular case, the drys are certain to claim that Raskob's jury is "packed," that most of the contributors in the 1928 campaign were wets, for the reason that the nominee—Alfred E. Smith, of New York—was a wet.

No doubt, they will point out that the largest groups of contributors were located in wet States—17,412 in New York, and 12,379 in Massachusetts.

Cites Wickersham Report.

Chairman Raskob, in his letter to the 1928 contributors, cited statements in the report of the Wickersham Commission to reinforce his contention that prohibition is unenforcible, and then made this statement:

"I believe the time has come for the Democratic party to face this issue squarely, and to present to the people a definite plan under the policy of State's rights, and local self-government.

"My recommendations in this connection were placed before the national committee at its meeting last March with the idea of provoking widespread discussion in the party for the benefit of the committee on resolutions of the next national convention which will frame the party platform. It will be of value to have your recommendations also.

Chairman Raskob then asks the 90,000 contributors to answer the following questions:

List of Seven Questions.

1. Do you recommend that the Democratic platform should avoid all

Ruth Hurley at Home After Swallowing Pin

Ruth Hurley, 8-year-old daughter of the Secretary of War, will return to school today after a stay at Walter Reed Hospital where she had gone after swallowing a red cross pin.

Her attendants found that hre tears, which proved difficult to stop, came not from fear of doctors and hospitals, but because she had to spoil a perfect record of school attendance.

Carol to Let Brother Keep Wife, Is Report

Vienna, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—King Carol of Roumania had been persuaded tonight to let his brother, Prince Nicholas, keep his plebeian wife and would merely forbid their attending any state function together, said dispatches from Bucharest by way of Prague.

The king stormed and fumed, the dispatches said, when two of his ministers took sides against him, but he ultimately accepted their council.

2 DROWNED, 2 SAVED AS BOAT OVERTURNS

Girl and Man Pulled Out as Pair Struggles and Dies in Potomac.

A pleasure cruise on the Potomac River yesterday afternoon turned into tragedy when two men were drowned and two others, a girl and man, were treated at Emergency Hospital for shock and exposure after the 16-foot outboard motor boat in which they were riding capsized and sank just west of the Highway Bridge.

Frank Meegan, 31 years old, of 5205 Colorado avenue, and Anthony Miller, 28 years old, of 2503 Fourteenth street northwest, were drowned and Miss Adelaide Molar, 20, of 1330 Massachusetts avenue northwest, and Brodus Taylor Langyher, 26, of 1021 Fifteenth street northwest, required treatment.

According to witnesses, the party drove to a point on the river near the Washington Airport with the boat fastened on a trailer behind their car. They launched their craft shortly after noon and seemed to have had difficulty in starting the motor, as they drifted about for some time.

While under the new bridge on the Mount Vernon highway, as the boat still drifted, Meegan and Miller were seen sitting in the rear trying to start the motor. According to John E. White, who was in a small boat near the scene of the accident, one of the men gave the rope attached to the flywheel a hard pull and the motor gave a sudden lurch which threw the men off balance and caused the boat to overturn.

White rushed to the scene and aided Langyher in getting Miss Molar into his boat. Langyher then attempted to help his two companions, who were struggling with each other in an endeavor to keep afloat. Langyher strove to save them until he became exhaustd, and, he declared, the last he remembers, was White throwing a life preserver over his head and helping him into the boat.

White said the other two men had disappeared by that time and, after waiting a few minutes to see if they would come to the surface, he took the two who had been rescued to shore.

The Fire Department rescue squad and the Harbor Precinct police attempted to locate the bodies with grappling irons, but up to a late hour had not been successful. The river at the point where the boat overturned is about 20 feet deep.

Detective Sergt. John C. Dalgiish, of the homicide squad, who conducted the investigation last night, declared that no one would be held in connection with the accident.

QUIZ OF INCOME TAX FRAUDS BY U. S. REVEALED

McFaddenPredicts Probe to Uncover "Hundreds of Millions."

FORMER ACCOUNTANT AIDS REVENUE BUREAU

House Bank Group Head Says Leaders Shut Eyes as Interested Parties.

Representative Louis T. McFadden (Republican), of Pennsylvania, chairman of the last House banking and currency committee, stated last night that the Internal Revenue Bureau is investigating income tax frauds which have kept "hundreds of millions of dollars" out of the Federal Treasury.

Mr. McFadden has been cooperating with David A. Olson, of New York, a public accountant. Mr. Olson was for six years connected with a well-known accounting firm in New York. Recently he turned over to the Revenue Bureau evidence which, if proved in the courts, will result in a major round-up of income tax evaders.

Fact that the investigation is being made was exclusively revealed first by The Washington Post in an interview given by Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas, a week ago.

In his statement last night, Representative McFadden said:

Study Covers Two Years.

"For the last two years, as chairman of the committee on banking and currency of the House of Representatives, I have been trying to procure the necessary authority to proceed with an examination of the banking situation, including consolidations, conversions and centralization of banking power, and what happened in the New York stock market in 1929, affecting this whole situation, particularly the part played by national banks, their affiliates and private banking houses in New York and elsewhere, some of which were doing an international business.

"My efforts in this particular were narrowed down, by the direction of the administration, to a technical discussion of branch, chain and group banking. It was impossible under this latitude to go into the vital things, the operation of which have had much to do with the present unsatisfactory financial, banking and economic situation, which is responsible for the continued period of defiation.

"I have, however, with my limited means and opportunities and with such help as I could procure, been making a study of just what has happened in this respect, and in connection with my examination of the issuance and sale of securities by the heretofore mentioned group of institutions to the banks and individual investors at inflated prices which have now left the country's investors and financial institutions flat, carrying great losses. I think I now know what has been taking place.

Financial Chiefs Interested.

"The bulk of this occurred under observation of the Federal Reserve management and the New York Stock Exchange and their various better business bureaus and committees on ethics and conduct. The trouble was that most all of these observers had their eyes shut and many were interested parties, and the exploitation of the public proceeded without interruption and with much glee.

This exploitation of the innocent public applied to the distribution not only of domestic securities, but also of international securities, under a particular group of international

RAIL PARLEYS FAIL IN PLANS FOR WAGE CUT

OTHER MEETINGS SET TO DECIDE ON STEPS

Labor Leader Says Proposal Did Not Give Proper Assurance of Aid.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The four-day conference between railway presidents and labor leaders to consider a proposed 10 per cent reduction in wages of operating employes ended tonight without an agreement.

The presidents will report back to their Eastern, Southern and Western associations, while the leaders of the 21 labor organizations concerned will meet with 1,200 representatives of the employes in Chicago on December 8.

Out of those conferences are expected to come decisions by each group as to future action.

D. E. Robertson, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association, informed Daniel Willard, chairman of the special committee of railroad executives, labor could not accept the proposed wage cut because it was not given proper "assurance that the money thus saved would be applied either to increase employment, or even to stabilize employment."

Realized Difficulties.

Mr. Willard, in reply, informed Mr. Robertson the presidents believed the labor leaders had "realized the difficulties, in fact, the impossibilities, of giving any assurances concerning the future with condtons as uncertan as they are at the present time.

"We did, however," he added, "express the view that should such a reduction be made as we suggested, it would naturally tend to stabilize the employment of those now in the service and probably result in bringing back into the service many now temporarily unemployed.

"We also pointed out that in case a reduction should not be made and business continue on the present basis, it would probably come about that some of the men now working would be furloughed."

Private Sesions.

The last of the joint meetings between the labor and presidents' group broke up in midafternoon. The presidents retired into a private session while the labor leaders met to draft a letter informing them of labor's decision.

The suggestion of the railroads that the employes consider as voluntary acceptance of a 10 per cent reduc-

Deputies Acquitted InMexican's Killing

Ardmore, Okla., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The closing chapter of the tragedy in which two young Mexican college students of prominent families were killed last June by two Ardmore peace officers was written today when the officers were acquitted of murder charges.

William E. Guess and Cecil Crosby, former deputy sheriffs, were found not guilty by a district court jury of the murder of Manuel Garcia Gomez. Murder charges pending against Crosby in the death of Emilio Cortes Rubio, kinsman of the Mexican president, were dismissed.

Guess, who accepted responsibility for firing the fatal shots, was acquitted last summer of the murder of young Cortes Rubio. F. M. Dudley Assistant United States Attorney General, in charge of the prosecution, said dismissal of the case against Crosby closed the matter, which aroused international interest.

Baltimorean Dies As Car Overturns

Edward Trockenbrot, 65 years old, of 307 President street, Baltimore, Md., was killed yesterday morning when a large sedan he was driving turned over on the Lee highway, near Centerville, Va. He was a commission merchant.

Mr. Trockenbrot, according to information received here yesterday afternoon, was attempting to pass another automobile when his own machine skidded and overturned. The driver was pinned beneath his machine, suffering injuries that caused his death within a few minutes.

At the time of the accident Mr. Trockenbrot was driving away from Baltimore toward the mountains of Virginia. Efforts were being made to reach relatives late yesterday. Dr. C. A. Ranson, Fairfax County coroner, gave a verdict of accidental death.

PROBABILITY OF SOVIET-JAPAN CLASHES IS DENIED BY BORAH; LEAGUE DRAFTS INQUIRY PLAN

Authority on Moscow's Attitude Allays Fear of Hostilities.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Fears for the embroiling of Soviet Russia in the Manchurian crisis between China and Japan were definitely allayed yesterday by an authoritative statement from Senator William E. Borah. The chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, whose prestige in Russia enabled him to speak authoritatively, said:

"I don't anticipate any trouble between Russia and Japan. Of course, anything may happen, but, in my opinion, there will be no trouble."

This clearing of the atmosphere will enable the council of the League of Nations to continue its mediatory activities with greater freedom.

Dawes Continues Efforts.

American Ambassador Charles G. Dawes conferred yesterday in Paris with members of the council of the League of Nations in informal sessions seeking to decide upon a satisfactory formula for the creation of an impartial commission of inquiry. The commission would make an impartial investigation of the situation that exists in Manchuria today as a result of Japanese occupation of strategic points outside their treaty zones.

The American delegate was so busy that he did not have time to report to Secretary Stimson or the President himself. G. Howland Shaw, American charge d'affaires ad interim, who is temporarily replacing Counselor Norman Armour, now on leave, cabled a lengthy report to the department on the result of the conversations exchanged between delegates.

The complete proposal will be revealed today when the league council holds its next public session to determine the best method of settling the recent hostilities between China and Japan in southern Manchuria.

China's Defense Stated.

Secretary Stimson will be handed today the text of a resolution passed by the Kuomintang in Nanking, justifying the military movements of Gen. Mah as dictated by "self-defense" and calling upon the nations signatory to the league covenant, the nine-power treaty and the Kellogg-Briand pact of their obligations under treaty commitments. At the same time that the resolution is presented here at the State Department, American Minister Nelson T. Johnson in Nanking will also be given a copy of the resolution for transmission to the department.

The resolution is a lengthy document reciting the situation created by the League of Nations when it passed an ultimatum to the Japanese government for its evacuation of Manchuria by November 16. The latest Japanese advance was initiated on that date. As a result of the Japanese attack, the capture of Tsitsihar and the rout of Chinese Gen.

Colombians Cheer Lindbergh Arrival

Barranquilla, Colombia, Nov. 22 (A.P.) (By Pan-American Airways Radio to Miami).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh nestled the giant American Clipper, Pan-American Airways seaplane, into Barranquilla Harbor at 12:03 p. m. today, amid the cheers of thousands of persons to complete the first trans-Caribbean flight of the giant air vessel.

As he landed the ship preparatory to remaining here for several days, Col. Lindbergh was welcomed to Colombia—his third trip to the nation—by Dr. Enrico De La Rosa, secretary to the governor of Barranquilla.

In addition, a group of local officials lent Dr. De La Rosa their assistance in greeting Col. Lindbergh and the seventeen passengers he brought here on the maiden voyage of the American Clipper into South America. Col. Lindbergh lifted the Clipper out of water at Kingston, Jamaica, at 7 a. m. today.

Greek Ship Reported Sinking Off Algeria

London, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—The Greek steamer Michael L. Embiricos was in difficulty tonight off the coast of Algeria. An S O S call from the vessel was intercepted by Lloyds Landsend radio station, which reported the ship was sinking 20 miles off Oran. The British steamer City of Aukland later reported it had sighted the Greek ship ashore off Plane Island, but was unable to make contact.

The Embiricos is of 5,202 tons, built in 1918. It is out of Andros, Greece, and was formerly the War Malayan.

Japanese Are Warned By Communist Organ

Soviet Will Fight Efforts to Harm Its Interests; Let Tokyo, Washington and Paris Not Forget This, Pravda Declares.

Moscow, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Japan was sharply warned today by the Communist newspaper Pravda to cease what it termed an anti-Soviet campaign in connection with Manchuria.

"Soviet Russia's peace policy does not mean it will allow efforts to harm the interests of Socialist construction to ge unpunished," declared the newspaper.

Declaring it was no secret that certain Japanese circles were seeking to complicate Japanese-Soviet relations, the Communist party organ said:

"The Japanese military can not satisfy us by assurances alone. The Japanese government must confirm by actions its peaceful intentions toward the Soviet Union and first intercept the anti-Soviet campaign."

Pravda was most outspoken of the Soviet press, which generally expressed dissatisfaction with the latest Japanese declaration to Soviet Russia. Alarm was sounded lest the widening of Japanese occupation of Manchuria would present a further opportunity for imperialistic efforts to involve the Soviet Union.

The Japanese Ambassador's statement on November 19 that Japan did not believe rumors of Chinese receiving Soviet support, Pravda said, failed to end the "anti-Soviet campaign," but on the contrary gave a new cause for the possibility of damage to Japanese-Soviet relations by demanding new assurances from Soviet Russia that it would not support the armies of Gen. Mah Chan-Shan.

An attempt to draw an analogy between the present conflict and the Chinese-Russian embroglio in 1929 was described by Pravda as "only an effort to indicate that the Soviet government was indebted to Japanese imperialism, which gives a new pretense to prolong the anti-Soviet campaign."

Continuous efforts of imperialist powers to set up in China the bogey of an "anarchy" created by Soviet Russia and rumors of Soviet support of Chinese generals, the newspaper said, were "fabricated to divert attention from imperialistic plundering of Manchuria."

REVISION IN TARIFF ON BRITAIN LOOMING

Administration Considering Change Designed to Offset Fall in Values.

(Associated Press.)

While retaliatory action against the new British tariff by the United States seems unlikely, the administration has been considering complete revision of the tariff rates on England's goods.

This would be designed to offset the new values resulting from the depreciation of the British pound sterling.

The basis of the tariff rates is cost of production of goods in foreign countries compared with similar costs here. Since Great Britain went off the gold standard, the value of the pound sterling has decreased almost a dollar, or about 25 per cent.

Present Hoover and other Government officials have been studying the effect of this as it applies to cost of production of British goods exported to this country.

In other words, they are wondering if the British goods are not produced for less under the depreciated value of the pound.

It is known that Mr. Hoover has seriously considered having the Tariff Commission make an exhaustive study of this situation with a view to raising American tariff rates applicable on Brahimitipnsroti t h stUimtaxeep on British imports in the United States.

Under the flexible provision of the tariff law he could put into effect a higher schedule of rates upon recommendation of the Tariff Commission.

While Treasury officials considered the feasibility of imposing countervailing duties on some British imports to offset Great Britain's new tariff, this has been found impossible. None of the countervailing duties which may be imposed under the law is affected by the British tariff.

At least two Republican leaders—Senators Watson of Indiana, and Borah, of Idaho—believe the United States has no cause for complaint against Great Britain for adopting a United States policy—the tariff.

GLASS HYPOCRITICAL, SAYS BISHOP CANNON

(Associated Press.)

Bishop James Cannon, jr., yesterday charged Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, with "being hypocritical" to avoid a libel suit in statements involving Miss Ellamarye Fallor, former assistant Federal district attorney of New York City.

In a formal statement, the Southern Methodist Churchman cited remarks by Senator Glass in requesting a Justice Department inquiry into the trial of Harry L. Goldhurst, convicted broker. He replied to a later statement by Senator Glass in which the senator emphasized he did not refer to Miss Fallor. She has joined in asking the inquiry. Bishop Cannon quoted Senator Glass as saying last Thursday "it is utterly inexcusable that the name of this young woman was thrust into unpleasant publicity," and added:

"On October 12 last Senator Glass gave to the press correspondence between himself and Attorney General Mitchell in which he stated that his action 'was not prompted by idle curiosity but by a desire to ascertain whether the pursuit of justice had been arrested by sanction of public officials to save from serious embarrassment a certain ecclesiastical politician.' Why did not the senator frankly admit that it was vindictive enmity against Bishop Cannon which prompted his action?

"It is only necessary to read what Senator Glass gave to the press on October 12 concerning Miss Fallor to see how cowardly and hypocritical is his present statement. * * *"

Bishop Cannon then quoted Senator Glass' October 12 statement as saying prosecution of Goldhurst, who was the biarop's broker in stock market dealings, was given to "a former female student of Bishop Cannon" and not taken from this "former student" until a New York citizen protested.

The Bishop quoted Senator Glass further as saying "The letter of this New York citizen bluntly charged that an assistant district attorney in

40 Below Grips Montana As East Glories in Heat

Kansas City, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—King Winter laid a ruthless hand on the Rocky Mountain area today, marshaling his forces for an eastern march, while New England gloried in near summer temperatures comparable to those in the southland.

The full force of a swirling, blinding blizzard gathered momentum in Montana, where an unofficial thermometer reading of 40 degrees below zero was reported near Helena.

In southern California smudge pots were fired by orchardists for the first time this season. Strong winds swept the West Coast, and clear cold weather prevailed to the north.

Pushing a blanket of fog and rain ahead, the cold wave advanced during the day into Kaness, Oklahoma, Texas, Nebraska, the Dakotas and east toward Chicago.

New York viewed the reports of cold with apprehension, looked at thermometers that registered 70:4 degrees, the highest mark recorded on any November 22, and entertained mingled feelings of disbelief.

Temperatures at points in Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico and northern Arizona ranged from a few degrees above to below zero. A heavy snowfall, continuing since early Saturday in the San Juan basin of Colorado, blockaded mountain passes and interrupted all travel in the southwestern part of the State.

Western Kansas reported snow and near-zero temperatures. It was six

Council to Meet at Noon Today to Act Upon Proposal.

OBJECTIONS BY BOTH SIDES ARE FORECAST

(Associated Press.)

The secretariat of the League of Nations drew up in Paris yesterday a resolution providing for a commission of inquiry in Manchuria after the council members spent a busy day conferring among themselves.

A Rengo News Agency dispatch from Harbin reported in Tokyo that Gen. Mah Chan-Shan's shattered forces had attacked Japanese troops near Taitsihar and were repulsed after considerable fighting.

Foreign Minister Shidehara, of Japan, said in an executive statement to the Associated Press that Japanese troops would be withdrawn from nontreaty zones of Manchuria as soon as peace had been established and denied Japan was setting up "puppet governments."

Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, denied in Peiping that China was concentrating troops in southern Manchuria or planinng a renewed assault on the Japanese forces.

Formation of a new republic in Manchuria, separate from China, has been proposed by Manchurian political leaders, Tokyo heard.

Japan indicated it desired a commission of three, including an American business man, a French army officer and a British statesman or lawyer, to investigate conditions in Manchuria and China proper.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Paris, Nov. 22.—The resolution providing for a commission of inquiry into the Sino-Japanese conflict in Manchuria was drawn up today by the secretariat of the League of Nations and circulated among the council members tonight for examination.

It was expected that twelve of the councilmen would meet privately at noon tomorrow in an attempt to reach a unanimous indorsement of disinterested members before formally submitting the proposal to the Japanese and Chinese delegates.

It was understood in reliable sources that the resolution provides roughly for a commission of about three members with a number of supporting experts and advisers. The inquiry would embrace the whole problem before the council, including Japan's contention regarding the recognition of treaties.

Wide Geographical Scope.

Its geographical scope would include Nanking and Peiping, in China proper, as well as Manchuria. It would provide for eventual troop withdrawals from nontreaty zones, but only of an advisory nature.

Its activities would also extend to Tokyo, presumably for a study of the legal and political aspects of the controversy.

It was acknowledged in authoritative quarters that the resolution inevitably would encounter objections from both parties, and feelers already extended have met with expressions of dissatisfaction from both delegations.

The deadlock continues very sharply drawn and it was felt the council members under Chairman Briand's leadership would have to draw on the last reserve of their influence if the agreement of Dr. Alfred Sze and Ambassador Kenkichi Yoshizawa is to be obtained.

Chinese Maintain Objection.

The Chinese delegation reiterated that their position on the commission was unchanged and that they awaited the presentation of the draft of the

Brookhart Is Taken to Task On Alliance With Thompson

Fellow Republican From Iowa Tells Senator He May Be Asked to Apologize to State on Proposal and Demands Correspondence.

(Associated Press.)

A fellow Republican from Iowa yesterday suggested to Senator Brookhart that he might be asked to apologize to his State for seeking an alliance with William Hale Thompson, of Chicago, in support of Senator Hiram Johnson for President.

Representative Cole asked Brookhart to make public his correspondence with Thompson respecting a joint Iowa-Illinois movement for the California senator.

The letter of Thompson, former Chicago Mayor, to Brookhart stating he would be glad to confer with Johnson was made public. Brookhart never gave out the text of his letter to Thompson.

Senator Johnson himself has taken no part in the affair. Returning here from California Friday he renewed his attack upon President Hoover's policies, but gave no intimation that he would enter the presidential race.

"I can not make myself believe that the people of the State which you and I in part represent in Congress want to be placed in an alliance, either political or moral, with the man who was Mayor of Chicago when that city was in the control of the Al Capones who robbed the sick and the dead," Cole wrote to Brookhart.

"Instead of sanctioning an alliance of which you are the sole projector, William Hale Thompson the sole manipulator, and Hiram Johnson the sole beneficiary, is it not possible that they are expecting an apology from you for even having suggested such an arrangement in what you call a 'private' and 'innocent' letter?

"As an Iowan I want to enter my protest against such a commitment of our State, and if I did not protest I would feel I had lost some of my self-respect."

Senator Brookhart, pending receipt of the Cole letter, would not comment upon it except to say, "I'll have something to say about it—I'll answer it." He added he wouldn't give out the Thompson correspondence "after a demand like that."

Brookhart comes up for reelection next year and there was a hint from his friends that Cole might get into the contest.

JAPANESE DIPLOMAT HITS CHINESE ACTION

By BARON KIJURO SHIDEHARA
(Foreign Minister of Japan).

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Tokyo, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The whole difficulty in Manchuria originates from a long series of open disregard by China of treaties which are essential to the security of that region.

Its immediate cause is now well known to be the violent attack of September 18 last made by Chinese troops on the South Manchurian Railway zone, under protection of the Japanese army.

We are all too apt to forget that between 1895 and 1904 China had allowed Russia to get Manchuria completely within her grasp. It was practically a Russian province. By the war of 1904-05 Japan wrested it from the control of the czar, and handed Manchuria back to China, only stipulating the retention of the South Manchurian Railway and the right of military protection of that line, together with a lease of Kwantung.

All the time China was secretly an ally of Russia, and had this fact been known Japan would have had every justification for replacing Russia in Manchuria. In 1915 she did obtain some extension of her rights—in particular recognition of the right of her people to lease Manchurian land—and her civilizing efforts resulted in enormously increasing the prosperity and population of the country.

Repudiation of Treaties.

Then came the intense campaign by which all nations have suffered in China for the repudiation of the so-called "unequal" treaties; and this means the repudiation of Japanese treaties which had secured peace and order in Manchuria.

Outrage succeeded outrage and our Korean fellow-subjects, for whose interests we feel especially responsible, were again and again attacked and were beginning to retaliate.

Such a situation could not last. Japan relied and relies on peaceful means for its settlement. Only her troops were not in the railway zone as ornaments. When the Chinese attacked the line they could not but perform the duty for which they were there: namely, to repel the attack and to prevent its repetition.

As soon as Manchuria is safe they will be withdrawn to the railway zone and the situation will again become normal. A Sino-Japanese commission (as was at first almost agreed upon) could have arranged this, but China preferred to decline all negotiations and to invoke the distant league—and so the matter for the present rests.

Fled Upon Troops' Approach.

Accusations are reported to have been made in China that Japan is establishing "puppet governments" to subserve her own interests in Manchuria. The fact is that the former Chinese officials fled upon the approach of our forces and left the unfortunate country largely destitute of constituted authorities.

Some substitute had to be improvised and this was spontaneously done by the local population, of course with the countenance of our troops. If these popular attempts at self-determination should eventually prove inconsistent with arbitrary rule in the region of Manchuria the fact might afford a speedy solution of present difficulties, but Japan regards it as entirely a matter for the Manchurian people themselves and is affording no encouragement or stimulus to such a development.

Did Japan wish to create a subservient government in Manchuria, the organization of these sporadic committees of public safety would be the least hopeful way to set about it. The recognition of one united and powerful group of rulers of Manchuria would be the only practical course.

Needles to say, she contemplates no such tortuous policy. But she can not be blamed for keeping on foot some rudimentary civil organization. The proposition that the Japanese are instigating banditry scarcely needs refutation.

CONSTANCE BENNETT,
one of Hollywood's highest paid screen stars, and the Marquis Henri de la Falaise, who were married yesterday in the Hollywood home of George Fitzmaurice, film director. The ceremony was private.

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 22 (U.P.).—The Marquis Henri De La Falaise, French Nobleman, began his second matrimonial adventure with a motion-picture actress late today when he married the blonde Constance Bennett.

Deserted by Gloria Swanson a year ago, he married Miss Bennett in the Beverly Hills home of George Fitzmaurice. Miss Bennett is said to be the highest paid star in film-land.

The wedding was private and only a few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony. Scores of reporters and photographers who were massed about the house were refused admittance.

Joan Bennett, actress sister of the bride, and Eileen Percy, film writer, attended Miss Bennett, while Henri Didot, local French consul, was best man. Richard Bennett, father of the bride; Barbara Bennet Downey, Gene Markey, Mr. and Mrs. Fitzmaurice, Marion Davies and W. R. Hearst also were present.

The nuptials were read by Judge Lewis R. Works, presiding judge of the Second District Court of Appeals.

Miss Bennett wore an Alice Blue lace afternoon dress with cape and hat to match, and a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Although the couple did not invite many friends to the ceremony, a reception tonight gave scores of motion picture notables an opportunity to congratulate the newlyweds.

Because Miss Bennett is working on a new picture, no honeymoon trip will be planned until she has completed the film, some time next month.

Leaders of the Minseito (government) party were engaged in vitally important political conversations, presumably directed toward formation of a coalition or emergency regime to meet pressing national problems.

The extent of progress toward a coalition cabinet was uncertain. Kenzo Adachi, minister of home affairs, disclosed the possibility of a new regime yesterday when he issued a statement suggesting a change. Adachi recommended establishment of a coalition regime in which the Minseito party would cooperate with the Seiyukai opposition.

Motives Cause Speculation.

The government leaders were understood to have opened negotiations with the Seiyukai party, led by Takeshi Inukai, but met with opposition. The conferences were continued, however, and it was indicated that Wakatsuki may be expected to resign soon.

There was wide speculation concerning the motives behind the negotiations. The cabinet has been forced to meet foreign and financial problems of greatest importance to the empire in the last few months.

At the outbreak of the conflict with China in Manchuria, it was said that the military element in the government had seized control from the conciliatory civil leaders, such as Foreign Minister Baron Shidehara. The government denied these reports and approved the action of the military in Manchuria, but the indications of dissension continued.

Militarist Party Strong.

The army and navy representatives in the cabinet are less under civilian control in the Japanese cabinet than in most western governments, and there has long been a strong militarist party in Japan. In the last two weeks all outward indications have been of accord between the military and the government leaders, despite the reports of earlier conflict.

The government indicated that threats to withdraw Kenkichi Yoshizawa as delegate to the League of Nations Council had been dropped. The cabinet was irritated by Yoshizawa's reports or failure to report developments at Paris, but it was understood the situation was smoothed out by explanations received later.

INDEPENDENTS PLAN STRONG HOUSE ROLE

Meeting Called for Wednesday to Organize Forces for Coming Battle.

(Associated Press.)

Aggressive independents plan to force a powerful wedge into the House control regardless of which party organizes that branch in the coming Congress.

A preliminary meeting of independents in both parties yesterday was called for Wednesday. The invitation was directed particularly at Democratic independents and came as leaders jockeyed for position in the quest for House control. The insurgents have not figured so strongly since the Republicans lost the majority.

Representative LaGuardia, Republican independent, New York, and Representative Kvale, of Minnesota, lone Farmer-Laborite, served notice in issuing the call that although the Democrats "have a majority at this time sufficient to elect a Speaker . . . neither party will have a working majority without the cooperation of the progressives."

The meeting, a joint statement said, was for arranging "preparatory work for a conference when all progressives have arrived for this season."

The statement indicated clearly that Kvale, who has made no announcement with which party he would align himself in organization, had decided to continue in an independent role. Both he and LaGuardia said they would "reserve the right to support and urge such legislation as they deem proper and to the best interests of the country."

"The Progressives feel that the rules of the House, which would permit the House to retain control of legislation and remove boss control, is of greater importance to the people than the personal ambition of any individual for special committee assignments," they added. "The Progressive group therefore welcomes the continued cooperation of Progressive Democrats who worked with them when the Democrats were in the minority."

Should the Republican independents swing a number of Democrats they would hold a balance of power sufficient to throw the organization to either party. However, the 217 Democrats are sponsoring Representative Garner, of Texas, for Speaker, while the 214 Republicans will decide at a conference November 30 whom they will support.

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, floor leader in the last Congress, and Representative Snell, of New York, chairman of the last rules committee, appear to have about equal support for the Republican speakership nomination.

On the Democratic side, the question of whether the floor leadership will go North or South is to be decided at the party caucus December 5. With the speakership probably going to Garner and a number of important chairmanships to the South, indications are that the leadership may go North, or to the Middle West.

evasion and be a short, concise declaration of the party's determination to restore our liberties and the spirit of the Constitution through recognizing States' rights, home rule, the need of decentralization at Washington, the cutting of riotous national expenditures with consequent relief from excessive taxation?

2. Do you recommend that the Democratic platform should commit all Democratic members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives to vote in favor of a resolution that will submit the prohibition question (eighteenth amendment) to the people of the United States for their individual consideration and decision?

• • • •

This recommendation is now under consideration by the Democratic party and has been approved by the American Legion and the American Bar Association. It is important to note that a vote to submit this question to the people themselves does not commit a member of Congress to either side of the prohibition controversy.

Senator Morris Sheppard, of Texas, one of the coauthors of the eighteenth amendment, made the following statement in the United States Senate in debate on the submission of the eighteenth amendment on July 30, 1917:

"The member of Congress who will not vote for the submission of a constitutional amendment to the decision of the States, where it belongs, unless he personally believes it should become a part of the Constitution, usurps the function of the States, arrogates to himself and the Federal Government a prerogative that belongs to the States and violates the very essence of their sovereignty. • • •

"Were I opposed on principle to Nation-wide prohibition, I would vote to submit the amendment to the States in order that they might exercise one of their fundamental rights. An issue is thus presented by the Nation-wide amendment entirely independent of prohibition." (Congressional Record, Vol. 55, part 6, Sixty-fifth Congress, first session, page 5553.)

3. The Constitution provides no machinery for a national referendum on any question. It does, however, provide a way under which the people of the United States can vote on constitutional questions. No part of the Constitution can be altered, repealed or modified in any way except through proposing new amendments, and this has been done many times in the past. The first step necessary is that two-thirds of the United States Senate and of the House of Representatives vote in favor of new amendments. Congress may provide that to become part of the Constitution such new amendments must be ratified, not by the Legislatures of the States, as has been done with previous amendments, but by the people themselves through conventions in each State specially called for this purpose only.

3. Do you recommend that the Democratic platform declare in favor of requiring that all future amendments to the Constitution be ratified by the people themselves through conventions of the people in each State and not permit ratification through State Legislatures in future? This action will insure a national referendum of the people themselves on all future amendments before they can become part of the Constitution?

4. At the last meeting of the Democratic national committee there was presented what is termed a "home rule plan for liquor control." This plan recommends that the Democratic members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives be committed to vote in favor of a new constitutional amendment which in effect will modify the eighteenth amendment as follows:

"Nothing in the Constitution shall prevent any State from taking over absolute complete control of the manufacture, transportation, importation and sale of intoxicating beverages within its own territory and exportation thereof to such other States, countries and territories as do not prohibit same, provided however, that the plan under which that State proposes to take over such liquor control is first approved by the people of that State in State-wide referendum."

It will be noted that, should this amendment be adopted, the eighteenth amendment will stay in full force and effect with respect to all of the States until some States work out liquor control plans of their own which must be approved by their people in State-wide referendum before they can be adopted.

This plan leaves all the other States in the position of still having national prohibition and all the power of the Federal Government for its enforcement, and almost certainly guards against the return of the old-fashioned saloon because a majority of people in no State would vote in favor of a local State liquor control plan which permitted a return of the deplorable conditions which existed under the old saloon system.

The amendment might also provide that a State at any time may rescind its previous action, thus again submitting itself to the provisions of the eighteenth amendment.

• • • •

Do you recommend that the Democratic platform commit the Democratic members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives to vote in favor of a proposal which will give the people themselves through conventions of the people in each State opportunity to vote on a new constitutional amendment which, in effect, modifies the eighteenth amendment through the adoption of the "home-rule plan for liquor control," as above described?

5. Do you recommend that the Democratic platform commit the Democratic members of the Senate and House of Representatives to vote in favor of a proposal which will give the people themselves, through conventions of the people in each State, opportunity to vote on the question of straight repeal of the eighteenth amendment?

6. Do you prefer that the Democratic platform commit the Democratic members of the Senate and House of Representatives to vote in favor of a resolution proposing modification of the eighteenth amendment, as outlined in question 4, as against voting in favor of a resolution proposing straight repeal of the eighteenth amendment, as outlined in question 5?

7. Do you believe that other economic issues will be so overwhelming in the 1932 campaign that the Democratic platform can successfully ignore the prohibition question, with its economic problems, by remaining silent, or by adopting a mere law enforcement plank, as was done in the 1928 convention.

tion in their wages was made with the stipulation that the arrangement would terminate at the expiration of twelve months unless continued by agreement for a longer period.

The conferences with the labor representatives, Mr. Willard said in his letter to Mr. Robinson, developed nothing, "nor is anything suggested in your letter, which would seem now to make unnecessary the course which the railway executives had decided upon before this conference was called."

Decide to Convene.

Mr. Robertson's letter to Mr. Willard said "The organizations affiliated with the railway labor executives' association have decided to convene respectively their general chairmen for the purpose of submitting this entire matter to the consideration of these immediate representatives of the employes on the various railroad systems for their appropriate action in conformity with the laws of the respective organizations."

This was taken to indicate that the employes in individual railroads would be permitted to take any action in the matter they deemed acceptable.

Views of Presidents.

In another communication to Mr. Robertson, also made public today, Mr. Willard outlined the views of the presidents on the program the labor executives proposed earlier in the week.

He informed Mr. Robertson that the presidents were "unable to accept your conclusion that the six-hour day is necessary and that it must be instituted in order to absorb the existing number of experienced employes without reduction of compensation."

He said the presidents doubted the "wisdom of recommending to the Congress the appropriation of $1,000,000,000" for grade crossing elimination on main-traveled highways.

Mr. Willard said the presidents, however, would "favor a full and complete study of the subject and we believe that a common basis might be developed upon which we could jointly seek to obtain action beneficial to all concerned."

Besides Mr. Willard, the letter was signed by L. W. Baldwin, C. E. Denney, L. A. Downs, J. E. Gorman, A. C. Needles, J. J. Pelley, H. D. Pollard and C. A. Wickersham.

B.& O. Group Considers Voluntary Wage Slash

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 22.—A general committee of Baltimore & Ohio shopcrafts, telegraphers, dispatchers, clerks and other employes, aside from trainmen, has taken under advisement a request by the company that a wage cut of 10 per cent be accepted voluntarily. Meetings between company officials and the employes have just been concluded in Baltimore.

If the employes refuse to accept a voluntary reduction of 10 per cent, the matter will go to the Federal Board of Mediation at Washington for decision. This would entail a delay of several months, whereas a voluntary acceptance would put the cuts into effect immediately for a period of one year.

Governors Plead For Water Project

Six on Radio to Ask for Speedy Senate Action on St. Lawrence.

(Associated Press.)

Speedy Senate action upon an expected St. Lawrence seaway treaty, now in process of negotiation, will be called for by six governors, scheduled to join in a half-hour radio broadcast December 3.

The Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater Association announced yesterday Govs. La Follette of Wisconsin, Shafer of North Dakota, Brucker of Michigan, Emerson of Illinois and White of Ohio had agreed to take part. A sixth governor will act as announcer and master of ceremonies.

On the same date, the association said, a meeting of its council of States will meet in Chicago. It said tentative acceptances of invitations to attend had been received not only from the five scheduled to join in the broadcast, but also from Govs. Olson of Minnesota, Turner of Iowa, Erickson of Montana, Leslie of Indiana and Green of South Dakota.

LEAGUE SECRETARIAT DRAFTS RESOLUTION FOR CHINA PROBE

proposal. The Nanking government is opposed to any compromise omitting evacuation of Japanese forces from northwest Manchuria, it was said, and will not consider an inquiry into China proper.

Other members of the council, especially the British, were understood to maintain that the league has no business meddling in China, as Japan demanded, but must confine itself to the Manchurian conflict.

Many observers expressed the belief that Japan, having seized the principal strategic points in Manchuria, is merely playing for time in advancing the inquiry plan. The opinion was widely held that the next few days will find the deadlock all the more stubborn.

Japan's Choice of Personnel.

Tokyo, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Japan would like to have an American business man, a French army officer and a British statesman or lawyer on the proposed international commission of inquiry which would visit Manchuria, it was learned today.

But official circles regarded China's acceptance of Japan's conditions for the inquiry, which was proposed at the League of Nations session at Paris, as unlikely.

The Nanking government probably would object, it was believed here, to Japan's insistence that the agreement was contingent on the commissions investigating the anti-Japanese boycott and other alleged activities of violence against Japan in China proper.

Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese spokesman at Paris, also has been instructed that if the duties of the proposed commission would have the slightest resemblance to provisions of the leagues covenant and article 15, the idea would be opposed vigorously. Article 15 would give the commission a far wider scope of action, judgment and recommendation that Japan would approve under the circumstances, the government held.

Tokyo's Conditions Bared.

Japan's approval of the investigating commission, it was authoritatively emphasized, rested entirely on the following conditions:

1. The commission should investigate the whole of China, in addition to Manuchuria, paying special attention to the history of China's anti-foreign tendencies, not only toward Japan but toward other powers as well.

2. The commission should have neither supervisory powers nor the privilege to examine military activities of either party in Manchuria.

3. The commission should not in any way participate or interfere in negotiations between Japan and China designed to bring a settlement in Manchuria nor have any bearing on the question of evacuation.

There were other details of the conditions which went to form the basis of Japan's approval in principle of the commission, which, according to Paris dispatches, Dr. Alfred Sze, China's representative, had referred to Nanking for final decision.

Japanese Advance Reported.

London, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—A Harbin dispatch to the London Daily Mail today quoted Chinese sources as saying Japanese troops who occupied Tsitsihar were advancing along the railway line to Koshan, which is 75 miles northeast of Tsitsihar, in Manchuria.

Japanese were reported pursuing the retreating troops of Gen. Mah Chan-Shan while Japanese airplanes bombed Koshan.

The Japanese-owned newspaper, Carrios, which is printed in Russian, said Japanese would be compelled to send forces to Harbin if the slightest sign of a hostile disturbance occurred there. The situation in Harbin was described as quiet, but tense.

Japanese Troops Suffer.

Mukden, Manchuria, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The Japanese detachment at Tsitsihar was said in official dispatches today to be encamped in the former Chinese barracks outside the city, suffering from bitter cold.

Before evacuating Tsitsihar, it was said, the Chinese troops broke all the windows and stoves in the barracks. Many cases of frostbite have resulted, for the Japanese officers refuse to quarter their men in civilian houses. Their resistance to the cold is diminished by the fact that they fought two days without food in capturing the city.

The Japanese victory was achieved with 3,500 men, 20 field guns and a few airplanes, it was disclosed, against what were described as overwhelming Chinese forces. The invaders had a detachment of armored cars, but they froze up and were useless. The planes' motors were kept running day and night for two days prior to the battle so they could be used.

The strength of the Chinese troops engaged in the defense of the city and surrounding territory was unknown to Japanese headquarters, but estimates varied at between 20,000 and 50,000 men.

A stirring tale of personal heroism was told of a Japanese soldier, who was the only man to be captured by the Chinese in the fighting prior to the occupation of Tsitsihar and who was freed several days ago.

Chinese Torture Charged.

The soldier, Yamada by name, who is a horseshoer, was one of a patrol of six men which was surprised in the Nonni River area by 60 Chinese cavalry men and surrounded. When it was seen that the patrol would be annihilated, the officer in charge instructed Yamada to take the best horse and attempt to reach headquarters.

Armed only with a hammer, Yamada charged his enemies and fought desperately to break through, but a bullet brought down his mount and he was captured. He saw all his comrades slain and was carried to Tsitsihar, where he was said to have been tortured in an unsuccessful attempt to extract military information from him.

He was bound to a post and exposed in the streets by day and jailed by night. After the fighting began last week, a Korean jailer released him and hid him in a house within the city until the arrival of the Japanese forces.

A similar story was told of two Japanese paymaster officers and five employes — noncombatants — whose house behind the Japanese lines was attacked by marauding Chinese cavalry. They stoutly defended themselves until the house was fired, and then the paymasters ordered the five men to try to fight their way to headquarters.

One got through and four were killed. The paymasters kept the Chinese at bay until the house and the money chest were consumed by flames. They too lost their lives.

Peiping, Nov. 22.—Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, deposed governor of Manchuria, denied in an interview with the Associated Press today published reports that China was massing troops in southern Manchuria in preparation for a renewed attack on the Japanese forces.

"Ever since the occupation of Mukden," he said, "the Japanese have been alleging the presence of huge Chinese forces in Manchuria. This is false. They now state that Chinese cavalry is concentrating at Gungliao, that 50,000 troops are assembling at Chinchow and that three trainloads of infantry from Peiping and Tientsin have arrived outside the Great Wall.

"These reports are equally untrue. They are but another instance of a policy to create pretexts for further aggression. It is notorious that the Japanese military confiscated the revenues of legitimate Manchurian provincial governments and attempted to coerce us by confronting us with the danger of financial strangulation."

Asked as to his attitude toward the league's attempts in Paris to avert war, he countered with a question: "Are the league covenant, the Kellogg pact and the Washington nine-power treaty to be thrown into the waste basket?"

"The capitals of the world must not be ignorant of the fact that Japanese troops not only did not evacuate Chinese territory in accordance with the council's resolution, but actually pursued a policy of studied invasion of new areas."

LIKELIHOOD OF SOVIET-JAPAN CLASHES IS DENIED BY BORAH

Mah quickly followed. The resolution was received by the Chinese Legation here yesterday and it was announced will be presented to the State Department today by Hawkling Yen, charge d'affaires of the legation.

Kuomintang Influence.

It was recalled here yesterday, however, that the force of the Kuomintang has not always indicated a corresponding nationalistic sentiment for all of China. The Kuomintang is the political party now in power in Nanking and its influence on the Nationalist government proper at Nanking is consequently very strong. However, outside of Nanking, in Canton and in Manchuria and even outside the large cities of China, the influence of the Koumintang has been slight.

The report of Mr. Shaw was not made public yesterday, but it was communicated at once to Secretary Stimson at his home in Woodley. It was understood to be a recapitulation of the events of the last four days in Paris during the meetings of the league council in their peace-seeking efforts. Gen. Dawes has been quietly following the discussions as they took place outside of the league council. The United States will not be a party to the deliberations of the council proper, but Ambassador Dawes was sent from his London post to Paris to be able to confer in an informal manner with the various delegates on an equal footing and to be able to assume a certain autonomy of action if the State Department should think the moment opportune or necessary for independent American action.

U. S. Awaits Paris Move.

It was learned here last night that further American action in the Manchurian crisis will depend on the outcome of today's meeting. During the interim China and Japan seemed to have composed their differences somewhat, although there still remain several points of conflict. If these remaining details can be ironed out today by the eloquence of M. Aristide Briand, who is chairman of the council for this special purpose, the concomitant action of the United States, through Ambassador Dawes, is expected to follow.

The decision of the League Council leans very strongly to the appointment of a neutral committee of inquiry to discover the causes of the recent clashes on the Manchurian plains between Chinese and Japanese troops. Japan has already put forward the nomination of Gen. Charles P. Summerall, retired, former chief of staff of the United States Army.

During the appointment of the commission of inquiry the two armies would be obliged by their respective goveraments to refrain from all further advances. They likewise would be expected to maintain the conditions of the truce which would have to be accepted before the arrival of the neutral commission of inquiry.

Despite the varying attitudes toward the creation of the commission that have been alternately put forward by the Chinese and the Japanese, it is believed that this solution is the likeliest to find favor with both combatants.

"Lincoln Letter' on Italy Nnification HeldForgery

Rome, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Henry Nelson Gay, secretary of the Italo-American Society and Rome historian, today described as a "forgery" a letter attributed to Abraham Lincoln in which he urged the unification of Italy and predicted that Rome would become the capital of a United States of Europe.

Himself the author of a life of Lincoln in Italian, Gay said: "Lincoln could not have written it. Anyone who has studied Lincoln would be certain of that. I have read Lincoln's correspondence and know that he did not have enough knowledge of European affairs to have written it."

The fog and rain had not yet reached St. Louis, where transportation continued unhampered.

The abnormal warmth in the East was reflected at Lake Placid, N. Y., where an unofficial thermometer reading of 65 degrees was believed to set a record.

Maine enjoyed summer weather. Motorists thronged the highways. Temperatures were in the seventies. Boston also reported high marks of 70 degrees, a record for Thanksgiving week.

The United States Weather Bureau at Richmond reported a high temperature of 78 and a minimum of 52 during the 24 hours.

The forecast was for overcast skies and possible showers today, but Weather Bureau officials said the warm spell would not be broken before Wednesday at the earliest. They said that the cold wave which has swept the Rocky Mountain States was moving slowly eastward and that its force would be almost spent when it reached the Atlantic seaboard.

PARTIES COOPERATE ON HIGHER TAX PLAN

Leaders on Both Sides Seek Way to Hasten Legislation on Deficit.

(Associated Press.)

A tone of moderation has brought congressional leaders of both parties into close accord on the impending tax increase legislation.

On Capitol Hill, attention is largely focused on the income rates and sales levies applying to so-called luxuries as means of raising new revenue.

Higher income rates and a broad base of new sales taxes will be recommended by Secretary Mellon. Democrats are waiting for this program, but their first inclination is to oppose going as far as would the administration in boosting the income tax.

Robinson and Smoot Differ.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic floor leader, gave one of the first hints of the party program Saturday, when he opposed any policy of levying taxes on the principle of redistributing wealth by striking only big incomes. He proposed that the bulk of the prospective billion and a half dollar deficit be met by floating Government bonds to tide the Treasury over the deficit period. He viewed favorably moderate income tax raises and establishment of excise taxes on luxuries.

Robinson favored a more moderate program than proposed by Chairman Smoot, of the Senate finance committee, the administration's spokesman on revenue affairs. Smoot has suggested raising $1,200,000,000 by new taxes and urged doubling of the maximum surtax rate of 20 per cent applying on incomes over $100,000.

With Smoot and Robinson not so very far apart in their views, the impression is growing that the prediction of Representative Garner, of Texas, the Democratic leader, of a nonpartisan tax measure may be realized.

Watson Urges Cooperation.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, has urged cooperation to avoid uncertainty by enacting speedily the tax measure.

No definite move will be made on the tax question until Secretary Mellon has reported and made his recommendation which, it is expected, President Hoover will transmit to Congress. Democratic control of the House will place up to them the task of originating the new revenue bill.

Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, a Democratic member of the finance committee, in a statement yesterday asserted that "the United States can not bring back prosperity by merely increasing income taxes."

When Washington Was Younger—No. 114

The place of worship had been dedicated only a short time before and the congregation numbered among its members President Benjamin Harrison and several of his Cabinet.

One can imagine the national scope of such a collapse had a large group of officials been attending services when it occurred. By mutual arrangement the architect, contractor and the church shared equally in restoring the building.

GUN BATTLE MARKS $200,000 GEM THEFT

Lake Forest, Ill., Nov. 22 (U.P.).—A $200,000 jewel robbery turned this millionaire lake shore colony north of Chicago into a bandit battle ground today after ten robbers had invaded a party in the mansion of William Hamilton Mitchell, financier.

When the shooting was over, police had recovered all of the jewelry with the exception of one brooch and a watch, and had arrested three of the bandits, Paul Ross, Joseph Perello and Nick Maentis, Chicago gangsters. Capture of the other seven was expected shortly.

Nine of the city's most prominent social leaders were playing backgammon late last night when the bandits drove up in two automobiles bearing fake police stars, overpowered a watchman, broke into the house and forced the Mitchells and their guests to hand over their jewelry.

Mr. Mitchell and his wife, Mrs. E. A. Cudahy, jr., Leslie Wheeler and his wife, Mrs. De Koven Phelps, William McCormick Blair and his wife, and Ralph Hines knelt on the floor at pistol points. They stripped themselves of diamond bracelets, pearl necklaces, rings, watches and cash, valued by them at approximately $200,000.

While the bandits thus were engaged in one of the most spectacular robberies ever enacted in the metropolitan area, William Matheson, chauffeur for the Mitchells, was creeping silently up the backstairs to telephone police.

They arrived just as the robbers were driving away. There ensued a gun battle in a driving rain before the eyes of Mitchell's guests. The bandits escaped momentarily, some in one of the automobiles, the rest on foot through the wooded estates of Lake Forest.

Police immediately placed guards at all electric line and railroad stations, stopping every one who attempted to leave Lake Forest. Ross and Perello were captured trying to board a train for Chicago. Other guards patrolled the roads, questioning all motorists whether they were North Shore millionaires in evening dress and limousines or Northwestern University students in collegiate flivvers.

Several hundred persons were stopped before officers found Maentis in Highland Park, his clothes drenched and covered with burrs. Other officers meanwhile had searched the grounds surrounding the Mitchell home, finding on a barb-wire fence an overcoat, in the pockets of which were nearly all the jewels and most of the cash.

The coat fitted Ross perfectly. Mitchell's guests identified him as the bandit leader. They said he was the only one of the invaders who did not wear a mask.

TRAIN WRECK KILLS 5 MEN, AND HORSES

Valuable Show Animals and Handlers Die as Cars Are Derailed.

Lexington, Mo., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Five men and many of the finest show horses of America, were killed late today in the wreck of a Missouri Pacific "million dollar" live stock train bearing the equine aristocracy to Chicago from the American Royal Live Stock and Horse Show in Kansas City.

An undetermined number of men, virtually all handlers of the animals and riding with their charges in the cars, were injured. Rescuers did not attempt to list these hurt but searched frenziedly in the wreckage of approximately 20 cars for more bodies.

While the search went on, no attempt was made to identify five victims, taken to a Lexington mortuary.

The wreck, attributed to a spread rail, occurred at dusk on a curve, near a paved State highway. Rain was falling, and the murky night, the mud and confusion handicapped rescuers who hurried from town to join trainmen and owners riding in a passenger coach at the rear of the train.

The passenger coach and two-thirds of the stock cars did not leave the rails, the cars toppling over being immediately behind the engine, which also remained on the track.

Screams of the injured and dying horses added to the confusion of shattered cars and broken bodies.

Of the dead horses, six were identified as owned by Miss Hilda McCormick, Chicago, and one as that of Harry Gorham, Morris, Ill. Other owners whose beloved show animals were on the train included Bridgeford and Radford, Joy, Ill.; Emill Philip Schandein, Milwaukee; Miss Mary Gwyn Fiers, Oklahoma City; R. C. Flanery, Kansas, Ill.; H. G. Eshelman, Sedgwick, Kans.; G. A. Nichols, Oklahoma City; Mrs. A. C. Thompson, Chicago; Mary Belle Llewellyn, River Forest, Ill., and Anacacho Ranch, Spofford, Tex.

Virtually all the horses were to be shown this week in the International Livestock Exposition to Chicago.

COTTON IMPOUNDING PLAN IS ANNOUNCED

Farm Board Says 6,600,000 Bales Will Be Locked Up for Year to Avert Glut.

(Associated Press.)

An agreement to lock up 6,600,000 bales of cotton for one year until the crush of the enormous current crop has spent its force was announced yesterday by the Farm Board.

Word was received from Nathan Adams, of Dallas, Tex., that Southern bankers have arranged to make or renew loans to farmers for holding 3,100,000 bales—400,000 short of the original goal.

The board and the American Cotton Cooperative Association, for their part, have agreed to hold their stores of about 3,500,000 bales until July 31, 1932, the beginning of the new crop year.

This pledge, however, would not be binding if the price should reach 12½ cents a pound during the interim.

Baruch Urges Control Plan.

The bankers, board officials and representatives of the cooperative association drafted the plan in New Orleans October 12 as an emergency move to increase prices by preventing gluts on an already congested market. A slight rise in prices resulted from the announcement.

The bankers sought financing for 3,500,000 bales, but encountered difficulty in obtaining full support.

Plumber's Plight Proves Habit Not Easily Shaken

By JOHN J. DALY

WHILE the wedding bells were ringing, a Los Angeles plumber, standing with his bride before the altar, remembered that he had forgotten the ring and, true to his training, went back to get it.

As the absent-minded bridegroom left the scene of his wedding, meandering along the way, killing time, he shook off all thoughts of the moment, with their portentous responsibilities, and became a business man. So, he naturally drifted toward his shop. All dressed up, he knew that this was no time to go a-plumbing. Instead, he sat himself down at his desk and made out a bill which was later dispatched to the bride's father.

After the honeymoon the irate father-in-law acquainted his daughter with the manner of man she had married. It looked for a while as if the affair would end in the divorce courts until a learned psychiatrist was called in on the case. He explained this phase of character and all was forgiven.

* * * *

THE plumber, with a penchant for going back over his tracks, is no different from any other man. It seems, according to the opinion rendered, that certain callings and professions, vocations and avocations, all carry with them and develop traits which are not easily shaken off—even in times of stress. It is all a matter of psychology, of habit.

The floor walker does not necessarily make a good husband and father, walking the floor with the baby, but get him inside a church and immediately he starts showing people to their pews.

A United States senator, wherever he is—no matter what the occasion—is liable at any moment to burst forth in oratory.

Applaud an actor and he'll make a bow.

Give a Napoleon an army and he'll start a war.

The dual forces in man are aptly illustrated in the case of the bridegroom-plumber.

* * * *

IT was no different from the case of the surgeon who, having operated on a patient for appendicitis, forgot one of his instruments and had to reopen the wound. Upon leaving the hospital, the doctor discovered he had forgotten his hat. So he rushed back into the sick room, looking for the headgear. At sight of the physician searching for his hat the patient suffered a relapse.

These are the little things that make life interesting, so that Don Quixote could exclaim, "Every man is as heaven made him, and sometimes a great deal worse."

Let them say what they will, the plumber was true to himself, and to his calling.

He might have forgotten the ring, but he did not forget the bill.

Auto Kills Leonardtown Woman; Driver Is Held

Lillian Bevans, 35 years old, of Leonardtown, Md., was fatally injured when struck by an auto driven by Joseph H. Barnes, of Mitchellville, yesterday afternoon as she walked along the road about a quarter of a mile from Leonardtown. Barnes was arrested and held on an open charge pending a hearing in conection with the death and was charged with driving without a license.

According to State police, Barnes figured in an accident about a month ago. Barnes' driving license was revoked, it was reported.

Canyon Upsets Movie Cameramen

Climbing Down 73 Feet Is Task, but Darkness Foils Lens.

Montrose, Colo. (U.P.).—Movietone men tried to film the noted scenery of Black Canyon, through which the Gunnison River flows, but found it too big a task.

Black Canyon is several hundred feet deeper than Royal Gorge, near Canyon City, which heretofore has been recognized as a spectacle of the Rockies.

L. E. Orr wanted to film the gigantic river and the sky into one picture. The sound mechanism was to record the primitive noises of the region, including the roaring of the river over the rocks, but darkness fooled them.

Paid Peanut Bet.

Murders Laid to Brawl or Gang Vengeance; Another Stabbed to Death.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Two young men with long police records were shot to death and thrown from an automobile early today in a deserted section of the Bronx. A policeman found their bodies in front of a metal factory on East 134th street.

Fingerprints identified them as Michael J. Ahearn, 26, a "bouncer" in a Lexington avenue dance hall, where he worked as usual last night, and John Lynch, also 26, reported to have been a member of a beer-running gang.

Lynch's body, a bullet hole behind one ear, was propped up against a high board fence surrounding the factory. In his pock : was a pistol from which two bullets had been fired. Ahearn's body lay sprawled where it was thrown. He had been shot in the back and under the right eye. There were tire marks near the bodies.

Police theories were that the men were killed in a speakeasy brawl or they were victims of gangland vengeance and had been "taken for a ride."

At Lenox avenue and 119th street police found William Graham, 30, unconscious on the sidewalk suffering from stab wounds. He died three hours later without regaining consciousness.

In Brooklyn, Patrolman Alexander Fraser, off duy and in civilian clothes, shot and wounded two of four men he saw coming out of a building he said they were robbing. He captured a third also.

Chef Garner Features Rattlesnake Oil Bread

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Besides being a politician of parts, Representative John Garner, Democracy's choice as the next Speaker in the lower house, is something of a chef.

On a recent hunting and fishing trip in Mexico, he and his companions took daily turns as cooks.

On Mr. Garner's day he made bread. There was no shortening in camp, but a bottle of oil in the chuck box loked promising.

"That's some bread," one of the party remarked, smacking his lips. "How'd you make it?"

Mr. Garner explained his recipe, and added, "It was that stuff in the bottle that did it."

The whole party gasped.

"Why, that was rattlesnake oil!" one exclaimed.

Later they gave him a diploma in cookery.

CANNON STATEMENT EXCORIATES GLASS

Mr. Tuttle's office (District Attorney Tuttle of New York) had been the recipient of enumerated costly gifts as an inducement to pigeon-hole the indictments."

Bishop Cannon charged the reason for giving the statement to the press was to create the impression his former student "had deliberately conspired to delay the trial" and "defeat the ends of justice. * * *"

"As a matter of fact, he did intend to produce the impression that 'Bishop Cannon's former student and protege' had done these things, and Miss Pailor has a clear case for a libel suit against Senator Glass and he knows it," the bishop said.

"His declaration that it is 'utterly inexcusable that the name of this young woman was thrust into unpleasant publicity' is an effort on his part to dodge out of a possible libel suit in a cowardly fashion. * * *

"This is simply an example of the recklessness of Senator Glass' method of insinuation and innuendo and of his cowardly method of retreat when called upon to face the facts in the case."

BOND PRICES SLUMP ON MODERATE SALES

Offering of New Rail Issue, Amply Secured, Given Good Support.

New York, Nov., 22 (A.P.)—The bond market declined last week with few interruptions as trading continued of moderate proportions. A few signs of resistance to the decline appeared late on Saturday, however.

An outstanding feature of the week's events was the offering of $12,000,000 of first mortgage 5 per cent gold bonds, series B, of the Cincinnati Union Terminal Co. on Thursday. This incident was strong evidence that bonds of the right quality, even in the present depressed market can be marketed.

An important point in determining the security rating of these bonds is the fact that they are guaranteed jointly and severally both as to principal and interest by seven important railroad companies in addition to being secured by a first mortgage on the terminal company's union passenger station and terminal facilities.

From the marketing standpoint the strength of the underwriting syndicate was an important consideration also. Four of the country's strongest banking organizations composed this group. It was the first railroad financing since September 15 when $10,000,000 of Louisville & Nashville bonds were sold.

The severity of the decline in outstanding issues may be realized from the average closing price of sixty representative corporate loans listed on the New York Stock Exshange. This figure at the end of the week was 81.8, compared with 84.0 the previous Saturday.

Japanese obligations displayed strenghth on Friday following reports of a truce between Japan and China, which soon proved untrue

Bankers familiar with Canadian finances will watch the reception accorded this week to an internal issue of $150,000,000 of bonds of the Dominion Government of five and ten year maturities.

As this issue will be payable only in Canadian funds, which have been selling at a discount of about 10 per cent, the investors paying for the bonds with American dollars would be able to buy them at levels correspondingly below the offering prices. However, several bankers familiar with the situation do not expect any great participation in the offering from American investors because of insufficient familiarity with Canadian affairs.

Mexican Urging Silver Meeting

World's Rehabilitation Seen by Larger Use of Metal in Currency.

London (U.P.). — Improvement in the world's economic condition only will come when silver has been rehabilitated, according to Dr. Leopoldo Ortiz, Mexican Minister to Great Britain.

During an interview, Dr. Ortiz said that since the purchasing power of the East has been reduced to nearly one-fifth in the last eleven years, the trade of the rest of the world with the silver-using countries has had to diminish in consequence.

Expressing his own private opinions, the minister said, "Only great remedies can cure the great economic ills of the world.

"The most effective undoubtedly would be the revisions of the world's monetary system on the basis of a revalorization of silver, giving this metal the character of standard of value to which it is entitled."

Texas Honors Memory Of Sam Houston's Aid

Marshall, Tex., (U.P.).—Robert Potter, consort of Sam Houston when the Texas republic was in the making, has received a belated honor from the State.

For years Potter's body was in a forgotten grave on a bluff overlooking Caddo Lake, 25 miles east of Marshall. Recently the remains were taken to Austin, for burial in the State cemetery there.

He came down from North Carolina, where he had been a respected citizen, in 1833, just when Houston was entering the republic. Potter soon met Houston, became intrigued with him, and at the time of his death was secretary of the tiny Texas navy.

Potter died in January, 1841, when he dived into the icy waters of Caddo Lake to escape the bullets of a band of "regulators."

Ohioans Respond to Call For Paralysis Serum

Columbus, Ohio, (U.P.).—Conscious of the severity of the disease, more than a dozen Columbus residents have responded to a call by the Ohio State University Medical research laboratory for blood to be used in combatting infantile paralysis.

Laboratory workers had requested donations of blood which could be used in mixing an antiparalysis serum. It was reported that all manner of persons who had once been afflicted and had recovered, offered their blood for this purpose.

The serum, it was explained, must be made from the blood of persons who have recovered from infantile paralysis.

It was planned to store the serum for emergencies.

Panama President Tells Cops to Quit Politics

Panama, (U.P.).—President Ricardo J. Alfaro has warned national police to refrain from all meddling in national politics.

The president told police that the administration expects them to maintain the strictest neutrality in the approaching political campaign, saying that those who did not would be expected to resign.

War Dog Killed.

London (U.P.).—Tim, a dog war veteran, has been killed by a motorcycle, after escaping death while aboard H. M. S. Morris at the taking of Ostand and Zeebrugge, and in an engagement off Nieuport.

Garner Observes Birthday As Texans Grin Knowingly

(Associated Press.)

Representative John Nance Garner, of Texas, white-haired, straight-talking Democratic leader and probable Speaker of the House, yesterday observed his sixty-second birthday anniversary.

As Mrs. Garner, his companion and secretary, related it, the Texan spent the day thusly:

"He went to the office as usual, at 8 o'clock; read the morning papers, looed over his mail, saw some friends, came home about a quarter to 3, sat here and talked with me a while, and now he is downstairs smoking a cigar."

Mrs. Garner said her husband "did not know it was his birthday until I told him this morning at breakfast." She said she offered him usual congratulations and wishes for many years to come.

Texans Grin Knowingly.

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The folks down here in Texas who sent John N. Garner to Washington 29 years ago grinned with a sort of "I told you so" satisfaction today as the man they expect to be the next Speaker of the House of Representatives celebrated in the Nation's Capital his sixty-second birthday.

For Mr. Garner's neighbors in Uvalde recalled their representative's own version of his introduction to Democratic party leaders soon after the turn of the century.

"The autocratic party leaders," Mr. Garner said, "thought I was just another cow thief from Texas. They enrolled me on committees with minor assignments."

But the story ends with a bit of pathos.

"When I kicked they put me on the foreign affairs committee and, being the last Democrat, I was forced to sit beside the last Republican, Nick Longworth. That was how we struck our friendship.

Holds Friendship Peculiar.

Even as the last Congress came to its end, Mr. Garner chided his friend "Nick" about the Democrats organizing this winter's session. Mr. Longworth's death soon afterward was only one of several deaths of Republican representatives that made possible Mr. Garner's succession to his closest friend's office in Congress.

Out in the mesquite thickets around Uvalde, where Mr. Garner comes between congressional sessions to ride horseback on his ranch, hunt and look after his cattle, the folks like "Chaparral Jack" so well they seldom ask him to make flowery talks at graduation exercises. They listen to Garner campaign speeches made by some one else and then elect him anyway.

They like the way he attends to business. They liked the way he made himself a close friend and confidant of President Wilson and took an important part in shaping legislation during the World War period.

Only Bill Was Vetoed.

They might have been a bit surprised at his activity, however, for in all the time Mr. Garner represented them in the Texas legislature, he introduced but one bill. That single measure, vetoed by Gov. Sayers, but still advocated by its sponsor, proposed dividing Texas into five States.

The South, Garner argues, should have more political power. A split-up of Texas would increase the Southern representation in the Senate by eight members and add eight electoral votes to the 20 Texas now has. That, Mr. Garner says, is only right for a territory equal to 220 States the size of Rhode Island.

The robust, hearty-looking representative is beloved throughout his district because his friends know he has worked hard to overcome poverty, boyhood ill-health and lack of educational advantages. They thank a slight attack of tuberculosis, while Mr. Garner was still in his 'teens, for bringing him to Uvalde. He sought higher altitudes and a drier climate than could be found near his birthplace at Blossom Prairie in Red River County.

Punched Cattle on Range.

He rode the range punching cattle by day. At night he studied law in the office of a friend at Clarksville. Hunting and fishing also contributed to his recovery and made of him an ardent sportsman. The sports still lure him to Mexico on one or two trips each summer.

Four years after Mr. Garner's admission to the bar, when 20 years old, he was elected Uvalde County judge. After two terms he went to the Texas Legislature for two sessions. He was only 34 when elected for the first of 15 consecutive congressional sessions, to represent 32 counties, covering an area as large as the State of New York.

His wife, the former Miss Ettie Rheiner, whom he married in Uvalde November 25, 1895—three days after his 26th birthday—has served as his secretary ever since. She attends to virtually all of his correspondence, greets callers at his office, and, like her husband, cares little for social life.

She is an early riser, whether at home or in Washington—so early, in fact, that Garner once said she "usually has half a day's work done before most people get up."

Smoked 200,000 Cigars.

Penarth, Wales (U.P.).—The cigar king of Penarth is T. B. Clode, the 81-year-old squire of Llandough, who has smoked 150,000 to 200,000 cigars during his lifetime, averaging eight to a dozen daily.

Leader in Cabinets Of France Is Dead

Loucheur, Rich Owner of Paris Paper, Served in Many Posts.

Paris, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Louis Loucheur, former cabinet minister, in a succession of French governments and once reputed to be the wealthiest man in France, died today after a brief illness. He was 59.

He was minister of munitions during the war and was a member of the French delegation to the Versailles peace conference in 1919. Later he was successively minister of devastated regions, minister of commerce, minister of finance and minister of national economy. He represented France at Geneva several times.

M. Loucheur engaged in a number of central European and Balkan projects in prewar days and was supposed to have amassed a fortune. He owned the Parisian Daily Petit Journal and several other newspapers in his native department of Nord.

Proposed Hunger March Attacked

Planned Drive Here Dec. 7 Laid to Communists by National Group.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The National Civic Federation, in an open letter to members of Congress, asserted today that the proposed "hunger march" on Washington, set for December 7, is a Communist attack upon the Government and upon the President's Nation-wide emergency unemployment relief organization.

The communication says the call for the march embodies revolutionary propaganda and that the "unemployed councils committee" is a "Red" organization fostered by radicals who seek the overthrow of American institutions.

The National Civic Federation calls upon the public to "observe the march and its aftermath" and form its own conclusions as to the "impossible demands" the marchers will make, for the purpose, of "fostering class hatred."

Grandi, 'Penniless,' Attends High Mass in Baltimore

Baltimore, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy didn't have a cent in his pocket when the collection basket suddenly appeared before him in church this morning. Anxiously he leaned toward Commendatore Leonardo Vitetti and borrowed from him money to put in the basket for himself and Signora Grandi. He had to borrow again for the second collection.

The Grandis and Vitetti, guests of Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. John W. Garrett over Sunday, attended high mass at the church of SS Philip and James. Their coming was announced only five minutes earlier to Father Thomas J. Lee, who celebrated mass. From the pulpit he asked the congregation to remain in their pews after the service until the Grandis left.

Grandi's presence soon was known to all, before Father Lee announced it, because the minister, accustomed to the churches of Italy, many of which have neither pews nor chairs, remained standing when the congregation was seated. Signora Grandi quickly noticed the difference in custom and kept her eyes on a young woman in the same front pew, rising, sitting and kneeling as did her neighbor. Grandi fell into line with American church practice only when mass was nearly half over.

At the Garrett home there was a continuation of last night's program of doing nothing. Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, who came from Washington for dinner last night, remained until this morning and then returned home. Conversation was general and Grandi said there was "no business; that is over."

The Italian Ambassador and Signora de Martino came from Washington for lunch today, leaving early in the afternoon. Tonight there were only five at table, the Grandis, the Garretts and Vitetti. Morning, afternoon and evening hours were spent walking in the garden or talking in the library.

Tomorrow at 9 a. m., the Grandis leave in a special car for New York for five days of swift activity.

Hiccoughs Attack Believed Near End

Mansfield, Ohio, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Ira A. King's two-week hiccough marathon appeared to be reaching an end tonight.

Physicians this morning performed an operation upon the Mansfield garage owner in an effort to strike at the root of the trouble, which has laid serious siege on King's life for the past fifteen days.

Dr. R. R. Black, King's physician, reported that the patient's "operation condition is good," but refused to go so far as to say flatly that the operation had been a success. It is yet too early to obtain definite results, he declared. At the hospital where King lies in a room "papered" with thousands of remedies from well-wishers, his condition was reported good and the hiccoughs relieved to a degree.

U.S. BUREAU REPORTS ON REDUCING WEIGHT

First Requisite Is Will Power to Stick to Program, Department Says.

(Associated Press.)

How to reduce without going on a "starvation" diet, and how to put on weight, is graphically outlined in an exhibit just completed by the Department of Agriculture.

The first requisite in changing weight, after learning what to do, is the will-power to stick to a program, the department said. Adults need not worry about their weights unless they find themselves 10 to 15 per cent over or under weight on the basis of height-and-weight tables.

The best course to follow, after the correct weight has been obtained, is to maintain it by balancing the amount of energy-giving foods with the amount of energy spent. The energy giving foods which provide most of the calories, or weight regulators, are the fats, sweets, breads and cereals.

Milk should be included in both fattening and thinning diets. The "thins" who are eating to gain weight should help themselves liberally to whole milk, drink it in place of part of the water at mealtime and in extra milk shakes. Food cooked or served with milk will help to add more calories and consequently more pounds.

Fruits and vegetables were listed also in the imperative list for both "fats" and "thins," and bulky green vegetables also should be eaten by the latter, although they add little to the weight.

Mount Vernon Grange Reelects K. Wilkinson

Kirk Wilkinson has been reelected worthy master of Mount Vernon Grange, of Woodlawn, Va. Other officers chosen were A. Harman Roberts, overseer; Mrs. Paul Dolph, lecturer; Joseph W. Cox, steward; Herbert Blunt, assistant steward; Kenneth Baker, chaplain; Herbert Baker, gatekeeper; George Gillingham, treasurer; Mrs. Kirk Wilkinson, secretary; Mrs. Herbert Blunt, Ceres; Miss Dorothy Smith, Flora; Miss Mary Gillingham, Pomona and Miss Margaret Cox, lady assistant steward.

The Grange took as its community project welfare work in Mount Vernon and Lee districts. The welfare committee comprises Mrs. A. Harmon Roberts, chairman; Mr. Wilkinson and Mr. Blunt. Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Cox and Mr. Blunt were appointed as an executive committee.

Coeds Opposing Slump Economy

Urged in Utah to Give Up Automobiles and Flowers for Dances.

Dr. Thomas recommended that college students should avoid extravagances during depression. He suggested that students should abandon automobiles as means of transportation to and from school, and depend solely on street cars. He urged reduction of social expenses, favored discontinuing such things as flowers for dances, and hinted that girls should share "date" expenses.

The street car and the expense suggestions aroused the most ire.

"If we must ride street cars to dances, then I'll stay home and read a book," declared Miss La Von Crane.

"I would be rather hesitant riding a street car in a formal dress," admitted Miss Ruth Nowell.

Miss Virginia White, student body vice president, was cautious and politic. "We should seriously consider President Thomas' hints," she suggested.

Fairfax U.D.C. to Mark Graves of Confederates

The Fairfax Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, has voted to place a marker on the grave of Thomas Holbrook, Confederate veteran, in Fairfax Cemetery. Iron confederate crosses are to be erected on all Confederate graves in the county. Mrs. Nora V. Allison, of Fairfax, was appointed by the chapter to take charge of securing the markers.

The two stones ordered by the chapter through the Federal Government for the graves of Peter Jett and George Fairfax, have been placed.

Mechanics' Tools Taken When Trio Is Arrested

Sheriff E. P. Kirby, of Fairfax County, states that he has in his possession a number of valuable mechanics' tools, which he seized at the time of the capture of Tom Emory, Will Emory and Melvin Kagle, wanted in North Carolina on serious charges.

Sheriff Kirby believes the trio was concerned in some of the robberies in this county, and persons who have reported losses of garage equipment, may communicate with the sheriff's office. They ay be able to identify the equipment.

States Show Great Variance In Cutting Marital Knot

Sacramento, Calif. (U.P.).—There are as many specifications for cutting the marital knot as there are States in the Union.

Lawmakers, it would appear from a survey made by the California legislative bureau, do not see alike when it comes to the question of divorce. The requirements, as a rule, are many and varied.

In Nevada, where the divorce business is considered in the light of a major industry, a marriage may be dissolved for anyone who has lived in the State six weeks. As contrasted to this, South Carolina recognizes no such thing as divorce except by special legislative act in the individual case.

In Tennessee, proceedings may be based on any one of 13 grounds, while New York and the District of Columbia recognize only a charge of infidelity, and in the latter the defendant may never remarry. In Pennsylvania, South Dakota and Tennessee, the defendant may not marry the corespondent until after the death of the plaintiff—an arrangement, incidentally, which puts a premium on the disappearance of the innocent party.

While these points would indicate that the disagreement over divorce details is general, the survey points out that the States do agree on certain matters.

With only a few noticeable exceptions, the States agree that in certain types of divorce cases, the parties must have resided in the State for at least one year.

The exceptions range from Nevada, with its six weeks' law, and Idaho asking a three months' stay, to Connecticut, which requires a residence of three years, and Massachusetts, which recognizes only those who have lived in the State five years.

The survey indicates there is a definite consensus concerning causes for divorces as outlined in the statutes. Thirty-seven States have at least seven grounds, and only four, in addition to the District of Columbia, recognize less than five.

Eleven States apparently have no sympathy for the defendant by setting up restrictions concerning the right to remarry which do not apply to the plaintiff.

"The most effective undoubtedly would be the revisions of the world's monetary system on the basis of a revalorization of silver, giving this metal the character of standard of value to which it is entitled."

Texas Honors Memory Of Sam Houston's Aid

Marshall, Tex., (U.P.).—Robert Potter, consort of Sam Houston when the Texas republic was in the making, has received a belated honor from the State.

For years Potter's body was in a forgotten grave on a bluff overlooking Caddo Lake, 25 miles east of Marshall. Recently the remains were taken to Austin, for burial in the State cemetery there.

He came down from North Carolina, where he had been a respected citizen, in 1833, just when Houston was entering the republic. Potter soon met Houston, became intrigued with him, and at the time of his death was secretary of the tiny Texas navy.

Potter died in January, 1841, when he dived into the icy waters of Caddo Lake to escape the bullets of a band of "regulators."

Ohioans Respond to Call For Paralysis Serum

Columbus, Ohio, (U.P.).—Conscious of the severity of the disease, more than a dozen Columbus residents have responded to a call by the Ohio State University Medical research laboratory for blood to be used in combatting infantile paralysis.

Laboratory workers had requested donations of blood which could be used in mixing an antiparalysis serum. It was reported that all manner of persons who had once been afflicted and had recovered, offered their blood for this purpose.

The serum, it was explained, must be made from the blood of persons who have recovered from infantile paralysis.

It was planned to store the serum for emergencies.

Panama President Tells Cops to Quit Politics

Panama, (U.P.).—President Ricardo J. Alfaro has warned national police to refrain from all meddling in national politics.

The president told police that the administration expects them to maintain the strictest neutrality in the approaching political campaign, saying that those who did not would be expected to resign.

War Dog Killed.

London (U.P.).—Tim, a dog war veteran, has been killed by a motorcycle, after escaping death while aboard H. M. S. Morris at the taking of Ostand and Zeebrugge, and in an engagement off Nieuport.

Garner Observes Birthday As Texans Grin Knowingly

(Associated Press.)

Representative John Nance Garner, of Texas, white-haired, straight-talking Democratic leader and probable Speaker of the House, yesterday observed his sixty-second birthday anniversary.

As Mrs. Garner, his companion and secretary, related it, the Texan spent the day thusly:

"He went to the office as usual, at 8 o'clock; read the morning papers, looed over his mail, saw some friends, came home about a quarter to 3, sat here and talked with me a while, and now he is downstairs smoking a cigar."

Mrs. Garner said her husband "did not know it was his birthday until I told him this morning at breakfast." She said she offered him usual congratulations and wishes for many years to come.

Texans Grin Knowingly.

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The folks down here in Texas who sent John N. Garner to Washington 29 years ago grinned with a sort of "I told you so" satisfaction today as the man they expect to be the next Speaker of the House of Representatives celebrated in the Nation's Capital his sixty-second birthday.

For Mr. Garner's neighbors in Uvalde recalled their representative's own version of his introduction to Democratic party leaders soon after the turn of the century.

"The autocratic party leaders," Mr. Garner said, "thought I was just another cow thief from Texas. They enrolled me on committees with minor assignments."

But the story ends with a bit of pathos.

"When I kicked they put me on the foreign affairs committee and, being the last Democrat, I was forced to sit beside the last Republican, Nick Longworth. That was how we struck our friendship.

Holds Friendship Peculiar.

Even as the last Congress came to its end, Mr. Garner chided his friend "Nick" about the Democrats organizing this winter's session. Mr. Longworth's death soon afterward was only one of several deaths of Republican representatives that made possible Mr. Garner's succession to his closest friend's office in Congress.

Out in the mesquite thickets around Uvalde, where Mr. Garner comes between congressional sessions to ride horseback on his ranch, hunt and look after his cattle, the folks like "Chaparral Jack" so well they seldom ask him to make flowery talks at graduation exercises. They listen to Garner campaign speeches made by some one else and then elect him anyway.

They like the way he attends to business. They liked the way he made himself a close friend and confidant of President Wilson and took an important part in shaping legislation during the World War period.

Only Bill Was Vetoed.

They might have been a bit surprised at his activity, however, for in all the time Mr. Garner represented them in the Texas legislature, he introduced but one bill. That single measure, vetoed by Gov. Sayers, but still advocated by its sponsor, proposed dividing Texas into five States.

The South, Garner argues, should have more political power. A split-up of Texas would increase the Southern representation in the Senate by eight members and add eight electoral votes to the 20 Texas now has. That, Mr. Garner says, is only right for a territory equal to 220 States the size of Rhode Island.

The robust, hearty-looking representative is beloved throughout his district because his friends know he has worked hard to overcome poverty, boyhood ill-health and lack of educational advantages. They thank a slight attack of tuberculosis, while Mr. Garner was still in his 'teens, for bringing him to Uvalde. He sought higher altitudes and a drier climate than could be found near his birthplace at Blossom Prairie in Red River County.

Punched Cattle on Range.

He rode the range punching cattle by day. At night he studied law in the office of a friend at Clarksville. Hunting and fishing also contributed to his recovery and made of him an ardent sportsman. The sports still lure him to Mexico on one or two trips each summer.

Four years after Mr. Garner's admission to the bar, when 20 years old, he was elected Uvalde County judge. After two terms he went to the Texas Legislature for two sessions. He was only 34 when elected for the first of 15 consecutive congressional sessions, to represent 32 counties, covering an area as large as the State of New York.

His wife, the former Miss Ettie Rheiner, whom he married in Uvalde November 25, 1895—three days after his 26th birthday—has served as his secretary ever since. She attends to virtually all of his correspondence, greets callers at his office, and, like her husband, cares little for social life.

She is an early riser, whether at home or in Washington—so early, in fact, that Garner once said she "usually has half a day's work done before most people get up."

Smoked 200,000 Cigars.

Penarth, Wales (U.P.).—The cigar king of Penarth is T. B. Clode, the 81-year-old squire of Llandough, who has smoked 150,000 to 200,000 cigars during his lifetime, averaging eight to a dozen daily.

Leader in Cabinets Of France Is Dead

Loucheur, Rich Owner of Paris Paper, Served in Many Posts.

Paris, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Louis Loucheur, former cabinet minister, in a succession of French governments and once reputed to be the wealthiest man in France, died today after a brief illness. He was 59.

He was minister of munitions during the war and was a member of the French delegation to the Versailles peace conference in 1919. Later he was successively minister of devastated regions, minister of commerce, minister of finance and minister of national economy. He represented France at Geneva several times.

M. Loucheur engaged in a number of central European and Balkan projects in prewar days and was supposed to have amassed a fortune. He owned the Parisian Daily Petit Journal and several other newspapers in his native department of Nord.

Proposed Hunger March Attacked

Planned Drive Here Dec. 7 Laid to Communists by National Group.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The National Civic Federation, in an open letter to members of Congress, asserted today that the proposed "hunger march" on Washington, set for December 7, is a Communist attack upon the Government and upon the President's Nation-wide emergency unemployment relief organization.

The communication says the call for the march embodies revolutionary propaganda and that the "unemployed councils committee" is a "Red" organization fostered by radicals who seek the overthrow of American institutions.

The National Civic Federation calls upon the public to "observe the march and its aftermath" and form its own conclusions as to the "impossible demands" the marchers will make, for the purpose, of "fostering class hatred."

Grandi, 'Penniless,' Attends High Mass in Baltimore

Baltimore, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy didn't have a cent in his pocket when the collection basket suddenly appeared before him in church this morning. Anxiously he leaned toward Commendatore Leonardo Vitetti and borrowed from him money to put in the basket for himself and Signora Grandi. He had to borrow again for the second collection.

The Grandis and Vitetti, guests of Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. John W. Garrett over Sunday, attended high mass at the church of SS Philip and James. Their coming was announced only five minutes earlier to Father Thomas J. Lee, who celebrated mass. From the pulpit he asked the congregation to remain in their pews after the service until the Grandis left.

Grandi's presence soon was known to all, before Father Lee announced it, because the minister, accustomed to the churches of Italy, many of which have neither pews nor chairs, remained standing when the congregation was seated. Signora Grandi quickly noticed the difference in custom and kept her eyes on a young woman in the same front pew, rising, sitting and kneeling as did her neighbor. Grandi fell into line with American church practice only when mass was nearly half over.

At the Garrett home there was a continuation of last night's program of doing nothing. Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, who came from Washington for dinner last night, remained until this morning and then returned home. Conversation was general and Grandi said there was "no business; that is over."

The Italian Ambassador and Signora de Martino came from Washington for lunch today, leaving early in the afternoon. Tonight there were only five at table, the Grandis, the Garretts and Vitetti. Morning, afternoon and evening hours were spent walking in the garden or talking in the library.

Tomorrow at 9 a. m., the Grandis leave in a special car for New York for five days of swift activity.

Hiccoughs Attack Believed Near End

Mansfield, Ohio, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Ira A. King's two-week hiccough marathon appeared to be reaching an end tonight.

Physicians this morning performed an operation upon the Mansfield garage owner in an effort to strike at the root of the trouble, which has laid serious siege on King's life for the past fifteen days.

Dr. R. R. Black, King's physician, reported that the patient's "operation condition is good," but refused to go so far as to say flatly that the operation had been a success. It is yet too early to obtain definite results, he declared. At the hospital, where King lies in a room "papered" with thousands of remedies from well-wishers, his condition was reported good and the hiccoughs relieved to a degree.

U.S. BUREAU REPORTS ON REDUCING WEIGHT

First Requisite Is Will Power to Stick to Program, Department Says.

(Associated Press.)

How to reduce without going on a "starvation" diet, and how to put on weight, is graphically outlined in an exhibit just completed by the Department of Agriculture.

The first requisite in changing weight, after learning what to do, is the will-power to stick to a program, the department said. Adults need not worry about their weights unless they find themselves 10 to 15 per cent over or under weight on the basis of height-and-weight tables.

The best course to follow, after the correct weight has been obtained, is to maintain it by balancing the amount of energy-giving foods with the amount of energy spent. The energy giving foods which provide most of the calories, or weight regulators, are the fats, sweets, breads and cereals.

Milk should be included in both fattening and thinning diets. The "thins" who are eating to gain weight should help themselves liberally to whole milk, drink it in place of part of the water at mealtime and in extra milk shakes. Food cooked or served with milk will help to add more calories and consequently more pounds.

Fruits and vegetables were listed also in the imperative list for both "fats" and "thins," and bulky green vegetables also should be eaten by the latter, although they add little to the weight.

Mount Vernon Grange Reelects K. Wilkinson

Kirk Wilkinson has been reelected worthy master of Mount Vernon Grange, of Woodlawn, Va. Other officers chosen were A. Harman Roberts, overseer; Mrs. Paul Dolph, lecturer; Joseph W. Cox, steward; Herbert Blunt, assistant steward; Kenneth Baker, chaplain; Herbert Baker, gatekeeper; George Gillingham, treasurer; Mrs. Kirk Wilkinson, secretary; Mrs. Herbert Blunt, Ceres; Miss Dorothy Smith, Flora; Miss Mary Gillingham, Pomona and Miss Margaret Cox, lady assistant steward.

The Grange took as its community project welfare work in Mount Vernon and Lee districts. The welfare committee comprises Mrs. A. Harmon Roberts, chairman; Mr. Wilkinson and Mr. Blunt. Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Cox and Mr. Blunt were appointed as an executive committee.

Coeds Opposing Slump Economy

Dr. Thomas recommended that college students should avoid extravagances during depression. He suggested that students should abandon automobiles as means of transportation to and from school, and depend solely on street cars. He urged reduction of social expenses, favored discontinuing such things as flowers for dances, and hinted that girls should share "date" expenses.

The street car and the expense suggestions aroused the most ire.

"If we must ride street cars to dances, then I'll stay home and read a book," declared Miss La Von Crane.

"I would be rather hesitant riding a street car in a formal dress," admitted Miss Ruth Nowell.

Fairfax U.D.C. to Mark Graves of Confederates

The Fairfax Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, has voted to place a marker on the grave of Thomas Holbrook, Confederate veteran, in Fairfax Cemetery. Iron confederate crosses are to be erected on all Confederate graves in the county. Mrs. Nora V. Allison, of Fairfax, was appointed by the chapter to take charge of securing the markers.

The two stones ordered by the chapter through the Federal Government for the graves of Peter Jett and George Fairfax, have been placed.

Mechanics' Tools Taken When Trio Is Arrested

Sheriff E. P. Kirby, of Fairfax County, states that he has in his possession a number of valuable mechanics' tools, which he seized at the time of the capture of Tom Emory, Will Emory and Melvin Kagle, wanted in North Carolina on serious charges.

Sheriff Kirby believes the trio was concerned in some of the robberies in this county, and persons who have reported losses of garage equipment, may communicate with the sheriff's office. They ay be able to identify the equipment.

Holy Name Society To Meet.

States Show Great Variance In Cutting Marital Knot

Sacramento, Calif. (U.P.).—There are as many specifications for cutting the marital knot as there are States in the Union.

Lawmakers, it would appear from a survey made by the California legislative bureau, do not see alike when it comes to the question of divorce. The requirements, as a rule, are many and varied.

In Nevada, where the divorce business is considered in the light of a major industry, a marriage may be dissolved for anyone who has lived in the State six weeks. As contrasted to this, South Carolina recognizes no such thing as divorce except by special legislative act in the individual case.

In Tennessee, proceedings may be based on any one of 13 grounds, while New York and the District of Columbia recognize only a charge of infidelity, and in the latter the defendant may never remarry. In Pennsylvania, South Dakota and Tennessee, the defendant may not marry the corespondent until after the death of the plaintiff—an arrangement, incidentally, which puts a premium on the disappearance of the innocent party.

While these points would indicate that the disagreement over divorce details is general, the survey points out that the States do agree on certain matters.

With only a few noticeable exceptions, the States agree that in certain types of divorce cases, the parties must have resided in the State for at least one year.

The exceptions range from Nevada, with its six weeks' law, and Idaho asking a three months' stay, to Connecticut, which requires a residence of three years, and Massachusetts, which recognizes only those who have lived in the State five years.

The survey indicates there is a definite consensus concerning causes for divorces as outlined in the statutes. Thirty-seven States have at least seven grounds, and only four, in addition to the District of Columbia, recognize less than five.

SOCIETY

Son-in-Law and Daughter of Turkish Ambassador Leave Capital Tomorrow; Garrett Sails for Italy Dec. 11.

THE Turkish Ambassador, Mr. Ahmet Muhtar, has had as his guests for several weeks his son-in-law and daughter, the Charge d'Affaires of the Turkish Embassy in Tokyo and Mme. Nebil, who with their two children will leave Washington tomorrow for the Pacific Coast. They will spend some time in California, and will sail on December 24 from San Francisco for Japan, where Mr. Nebil will assume his new duties.

The American Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. John W. Garrett, who have been at their Baltimore home, Evergreen House, for several weeks, will sail on December 11 for Italy.

The Ambassador and Mrs. Garrett had as their guests over the week-end, the Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs and Signora Grandi, and last week their guests were the American Ambassador to France and Mrs. Walter E. Edge.

The Bolivian Minister and Senora de Abelli entertained last evening at a large supper party in honor of the Bolivian delegate to the Bolivia-Paraguay conference, Senor Enrique Sinot, and Senora de Sinot. There were about 40 guests.

Walcott and Townsend To Arrive Next Week.

Senator Frederic C. Walcott, of Connecticut, and Senator John G. Townsend, jr., of Delaware, have taken apartments at the Shoreham for the winter. They will arrive in Washington the end of next week.

Representative and Mrs. Adam Martin Wyant have issued invitations to a tea at the Congressional Club, on New Hampshire avenue, Tuesday, December 15, to introduce their daughter, Miss Anne Moore Wyant.

In the week's calendar of social events published in the society section of yesterday's Washington Post it was incorrectly stated that the Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Frederick H. Payne would give a tea Thursday afternoon at the Mayflower Hotel to introduce their daughter, Miss Carolyn Payne. The Post regrets the error.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. White, jr., have issued invitations for a tea at their home, at 1910 Twenty-fourth street, Friday, December 11, to introduce their daughters, Miss Mary Stamps White and Miss Emma Gray White, to society.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hinton Holloway are entertaining at the dinner dance at the Chevy Chase Club Thanksgiving Day, in honor of their debutante daughter, Miss Anne Cassel Holloway.

The wedding of Miss Anne Butler, daughter of Justice and Mrs. Pierce Butler, and Mr. Edward K. Dunn, of Baltimore, will take place tomorrow afternoon in the home of Justice and Mrs. Butler at 4 o'clock. The ceremony will be performed by Mgr. Edward Buckey, rector of St. Matthew's Church in the presence of members of the two families and close friends. Following the ceremony there will be a reception to which a number of additional guests have been invited.

Miss Butler will be unattended, and Mr. Dunn will have his brother, Mr. Roswell C. Dunn, for his best man.

Commander and Mrs. William D. Thomas entertained Saturday evening at a dinner and later a dance at Greystone, which they are now occupying. The party was a house warming, and a large group of young people, including many from out of town gathered in the charming home for a gay evening.

Mr. C. Bascom Slemp, commissioner general of the American exhibit of the Colonial Exposition, will arrive in New York today on the S. S. Leviathan after passing several weeks in Paris. Mr. Slemp returned to Paris early in November for the closing of the exposition. He will come to Washington early this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmon A. Miller have issued invitations for a breakfast at 1 o'clock on Thanksgiving Day at Greenway Farm, their home in Loudoun County, Va. The breakfast will follow the Thanksgiving meet of the Loudoun Hunt Hounds.

Joseph T. Mackey Guest of Mr. and Mrs. McKenney.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick D. McKenney, of Wardman Park Hotel, have staying with them as their guest, Mr. Joseph T. Mackey, who came to Washington from his home in New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Greenbaum, the daughter and son-in-law of Mrs. Emile Berliner, widow of the late inventor, who makes her home at Wardman Park Hotel, have come to Washington from New York City for a brief visit.

Col. and Mrs. D. H. Sawyer have issued invitations for a dinner to be given at Wardman Park Hotel on Thanksgiving evening. There will be about 20 guests.

Mrs. W. Wentworth Peirce will entertain at luncheon at the Shoreham tomorrow in honor of her debutante daughter, Miss Eleanor Peirce.

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Albert Evans will leave by motor tomorrow for Philadelphia, where they will spend Thanksgiving with friends, returning to their home at 2713 Wisconsin avenue December 1.

Mrs. Russell Bennett has changed the date of her tea dance, which she will give in honor of her daughter, Miss Florence Harris, in the Palm Court at the Mayflower, from December 23 to Wednesday, January 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Riggs, Jr., Back From Wedding Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Riggs, jr., have returned from their wedding trip and are with the latter's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Eugene LeMerle. Mrs. S. J. Costa and Mrs. M. Eugenie LeMerle.

Mrs. S. J. Costa and Mrs. M. Welsh, of Philadelphia, have been spending the week-end in Washington as guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Gardin, at the Potomac Park Apartments.

Mrs. Fenton F. Leith and her daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Leith, entertained at luncheon Saturday at the Columbia Country Club in honor of Miss Sidney Thompson, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Percy Thompson.

The other guests were Miss Marion Dunlop, Miss Mary Stuart, Miss Virginia Young, Miss Betty De Moll, Miss Frances Mathews, Miss Jean Richards, Miss Nancy Lesh, Miss Lucille McGeehee, Miss Katherine Perry, Miss Virginia Hall, Miss Elizabeth Smith, Miss Rosalie Camalier, Miss Kathleen Brown, Miss Elizabeth Brook, Miss Peggy Silver, Miss Rose Page, Miss Betty Peelle, Miss Atlee Wirgman, Mrs. Robert Oliver, Miss Isabel Leisinger, Mrs. Robert Clinton, Miss Betty West, Miss Eleanor Calvert, Miss Lucille Elliott, Miss Jean Foley, Miss Elaine Haltigan, Miss Helen McAuliff, Miss Helen Shoemaker, Miss Betty Leonard, Miss Jane Hogeland, Miss Doris Kelley, Miss Peggy De Moll, Miss Eleanor Brook, Miss Edith Mish, Miss Marie McAntyre and Miss Isabel Perry.

In connection with the patchwork party to be given by the Junior League of Washington, December 7, at the Mayflower, a fashion show will be held. Mrs. William Jasper Du Bose is chairman, and modeling clothes from local shops will be Mrs. Cortlandt Parker, Mrs. William North Sturtevant, Miss Laura Tuckerman, Miss Mary Murray Hume, Miss Charlotte Childress, Miss Elizabeth Dunlop, Mrs. Suzanne Smith, Miss Norvell Munford, Mrs. Charles Parker Stone and Mrs. Du Bose.

Whelan, Mrs. Frederick Siddons, Mrs. Francis M. Tompkins, Miss Rebecca Davidson, Miss Phyllis Hight, Miss Ann Perin and Miss Margo Wyeth.

A wedding of unusual interest both in Washington and in Virginia society took place in the chapel of the Methodist Building Saturday evening, when Miss Ruth Elizabeth Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Thompson, of Stony Point, Hillsboro, became the bride of Mr. Howard Vincent Williams, son of Mr. Walter V. Williams, of St. Joseph, Mo.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the United States House of Representatives. The bride was gowned in ivory satin with silver slippers and carried orchids and lilies of the valley.

Her only attendants were Miss Elsie Brooke, of Maryland, and Miss Bernice Basinger, of Plymouth, N. C.

Immediately following the ceremony the party was entertained at a dinner dance at the Shoreham Hotel. Among the guests at the wedding were Mr. Ruskin McArdle, librarian of the United States Senate; Mr. Edward C. Wrede, private secretary to Senator Howell, of Nebraska; Miss Ruth Price, aunt of the bride, and Messrs. Lawrence and Russell Thompson, brothers of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Williams will reside at the Marquette.

Members of the Minnesota delegation in Congress will be guests of honor of the Minnesota State Society on Monday evening, November 30, at the Willard Hotel. They are Senator and Mrs. Hendrik Shipstead, Senator and Mrs. Thomas D. Schall, Representative and Mrs. Calgue, Representative and Mrs. August Anderson, Representative and Mrs. Clague, Representative and Mrs. August Andresen, Representative Melvin J. Hans, Representative and Mrs. William I. Nolan, Representative Harold Knutson, Representative and Mrs. Paul John Kvale, Representative and Mrs. Conrad Selvig, Representative and Mrs. Victor Christgau, Representative and Mrs. Godfrey Goodwin, and Representative and Mrs. William Pittinger.

The congressional meeting is being held earlier this season on account of the forthcoming George Washington bicentennial program, in which the society expects to play an important part.

Dancing will start at 9 o'clock. During an intermission, Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest, director of pageants and plays for the District of Columbia Bicentennial Commission, whose grandfather, Brig. Gen. Seth Eastman, was the first commandant of Fort Snelling, Minn., will tell the story of how old Browns Falls became the famous Minnehaha Falls.

Miss Bede Johnson, president of the society, extends a most cordial invitation to all Minnesotans and their friends to attend.

Miss Janet Richards, at her talk on "Affairs Political and International," this morning at the Willard Hotel, in addition to the general review of the outstanding questions of the hour, will touch especially upon a series of political "deadlocks" in many places, notably in the Indian conference at London, in our own congressional situation and in the present status of the Japanese-Chinese conflict. A new map of Manchuria will be used to clarify Japan's present occupation of that territory. The talk is given in the Willard room and begins at 11 o'clock.

Following the lecture Miss Richards will entertain at luncheon in the crystal room the following guests: Mrs. John Biddle, Mrs. Perry Heath, Mrs. Dallas Wainwright, Mrs. D. C. Stapleton, Mrs. Kingman Kern, Mrs. Rust-Smith, Mrs. Albert Baggs and Mrs. Sallie Pickett.

Mrs. Mary McKee Reisinger, daughter of Mr. James Robert McKee, of Greenwich, Conn., accompanied by her younger daughter, Miss Mary Harrison Reisinger, and her cousin, Mrs. Lewis N. Watson, also of Greenwich, spent the week-end in Washington at the Carlton and will remain until tomorrow. They came Friday to visit Mrs. Reisinger's older daughter, Miss Ednee Reisinger, a student at Mount Vernon Seminary. Mrs. Reisinger is a granddaughter of President Benjamin Harrison and was the baby of the White House during his administration, although her older brother was generally known as "Baby McKee."

Joao Ruy Barbosa 2d has arrived in Washington from the Benedictine Monks School at Lausanne, Switzerland. Young Senhor Barbosa is the son of the brilliant secretary of the Brazilian Embassy, Joao Ruy Barbosa.

The diplomat's son will be entered in Georgetown Preparatory School next week. Young Senhor Barbosa is the grandson of the jurisconsult of Brazil, who was associated with Elihu Root in the constiution of The Hague Tribunal for International Justice. His father has been in Washington since his transfer from the Brazilian Embassy in Paris, where for eight years he was secretary of the embassy. They have a home in Biarritz.

Mrs. Howard H. Sypher is spending the week in Baltimore as the guest of Mrs. William L. Marbury.

Many reservations are already coming in to the secretary of the Oklahome State Society, Mr. Ralph Boyer, 701 Nineteenth street northwest, for the banquet and dance in honor of members of the Oklahoma congressional delegation and other Oklahomans prominent in official and social circles in Washington which will be held at Meridian Mansions Hotel on the night of December 5. A special program will be given during the evening under the direction of Mrs. W. C. French, chairman of the entertainment committee.

Milton, Mrs. Marie Merrill, Mrs. D. Moore, Mrs. Eugean Jarboe, Mrs. Elden P. King, Mrs. Warren O'Leary, Mrs. Louis, Annis and Mrs. Rebecca Dial.

One of the most brilliant weddings of the season and one of much interest took place recently at the Front Royal Baptist Church, Front Royal, Va., when Miss Betsy Payne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Payne, became the bride of S. Byrne Downing, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Byrne Downing, of this place.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Walter T. Burton, pastor. The church was beautifully decorated in a color scheme of green and white and was illuminated with candles arranged about the altar, which cast a soft glow upon the scene.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was lovely in her gown of white velvet made in the Empress Eugenie style with bolero effect, wearing a veil of tulle and old family lace arranged in cap effect, and carrying a sheaf of calla lilies. The maid of honor was Miss Helen Payne, sister of the bride, who wore a gown of orchid velvet with a velvet turban to match.

The bridesmaids were Miss Nellie Mae Payne, sister of the bride, and Miss Ruth Collins, each wearing gowns of salmon pink velvet with turbans to match; Miss Grace Borden and Miss Louise Baker, of Richmond, Va., each wearing turquoise blue velvet with turbans to match, all carrying bouquets of Joanna Hill roses.

Little Miss Virginia Mason Harmon, cousin of the bride, of Newport News, was flower girl and was lovely in her frock of pink crepe de chine, and carrying a basket of rose petals, strewing them in the path of the bride as she entered the church.

The bridegroom had as his best man his cousin, Mr. Alfred McKay, of Baltimore, Md. His groomsmen were Mr. W. C. Armstrong, jr., Mr. Wyndham Lee, Mr. Stewart Payne, brother of the bride, and Mr. Henry Downing, brother of the bridegroom.

Preceding the ceremony a program of music was given by Mrs. Achillis Wilson, of Orange, Va., aunt of the bride, and just before the bridal party entered the church, Mrs. LeRoy Harmon, of Newport News, aunt of the bride, sang "I Love You." To the strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" the bridal party entered the church, and during the ceremony "O Promise Me" was played by the organist, followed by the recessional.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was given at the Afton Inn, the home of the bride's parents, at which about 300 guests were present.

Since the announcement of the engagement of Mr. Downing and Miss Payne, the bride has been lavishly entertained at a number of parties and showers, and her bridal gifts were handsome and numerous.

Following the rehearsal Friday night the bridal party was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wyndham Lee, on Royal avenue. On Saturday morning the bride entertained her attendants at a wedding breakfast at her home.

Among the out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Crowder, Mr. Woodward Cook, Mr. Bim Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tipton and daughter, Miss Mary Paxton Macatee, Miss Margaret Olmstead and Mr. Lynn de Lashmutt, all of Washington, D. C.; Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Payne, of Haymarket, Va.; Mrs. Eula Merchant and Mr. Jack Merchant, of Manassas, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Owens, of Danville, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. H. O'Bannon Cooper, of Alexandria, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Harmon and daughter, Virginia Mason, of Newport News; Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilson, of Orange, Va.

Mrs. Stewart Jones, of Fredericksburg, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McKay, of Baltimore, Md.; Miss Elsie Wines, of Harrisonburg, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Griner, of Orange, Va.; Misses Sue and Louise Baker, Roger Payne, Miss Susie Bierer and Miss Gertrude Borden, all of Richmond, Va.; Mr. Alfred McKay, of Baltimore, Md.; Miss Sue Schlack and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Snyder, all of Winchester Va.; Mrs. Guy Ray and daughter, Miss Nancy Ray, and Mr. Charlie McKay, all of Baltimore, Md.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

EVERY now and then there is an explosion in Congress about the evils of chain programs, but there was quite another kind of an explosion when the citizens of Great Falls, Mont., learned that the NBC contemplated going into Montana with outlets at Billings and Butte, and were passing up Great Falls.

Evidently they made it so hot for M. H. Aylesworth, president of the NBC, in New York, that he took to the tall timbers. Whereupon P. A. Buttrey, of Station KFBB, Great Falls, began burning up the long distance telephone wires into Washington (at $6.75 for the first three minutes and $2.25 for each additional minute) to see if anybody here could do anything to help them get to Aylesworth.

Buttrey, who thinks less of making the 3,000-mile trip to Washington than some of our people do of a pilgrimage to Alexandria, offered to take the next airplane East, if that would do any good, but in the meantime appealed to the friends of Great Falls to please get busy as with "only Butte and Billings" the NBC could not possibly reach half of the Montana audience.

Doubtless the networks could cite many such instances where cities are clamoring to get aboard. One we know about was Baltimore, which put up the biggest kind of a fight and wasn't satisfied until it secured the WEAF network in addition to WJZ, which it already had.

As a result of this, Baltimore has it on Washington. In addition to Columbia it now has the full-time programs of both the NBC networks, while the best the Capital can do is to split programs on the three.

IT is seldom success hits any one with such a bang as it did Eugene Ormandy. Three weks ago when Toscanini was unable to keep his engagement as guest conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, Ormandy, who is but 30 years old, was asked by Stokowski almost overnight to step into the great conductor's shoes.

In the meantime, in addition to his regular radio feature over NBC, "Melody Moments," Ormandy was made a member of Columbia's staff and was understood to be slated to be their general musical director. At any rate they featured him in a new program known as "Eugene Ormandy Presents—".

However so spontaneous was his reception in Philadelphia, that a call came to him to act as guest conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

Ormandy duplicated his Philadelphia success in the Northwestern city and the next word from there was that he had been appointed regular conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra. He succeeds the famous Belgian conductor, Henri Verbrugghen.

As Hans Kindler, leader of the National Symphony Orchestra, is with the cello, Ormandy is a gifted violinist, and started to make that his career. However, like a newspaper man we know, who yearned to be a reporter, but spent most of his life as a managing editor, Ormandy was always in demand as a conductor. He was concert master of the Bluetner Orchestra, in Berlin, head of the Master School of Music at the State Conservatoire, in Budapest, and conductor of the Capitol Theater Orchestra, in New York, where he was one of the stars who helped put Roxy on the map.

This last experience almost brought disaster, because just before he was to play a violin solo before President and Mrs. Coolidge, in Washington, with Roxy's Gang, he ripped the seat of the pants of a brand new dress suit he had bought for the occasion. Wee Willie Robyn came to the rescue with a couple of pins, but poor Ormandy was in agony for fear there might be a further catastrophe while he was appearing before the President of the United States.

ALTHOUGH the National Broadcasting Company announces that 200 concerts by America's three service bands—Army, Navy and Marine—have been scheduled for the coming season it neglects to say that, insofar as the NBC is concerned, these fine organizations will be completely crowded off the air by commercial programs during the desirable evening hours.

The WRC schedule follows: Army Band, Capt. William J. Stannard, Tuesdays, 4 p. m., and Fridays, 2 p. m.; Navy Band, Lieut. Charles Benter, Mondays, 10 a. m., Thursdays, 4:15 p. m.; Marine Band, Capt. Taylor Branson, Mondays, 3 to 4 p. m., Tuesday, 10 a. m.

The full membership of the bands, numbering approximately 80 men each, will be heard in the broadcasts. Capt. Taylor Branson is dedicating his Monday afternoon program to "shut-ins." This program will be made up entirely of requests from the radio audience.

Egbert Van Alstyne, who wrote "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree," back in 1903, will play a piano medley of his tunes today (WRC, 12:30 p. m.).

THROUGH an agreement with WMAL, Columbia will distribute the feature "Kaltenborn Edits the News," through WJSV Tuesdays and Thursdays, 7:30 p. m. • • • A new program featuring Aunt Jemima, blues singer, will be heard Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays (WMAL, 2:30 p. m.) • • • "Don Quixote" will be dramatized School of the Air this afternoon. • • • Beatrice Lillie is due for an appearance (WMAL, 10 o'clock) tonight • • • Rudolf Friml will be guest during the Mobiloil concert Wednesday night (WRC, 8:30 o'clock) • • • James Wilkinson, barytone, will sing "River Stay 'Way From My Door," and "Toreador Song," tonight (WRC, 6:00 o'clock) • • • Frances Bowdoin, the little girl from the Ozark Mountains of Missouri, will begin a series of chats over WRC this afternoon, 5:15 o'clock • • • "Thanksgiving, 1949," is the title of the Death Valley Days sketch (WJZ network, 8:30 o'clock tonight • • • Massachusetts will be honored during the Parade of the States • • • Lila McClelland, mezzo-soprano, will make her radio debut during the Black and Gold Room broadcast today (WRC, 12:15 p. m.).

Little Jack Little, the singing-composer who became famous over WLW, will be heard from the studios of WMAL at 10:30 o'clock tonight, and again on Wednesday night, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Little is at the Earle Theater this week.

ADDRESSES at the meeting of the joint committee of unemployment will be broadcast by WRC this afternoon, 1:30 o'clock Speakers include Norman Thomas, Prof. John Dewey, Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit, Mayor William A. Anderson of Minneapolis, and Dr. Sidney Goldstein, of New York City.

Oldest Inhabitants Plan Banquet.

Annual banquet of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants will be held at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening, December 7, at the Raleigh Hotel. The regular monthly meeting of the association will be held Wednesday, December 2, at 7:30 o'clock at the Old Engine House.

Jane Interprets the Mode

On Caribbean Sea, Nov. 22.

IT isn't Paris that is responsible for recent styles, in spite of the popular belief that this is so! It is the women themselves who demand what they want to express by their clothing, and Paris who grants their wishes. And as no less an authority than Lucien Lelong made this statement when he visited New York recently, we can not disregard it.

Lelong gives this reason for the short reign the little Eugenie hats enjoyed. Women didn't mind putting on shallow little hats for a change, he stated, but when it came to wearing them in various fabrics for all hours of the day, women found them most unsatisfactory. Of course, their feathers blew around unbecomingly in a strong breeze, and unless the coiffure was perfect these hats displayed it cruelly to the interested world, and these hats, being wholly innocent of brim, did nothing to protect miladi's eyes from the glare. For these and many more reasons, women were quickly bored with the gay little hats that threatened to be all there was in the hat world earlier in the season.

Lelong told reporters another curious fact—the restaurant dress was unknown in Paris! After he saw a few models of New York's popular frocks of speakeasy genus, he did admit that Paris had a frock similar to it but called by smart Parisiennes simply an "end of the day dress." This type of dress illustrates his contention that women get what they want. Women wanted, and needed, a frock that was a cross between out-and-out evening wear and ordinary afternoon wear—and what they wanted, Paris created!

• • • •

There is something faintly and delightfully reminiscent of the Russian influence in present-day wear in the suit from Lyolene that I have illustrated today. This suit is of navy blue wool, the skirt pleated on the sides to give a crisp fullness, and the jacket incrusted, front and back, not to mention the sleeves, in points, which are largely responsible for the wide-shouldered and form-fitting effect. The jacket is rounded in back and slightly longer there than in front. And narrow bands of black astrakhan border the entire jacket with its stand-up collar.

• • • •

And as if the suit itself were not sufficiently stunning, Lyolene has added a blouse of beige jersey with very decorative incrustations, and silver buttons down the front and on the sleeves.

• • • •

If you, like most women, are intrigued by the hint of "manniere Russe," indulge this Russian taste of yours discreetly. For the slight touch is delightful, and too heavy a touch is indecorous in this day of sophisticated adaptations!

• • • •

Those two hours between office and dinner! That Sunday morning when you simply hate to dress! That evening at home when you wish to be, oh, very elegant and attractive! Yes, you simply do need a new negligee; now you know you do—and one that you can make for yourself in an hour's time, too. So, you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, and you follow the directions for making a negligee that would cost you four times as much to buy ready made, and there you are! A negligee or two for yourself, and a couple for Christmas gifts—and all the same delightful model which takes no sewing nor cutting and fitting, honestly. And it stays on when put on, too.

Au revoir!

What Today Means to You

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF November 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:40 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4:10 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m. and from 7:45 p. m. to 9 p. m.

Unsettled conditions are augured for this date. Fixed habits will be disturbed, traditions will be uprooted, and you will be jerked out of the armchairs of the past to face vital matters of the moment. An unpleasant revelation of something, which will prove to be a blessing in disguise.

Astrological influences will tend to make the child born on this November 23 emotional, receptive, meditative and imitative. Its feelings will be deep seated, and it will be very sensitive to criticism and afraid of other people's opinions. There will be a slight tendency to indecision.

Born on November 23, you are very much a creature of habit, and you enjoy a routine life, traveled along the same planes and through the same ruts from day to day. Anything which takes you away from your chosen circle, favorite pastimes, preferred haunts, and customary round of duties, is upsetting to your equilibrium. You make no attempt to keep up with the times, and you are proud of being old-fashioned.

If permitted to do things in your own way, you are very capable as a worker, but you often remain a drudge because you are not quick to adopt, adapt or improve. It brings contentment of mind, but it does not spell progress. You have practical business ability and will be somewhat fortunate in money matters. Your accumulations will be made through carefulness and economy. You do not stint yourself in any manner, but you are careful of the small wastes, and you know how to take care of that which you already have.

You have a very hospitable disposition, and are a genial and generous host or hostess. You never put on any ostentation, but the freedom of your home and the best that is in it, is extended to your friends or guests. You are sympathetic, and you give from both the heart and hand to those who need your assistance. Loyalty is one of your traits, and you are always most sincere in both words and actions.

Successful people born November 23:
Theodore D. Weld, abolitionist.
Frank Morrison, labor leader.
Richard Croker, Tammany chief.
Fanny Ward, actress.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

THE use of a saucer in connection with any potted plant may be a benefit or an evil, according to the way it is used. Of course, we all know that some provision must be made to protect our woodwork and floors from the water which runs through the hole in the bottom of the pot.

When a saucer is used it should be emptied every time water is detected in the bottom of it. If this is not done, the plant will soon begin to show signs of fading. The reason for this condition is the fact that the fine rootlets in the bottom of the pot, if kept constantly standing in water, will soon decay and undermine the general constitution of the plant.

To avoid this, it is wise to use a saucer two sizes larger than the one designed to fit the pot. This should be half filled with small pebbles, which can be purchased in any seed store. The excess water from the pot will run among the stones and thus prevent the lower strata of soil from being constantly in a condition of mud.

Perhaps the most practical way to care for a group of house plants, which must be near the light, and therefore on the window sill, is to have a tinsmith make a tin or galvanized iron tray to fit the measurements of the window ledge. It should be the length of the window and about 18 inches wide and 2½ inches deep. When completed the bottom of the tray should be filled to the depth of 1 inch with pebbles on which the pots may be set without saucers.

When such an arrangement is used, the surplus water drains into the pebbles and is soon evaporated. Plants so situated may be watered without any fear of overwatering. The evaporating of the surplus water will prove a real benefit to the plants, as it will provide the moist atmosphere necessary for all plant life and so hard to attain in the average house.

Culbertson on Contract

TIME VERSUS THE ACE.

AN Ace is a common measuring stick to determine trick-taking power and all writers on Bridge correctly say that an Ace is worth a trick. There is, however, one important qualification of this statement and that is that the Ace must take the trick before it comes in contact with the time element which is one of the most important factors in the game of Contract Bridge.

Today's hand is a case in point.

South—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	♠ A K 8 7 ♡ A 3 2 ◇ K Q 10 8 ♣ K 8
♠ J 6 5 4 ♡ 10 9 8 7 6 ◇ A 9 ♣ 7 6	N W E S	♠ 3 2 ♡ Q J 5 4 ◇ 6 5 4 3 2 ♣ 3 2
	♠ Q 10 9 ♡ K ◇ J 7 ♣ A Q J 10 9 5 4

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♣	Pass	3◇	Pass
4♣	Pass	5♣	Pass
6♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding requires no particular comment. North has a very strong hand in honor-tricks and South has exceptional strength from the distributional standpoint. The combination of the two should produce game, or in exceptional cases even Slam. The Slam was properly contracted for.

West decided that his Ace was good for a trick any time and selected the top of his heart holding as the means for seeking the trick with which to defeat South's ambitious contract. South, of course, won this trick with his Singleton King then proceeded to draw six rounds of trumps. West discarded three hearts and one diamond, leaving the Ace bare. He knew nothing about the location of the spades, hence felt it was esential to retain the four spades to the Knave. In the meantime all Dummy's diamonds had been discarded. Before selecting another discard from the Dummy, South decided to discard himself, so the nine of spades was led and won in the Dummy. The Ace of hearts was then led and the small diamond discarded in the closed hand. South now returned to his own hand with the Queen of spades and West's decision that he must retain the Knave of spades was confirmed as it was apparent that South must hold another spade. South now laid down his last trump and West was hopelessly squeezed. Hoping against the hope that East held the Knave of diamonds, he discarded the Ace, whereupon South laid down the Knave of diamonds and took the thirteenth trick with the remaining spade honor in the North hand. While West's Ace was worth a trick once, it had to contend against the barrier of time which in the later play of the hand proved insuperable.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Answer:

1. An Opening bid of two in a suit except when but two tricks are needed for game. Then with Slam strength bid three if wishing partner to respond.
2. A Jump response in a different suit.
3. An Overcall in opponents' suit.
4. A Takeout Double.
5. A Jump Rebid in another suit.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a 2-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Out of the Frying Pan.

DEAR FRANCES M'DONALD—I wonder if you will help me with my problem as you have others.

I am a divorced woman, 26 years old. After my husband and I separated, I came to live with my people. The only place I had to go. They helped me by not charging me board but they throw it up in my face all the time. Well, I am working and trying to pay some bills which I owe.

About a year ago I met a young man, three years my senior, whom I do love. Well, he came to see me and my mother said insulting things to him, so I met him on the street after that and we would go for a walk or go to the movies.

Finally a group of gossips got together and told my mother some terrible things about him. Of course, I know there is no truth in the things they said, but she believed them. She came home and told me if I ever saw him again she would put me out and never would have another thing to do with me. This I know she would carry out, for she has that disposition.

I know everything they said about him wasn't so, but when he was younger he got into some trouble, but he is trying to live it down and be decent but my mother keeps nagging me all the time about him. I care for him and he does for me. He does all he can to make me happy and wants me to marry him as soon as he has saved enough money. He only works every other week, as the times are so hard he can't get a steady job, but he works as much as he can.

He also has been married and has a little girl 5 years old.

My mother would think he was lovely if he had money and a big automobile, but he hasn't and is only a working man.

She is bound I won't marry him. What shall I do? Give up my family or marry him? It seems as though I should have some happiness. Although I love my folks and hate to lose them, I know if I give him up, I'll be a wreck. Won't you please help me? I don't know what to do.

"BUNNY."

Like most of our youth who have never been taught the first thing about the real facts of life, your idea of "happiness" is encompassed by the idea of having a mate—however unfit, unsuited, unprepared. No amount of misery, disillusionment, bitter experience can eradicate the idea. It is often the only idea in an otherwise unused brain. More's the pity.

Your mother is not only right, 100 per cent, but she is to be pitied as she sits by helpless, while you go headlong out of the frying pan into the fire. Here is a man with a past that would be a warning to any sane woman, and on top of that, a child he is unable to support. And you are ready to marry him, in all his incompetency, share his poverty, rob his child, and trust to the charity of overburdened tax-payers to support and save from starvation, the children you will bring into the world. Are you in your right mind as you deliberately plan this program of madness?

Happiness, as you call it, keeps girls like you in the courts. First you want freedom from whatever mate you have—usually some poor moron who does not know what it is all about and never will. Next you appear two years later seeking support for the infant child of the successor to the first mate. Said successor has usually disappeared after six months of matrimony—the "happiness" you yearn for—and is in parts unknown, or finding "happiness" with some one else. It is an endless chain and it is a disgrace to humanity, and to the society that permits it to go on.

Take your mother's advice. Stop concentrating upon the idea of annexing another worthless man to your messed-up life. Begin to live intelligently. A man is not essential to existence. Accept the fact. Proceed as a rational human to enjoy your work, to make your parents' home attractive, to take interest in the things that make life interesting to thinking beings, and escape a place in that ever lengthening line of tawdry souls who stand bedraggled, their unhappy offspring in their arms, awaiting their turn to tell a harassed judge their oft-heard tale of a string of worthless men and half a dozen unfed children.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

THE MEMORY IN CONCUSSION.

WHEN a man is hit on the head violently and suffers from concussion of the brain in consequence, he does not remember what hit him, or how, and generally says so. If he always said so he would spare his friends some trouble. Occasionally, he remembers things that did not happen.

A London letter which recently appeared in the Journal of the American Medical Association contained a report on "Concussion and Memory," by C. W. Somerville. Dr. Somerville found that when a man had been knocked hard enough to have concussion of the brain his memory of what happened generally stopped a little short of the accident. He generally remembered what led up to it, but not the accident itself, or what followed it. In most cases memory stopped a definite though short period of time before the accident occurred. This was not easy to understand, though it may have been the result of shock from a paralyzing fear. For instance, a man struck by an automobile so as to produce concussion might remember seeing the automobile approaching, but he would have no recollection of what happened in the last fraction of a second before he was struck, possibly because the realization of what was coming threw his thinking apparatus out of gear. In every case reported by Dr. Somerville, the subject had no memory of the accident itself.

Of greater interest from the medico-legal standpoint are certain tendencies to invent things to remember, and usually in good faith. In some cases the days during which unconsciousness or "mental wooziness" lasted are dropped and the patient insists on a new set of dates.

In one case the accident occurred on the third and it was not until the tenth that the patient was ready to take up the thread of his life. He insisted that the tenth was the third and reckoned accordingly. A man on a bicycle was run down by another bicyclist. When he became conscious in the hospital he insisted it was the physician in attendance who had caused the accident.

He had a detailed recollection of it all and this he repeated in good faith. The physician was compelled to defend himself by proving that he had been nowhere near the place of the accident. A woman was found shot. She was unconscious. Presently she became conscious, whereupon she recited a detailed story of how the accident occurred, telling just how the doctor had shot her. In this case the physician had great difficulty in meeting the charge.

In the discussion two physicians repeated their experiences after being knocked senseless. One was thrown and rendered unconscious. On the way to the hospital he delivered a lecture on trephining. When his mind became clear he had no recollection of this lecture.

IT IS NOT DANGEROUS.

Miss A. D. writes: Is it dangerous to drink a quart of hot water, with a teaspoonful of salt in it, a half hour before breakfast? It is the best I have ever tried to move my bowels and I want to continue drinking it if it is not harmful. I have been told that it is very dangerous to drink the salt and water.

REPLY

5 Movie Houses Defy Blue Law for Charity

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 22.—Five motion picture houses were open here tonight despite protest of the Cumberland Ministerial Union to State authorities "that operation of the houses on Sunday would be in violation of the law. The entire gross of all the places that gave shows, it was stated, would be turned over to the emergency charity relief fund. The shows were well patronized, there having been heavy advance sale of tickets.

One theater proprietor desired to open, but as he had been fined last winter for conducting Sunday movies and placed on parole, it was feared he might be in contempt of court should he give a show. His was the only house that opened on Sunday last winter to give charity shows, but he discontinued following court action.

Cyprian Bishops Land In England Destitute

Hull, England, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Looking like destitute emigrants, Bishop Meslonas and Bishop Makarios, who were banished from the island of Cyprus in connection with the recent revolt, arrived today aboard an Italian cargo steamer.

Treasury Bill Sale Is Set for Friday

$100,000,000 Offering to Be Redeemable on March 2, 1932.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Mellon announced yesterday the Treasury would sell $100,000,000 in Treasury bills to the highest bidder Friday. This will bring to $50,000,000 the preponderance of such securities issued over those redeemed in the month. The new bills, which will be for 93 days, will be redeemed at face value March 2, 1932.

The Treasury has borrowed an average of $50,000,000 a week since the first of the fiscal year—July 1, but such borrowing has been largely a turnover to retire an equal amount of securities.

This month, however, is two of the weekly borrowings, the Treasury sold $15,000,000 more than was retired.

TEACHERS TO WEIGH MINIMUM PAY PLAN

Virginia Meeting's Tentative Resolutions Hit Move to Curtail Costs.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Approval of the program for public education promulgated by the State department of education, and request that the General Assembly provide sufficient funds to pay minimum salaries set up in the program established by the board, is expressed in the tentative report of the resolutions committee of the Virginia Education Association to be presented to the association in annual conference here this week.

The proposed report expressed approval of steps to secure revised curricula for high schools and pledged support of the association to the move. It proposes to place the association on record as favoring the principle of free textbooks and indorsing action of the retirement fund committee in its effort to frame an adequate retirement bill for teachers.

The proposed report would urge the General Assembly to provide appropriations commensurate with needs for school library purposes. Instructional supplies, physical equipment and incidentals, now obtained by wasteful means, are necessary to sound administration, the report said.

Adult Schools Urged.

The report further urged that the Commonwealth undertake to make provision for adults who desire to continue study, and advocate as an immediate goal that teachers be provided for groups of as many as fifteen who express interest in a desired subject. The report also reiterated its stand that the superintendent of public instruction should be elected by the State Board of Education.

The report expresses the association's disapproval of any move to curtail educational efforts because of economic emergencies.

The convention will get under way tomorrow with a meeting of the executive committee in the afternoon and of the board of directors in the evening.

Sessions of the convention will begin Tuesday, with three concurrent meetings—the rural supervisors section, Lillian Minor, presiding; the department of superintendents, Roland E. Cook presiding, and the department of trustees, Herbert F. Williams presiding.

Group Sessions Wednesday.

Wednesday the convention will be divided into twelve groups—the department of superintendents, continuing its study of curriculum revision under leadership of Mr. Cook; the department of trustees, considering problems in their field; the department of rural education, led by E. B. Fitzpatrick; geography section, led by Grace B. Moran; art section, led by Marnetta Souder; health and physical education section, led by Walter F. Jones; music section, led by Mrs. Sydney C. Swann; department of principals and supervisors, led by R. Claude Graham; social science section, led by R. E. Swindler; teacher training section, and vocational education section, led by B. H. VanOot.

A general meeting in the evening will be addressed by Dr. Sydney B. Hall and Dr. Hollis L. Caswell, of Peabody College.

Final Session Friday.

Thursday section meetings will be held by the departments of colleges and secondary schools, principals and supervisors of rural education, and the mathematics, modern language, science, social science, teacher training and writing sections. General meetings will be held in the morning, with a Thanksgiving sermon by Dr. C. L. King, of Richmond, and in the evening, with addresses by Gov. Pollard and Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior.

Friday section meetings will be held by the classical teachers, classroom teachers, public school librarians, science, vocational and educational guidance and commercial teachers' sections, and the department of principals and supervisors.

A general meeting in the morning will be featured by the annual report of the association president, Hugh L. Sulfridge. A general meeting Friday evening, addressed by J. W. Crabtree, secretary of the National Education Association, and by Dr. Herbert B. Bruner, Teachers' College, Columbia University, will close the convention.

Prisoner Transferred For Hearing on Assault

Special to The Washington Post.

Easton, Md., Nov. 22.—William M. Randall, colored, charged with criminally assaulting Florence Dashiell, white, of Gransonville, Queen Annes County, was brought to the Easton Jail under the cover of darkness last night, handcuffed to Sheriff A. Raymond Carroll. His arrival was not observed.

The grand jury of Queen Annes County found a true bill against Randell, who is alleged to have committed the crime on June 21. People of Grasonville became incensed over the affair, and Randall was taken to Baltimore for safe keeping. The prisoner asked for a change of venue and the case was transferred to Talbot County. His trial is scheduled to start tomorrow morning.

Albemarle Man Dies After Rail Accident

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 22.—Preston J. Butler, of Esmont, in southern Albemarle, railway foreman, died last night at University Hospital from injuries received when he was thrown from a railway motor car. He suffered a compound fracture of the femur and amputation of the leg followed.

Mr. Butler, a native of Albemarle County, was 60 years old. He married Miss Carrie Edwards, of Howardsville, who survives, with four sons and three daughters. The funeral was held this afternoon at Mount Zion Church, at Esmont. Burial services were in charge of Albemarle Lodge, No. 277, A. F. and A. M. Interment was in the cemeterw adjacent to the church.

Texas Cantaloupe Order From German Fancier

Midland, Tex., (U.P.).—Cantaloupes from the Texas Pecos River country may go international soon.

B. G. Smith, cantaloupe grower near here, recently filled an order for three crates of melons for Cologne, Germany.

Movie Fans Leave Show To Kill Flock of Geese

None of the geese was killed. The birds had been attracted to the theater by the bright lights.

Inheritance Puzzles Teachers.

Carroll, Iowa, (U.P.).—Until they figure out what they will do with the $50,000 willed them by a relative in Brooklyn, June and Lucy Winters intend to keep on teaching school. June Winters has taught in the grade schools here for 20 years. Her sister, Lucy, teaches Latin at Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Botanists Study Insect Eating Plant of Park

Glacier Park, Mont., (U.P.).—Botanists who come to Glacier National Park to study the Alpine flowers, which abound in this region, spend a great deal of their time observing the sundew, an insect-eating plant.

The insects are caught by tiny hairs capped with a drop of honey-like substance, which covers the leaves of the plant. The honey-like substance which lures the insects into the plant is very sticky, and while the victim attempts to free itself from one of the hairs, it becomes entangled with other hairs and soon smothers to death.

Juices, secreted by the hairs, digest the trapped insect in such a manner that the plant is able to extract and assimilate the nitrogen in the victim's body.

Ozark Scenery Is Basis of Suit

Jefferson City (U.P.).—The dollar value of Ozark Mountain scenery will be decided here late this month when the $1,000,000 suit involving land submerged by the Lake of the Ozarks is brought to trial in United States District Court.

Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves will be on the bench when the Snyder brothers, of Kansas City, ask the Union Electric Co. of St. Louis for more than $1,000,000 for damages to the vast Snyder estate in central Missouri.

Union Electric Co. is builder of the huge $33,000,000 dam over the Osage River, which has formed a lake more than 175 miles in length. Part of the Snyder estate now lies under the water. That part, however, is not so much in litigation. It is claimed that the scenic beauty of the famous Castle of Hahatonka, and the woods and caves on the shore of the lake have been impaired.

MONDAY NOVEMBER 23, 1931 SPORTS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THEY peeled the moss off the field goal last Saturday and exposed it to the November sunlight to engineer the defeats of Notre Dame and Harvard and once more establish the foot as an integral part of football.

The advent of the forward pass relegated the field goal to the sidelines along with the bustle and the hoop. Knute Rockne, playing end for Notre Dame in 1913, caught so many passes from Gus Dorais one afternoon on the plains of West Point that the football world was stunned by the defeat of Army. That Notre Dame Team solidly implanted the forward pass as the most destructive weapon in any team's equipment.

With the growing popularity of the forward pass, the field goal lost its effectiveness, comparatively. Coaches who used to spend long hours training their charges in the art of drop kicking and placement kicking, forgot about the field goal in the forward passing frenzy and in many cases the aerial offensives superseded the running game as the basis of the attack.

The rules chiefs took a hand in the subordination of the field goal back in 1928 when they ordered the goal posts set back 10 yards behind the goal line on the theory that the presence of the uprights, even though padded, accounted for too many injuries, and seriously handicapped an attacking team if the ball was in close proximity to the posts.

The effect was to lengthen by 10 yards every field goal kicking attempt. Kicks ranging from 20 to 30 yards which were the most frequent, took on an added 10-yard hazard. A 30-yard kick in the days before 1928 became a 40-yard kick with the removal of the goal posts 10 yards back. Coaches and quarter backs were reluctant to attempt field goals under these conditions. The forward pass was the thing.

Specialists in the art of field goal kicking dwindled. Whereas every team boasted at least one trained kicker in the heyday of the field goal, recent seasons have demonstrated a woeful lack of these specialists with a safe guess being that 50 per cent of the colleges have not attempted a field goal throughout an entire season.

The fact that it was Notre Dame and Harvard that fell before the thrust of the field goal augurs well for the new popularity of the three-point scoring vehicle. The transcendent boots of Johnny Baker and Albie Booth took place in the two outstanding games of the Nation on the same day and gave coaches and quarter backs a consciousness that they possess weapons that might win many a ball game.

A contributing factor to the scarcity of field goals besides the forward pass is the lust for touchdowns that coaches and quarter backs are prone to display. Too often they hold the belief that the lack of a scoring play, either by a pass or running attempt, was a reflection on the team's offensive power. But Yale and Southern California were glad to take their field goals and call it quits.

Proponents of the passing and running attack can point with justification to the fact that Notre Dame's great teams never depended upon the field goal to score in recent memory. But Notre Dame is Notre Dame. Rockne's carefully devised scoring plays left little scope for the field goal and his offensives were so uniformly successful that three points rarely meant the difference between victory and defeat.

But even Notre Dame teams have not neglected the art of drop and placement kicking. Against Penn, they successfully kicked the point after each one of their seven touchdowns and against Southern California yesterday, they added the extra point twice.

The spectator has been cheated with the eclipse of the field goal. There is no more spectacular play in the game than an attempted kick for three points. These three points usually mean the difference between victory and defeat, or a tie.

When the rules makers moved back the goal posts they robbed the fans of those spectacular stands in "the shadow of the goal post." How, now, can a team make a stand in the shadow of its own goal posts when the goal posts are so far away they cast no shadow?

Bruder, Saunders Star as Packers Come From Behind to Win, 14-10.

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—With Hank Bruder and Russell Saunders rushing the Giants' line to shreds, the Green Bay Packers came from behind in the last quarter to defeat New York Giants, 14 to 10, in a National Pro-Foot Ball League game today. A crowd of 40,000 saw the Packers take a lead in the first minute of play, relinquish it in the Giants' brilliant second-period rally, and then grab victory out of what appeared to be their second defeat of the season.

The Packers struck fast and sure for their first touchdown. Hurdis McCray, former Georgia back, returned the opening kick-off to midfield and Red Dunn crossed a long pass to Johnny Blood, which netted the remaining 50 yards. Dunn kicked goal for the extra point.

With Benny Friedman on the sending end of passes to Burnett and Badgro, the Giants drove down the field late in the period and Moran plunged over from the 3-yard line as the second period opened. Moran added the extra point.

A surprise pass, Moran to Flaherty, late in the second session, put the Giants in the position where Moran booted a place-kick from the 12-yard line.

Apaches Beat Mohawks, 13 to 6

Drive of Hawks Near End Is Stopped; Snyder Stars.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

A FIGHTING Apache eleven, that fought as though its very life blood was at stake, turned back a savage last-minute attack of the challenging Mohawks to win a 13-6 victory and retain its District championship at Griffith Stadium yesterday. It was the Apaches' third win over the Hawks in the last four years. Only a few weeks ago the two clubs had battled to a 7-7 deadlock, but Seymour Hall's men stod out head and shoulders over those of Patsy Donovan yesterday, and left no doubt in the minds of the spectatores as to which was the better team.

The Apaches were on trial before a jury of some 2,000 fans yesterday, and they realized it. St. Mary's Celtics had trounced them the week before by a score of 25-0, and there were cries that the team, now chiefly composed of former college players, was not as good as the old neighborhood gang of a few years ago. "Tell us it ain't so, Seymour, tell us it ain't so," they wailed. Seymour told them, the team told them, and most convincing of all, the final score told its own story.

Fouts Little Help to Mohawks.

The Mohawks may be league leaders in the South Atlantic circuit, but they can't beat the Apaches, as many a wise wagerer knows this morning.

One of the contributing factors to the defeat of Donovan's men was the play of Leon Fouts, who caused no end of trouble after the Mohawk-Irvington game, which led to a protest by the latter team. Fouts conclusively demonstrated his rights to the third string full back job with George Washington University's team, and on the strength of his performance yesterday he may have even made the fourth team. From an Apache viewpoint, it was tough that the Mohawks did not have two or three more players of the same name in their back field.

Fouts scored the Mohawks' only touchdown early in the first quarter after they had worked the ball down to the Apaches' 5-yard stripe. Fouts tossed a pass to Helvestine that netted 25 yards, and then took a lateral pass from Snyder to place the ball on the Apaches' 15-yard line. A 5-yard penalty and Helvestine's plunge off-tackle placed the ball on the 3-yard mark, and then Fouts took the responsibility of carrying it over. He tore off huge gains of several inches on three successive trips with the pigskin, bringing the ball one foot from the goal. The Apaches, thinking they had won a moral victory, came back fighting and forced the Mohawks to punt from behind their own goal line. Snyder's punt was blocked by Hall, and Snyder fell on the ball on the Mohawk 15-yard line. Two plays netted 5 yards, and Snyder then passed to Hall for the touchdown that won the game.

Janes Makes Score.

Even in the second half, until the final fifteen minutes of play, the Virginia booters had an edge. Early in the last period Janes sent a fast shot by Jones for the second marker for the shipbuilding Virginia club and it continued to press. Matters looked hopeless for the Uniteds a few minutes after the second marker, when Janes again scored, but he was off side and the goal was disallowed.

It required strong hearts on the part of the British United eleven to tie up the game after the first 65 of the regular 90 minutes of play. The visitors, with the aid of two of the ablest backs ever performing here, A. Mitchell and D. Jacques, repulsed with apparent ease the worthy attacks of Jack Watts and Jack Turner during the majority of the first two halves.

Once the two Jacks broke through the Virginia two-man defense and then fate seemed to have combined forces with the visitors. First Turner and then Watts shot at open goals, but the former hit the upright and the latter headed into the crosspiece.

Instead of quaking under adversities and apparent fate the English kickers blazed a fiery attack at the Newport goal and so relentless was the charge that fatigued defense gave

Injured N. C. Captain Now Out of Danger

Durham, N. C., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Pierce "Kid" Brewer, Duke football captain, who was injured in the game with University of North Carolina here Saturday, was fully conscious today. Physicians said he was much better and said he was out of danger.

Brewer sustained a severe cerebral concussion. He was unconscious until early this morning. Physicians said it would be impossible for Brewer to play against Washington and Lee next Saturday, the last game of the year for Duke.

BRITISH TIE VA. SOCCER TEAM, 2-2

2,000 Watch Newport News Team Held to Draw.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., usually sends a good soccer team to Washington and yesterday was no exception. British United Club found the Virginians to be stubborn opponents and the local kickers were fortunate to earn a 2-to-2 draw in an extra period match in the third round of the United States Football Association's cup tie tourney.

The Newport News squad gave the District Britishers a terrific battle until the summer-like heat, mingled with the 180, or more, mile ride here before the game, took its toll and then and then only did the English kickers compare with the visiting soccerists.

Starting in the first half, the Newport News crowd displayed better passing and condition than the Uniteds and pressed the latter to a penalty kick in the first half that was converted by Janes, of the visitors, into a marker that looked like sufficient for victory at that stage of the game.

Janes Makes Score.

Trojan Players Praise Performance of Notre Dame.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Five of the Southern California football players have herewith given their impressions of the Trojans' 16-14 victory over Notre Dame Saturday at South Bend).

(Copyright, 1931, by the United Press.)

CHICAGO, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—"Team play won for us after we seemd hopelessly beaten," Erny Pinckert, Southern California's stalwart blocking half back, told the United Press today. "It was the will to win in the mind of every Trojan player which was finally galvanized into one desperate, dynamic rally which overthrew the reign of one of the greatest football teams I have ever seen or played against.

"Man for man I think Notre Dame is as good as last year, but they haven't the team play. Man for man we are about the same as last year, but we had that team play—eleven men working and driving toward one objective.

"They say that Notre Dame used several guards and tackles and numerous replacements when the tide shifted, but we never noticed their faces. We were going after their bodies and legs.

"Notre Dame overshifted on the defense in the last period and this paved the way for Howard Jones' old power to play to gain consistently.

Schwartz and Kurth Praised.

"I think Schwartz and Kurth were Notre Dame's greatest players and certainly deserve consideration as all-Americans."

Johnny Baker, the Trojans' running guard, who did not come into the game until Notre Dame had a 14-0 lead, does not give himself any credit for winning the game with a place-kick in the last minute and a half of play.

"I guess I didn't get such a thrill out of that place-kick as I will as time goes by, because we were all on edge and couldn't realize exactly what was happening. Behind a line that held like ours and with a cool-headed player like Mohler holding the ball, any grammar school kid could have booted it over.

"It was the team that made the field goal. My part was the easiest of all. Gordon Clark made a great block to stop a Notre Dame tackler who had broken through the line which did as much as anything to enable us to win."

Capt. Stanley Williamson took the complete responsibility of the game on his shoulders when he refused to allow Homer Griffith, sent in by Coach Howard Jones, to try for a drop-kick, to come into the game in

Booth Finally Wins From Harvard

Role of Hero, Long Deferred, Very Sweet in Reality.

All-American Berth Virtually Assured for Wood.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—It's a great year for the law of averages in the whirl of sports. It caught up with the celebrated Pepper Martin. It turned the scales finally against such champions as the Athletics and Notre Dame. As a climax, the charmed career of Harvard's superathlete, William Barry Wood, jr., has been added to its victims, and the acclaim of the Eastern gridiron melodrama belongs today to Yale's little boy blue, Albie Booth.

Three years ago when Booth entered Yale as the home-town hero of New Haven, bright college years of continued gridiron glory were deflected in the optimism of Eli adherents. The mighty midget seemed cast for an heroic role, only to find the breaks and Harvard, especially Harvard's tall, slim Barry Wood, very much against him. As a freshman, sophomore and junior, Booth failed to break through the Crimson barriers.

Two years ago, on a bleak November day, Booth was unwrapped on the frozen gridiron and tossed into the Harvard game here for an attempted drop-kick that turned into a boomerang. The kick was blocked, Booth was smothered and the Crimson counter-marched to a decisive touchdown.

Booth Makes Good.

Skip two more years and the scene is almost identical. Harvard and Yale are scoreless. Yale is pounding at the Crimson goal with only three minutes to go before the final gun. Again, the situation calls for a drop-kick by Booth. This time even the weather gods are smiling, for it is as balmy as a day in June. Albie drops back, his teammates block the Harvard charge perfectly and the Yale captain's aim is sure and true.

A drop-kicked field goal, three precious points. They were sufficient for Yale to turn the tables, finally; for Booth to beat his arch-rival, Barry Wood, and give Yale its first delirious thrill of victory since 1927.

It was a stunning setback for Harvard, the favorite, the unbeaten and the pace-setter of Eastern gridiron machines. Conqueror of Army, Texas, Dartmouth and Holy Cross, the Crimson's hopes of an unbeaten season for the first time since 1913 went soaring into the soft November twilight on the arching flight of Booth's beautiful boot. Once again the foot proved mightier than the hand that throws the Harvard pass, for Yale almost completely spiked Barry Wood's most dangerous weapon in this surging battle for revenge.

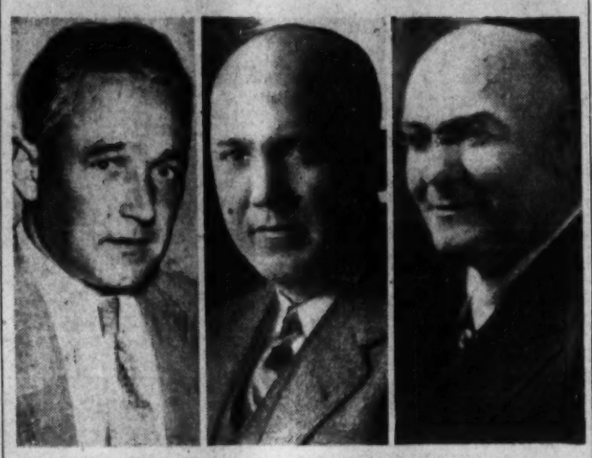
Colonials, Hoyas, Cards In Charity Grid Game Rally



A "pep" meeting to generate interest in the unemployment benefit football game scheduled in Griffith Stadium December 12, when Alabama's Rose Bowl team will meet George Washington, Catholic and Georgetown universities, is to be held tomorrow at 12:15 p. m. in front of the District Building. The principal speakers are the head football coaches of the local institutions, shown above, left to right—"Dutch" Bergman, Catholic; Jim Pixlee, George Washington, and Tommy Mills, Georgetown.

Coaches, Captains, Cheer Leaders to Tell D. C. Fans Tomorrow What Alabama May Expect in Dec. 12 Contest.

COACHES, team captains, cheer leaders, students and alumni of George Washington, Catholic and Georgetown universities will clash in oratorical combat tomorrow in front of the stately District Building. The only thing missing from what will be an old-fashioned collegiate pep meeting are the football teams of the three institutions involved. The teams will save their voices and brains—and brawn, for the more exacting task scheduled for them on December 12, when they will meet the University of Alabama, Rose Bowl champions of 1930, in three 20-minute games in Griffith Stadium for the benefit of Washington's unemployed.

Coaches Pixlee, of George Washington; Bergman, of Catholic, and Mills, of Georgetown, will address the gathering (everybody is welcome) for two minutes each. Their talks will deal with the charity game in general and just what their respective teams' prospects are for defeating the famous Crimson Tide from Tuscaloosa, conquerors of Washington State last New Year's Day in the classic Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, Calif.

Cheer Leaders on Program.

The cheer leaders will talk for two minutes each and the captains of the three local teams will consume one minute each in giving opinions of what Capital fans may expect from their teams against the common opponent.

Helping to "pep up" the occasion, a band will be on hand to render selections representative of the colleges. Then the cheer leaders will direct the old grads and supporters of the schools in a short session of lung exercise.

According to the committee in charge, the entire affair will consume but 15 minutes, beginning promptly at 12:15 p. m. Police will keep traffic from interfering.

Auteuil Jump Race Landed by Maryland

Auteuil, France, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Maryland, owned by Aaron de Anchorenas and ridden by Jockey Dubus, won the Prix Pantalon Steeplechase, valued at 15,000 francs, at the Auteuil track today. Kara Bouroum finished second and Roi du Monde third. The race was over a 3,800-meter distance and the winner paid 22½ to 5 in the pari-mutuels.

V. Peraldi's Les Rameaux Deux won the 2,000-franc Prix Entraineur Handicap, another jumping race over the same distance. Fonspertuis was second, Kilkenny third and Mirador, entry of the Argentine sportsman, Eduardo Martinez Dehoz, fourth.

SOLDIERS SEEK GAMES.

Company K, Twelfth Infantry, Fort Washington, Maryland, desires basket ball contests with any unlimited team in the District of Columbia or surrounding territory. Call Alexandria 1245 or write Manager "Joe" Gavaghan, Company K, Twelfth Infantry, Fort Washington Md.

Harvard and Notre Dame Erased

Trojans, Green Wave May Meet in Rose Bowl Game.

By HERBERT W. BARKER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—Three pretenders, Tulane, Southern California and Northwestern, sat close to the national football throne today, ready to assume the royal robes, if and when a clear title claim can validly be made.

There were other possible contenders, notably Tennessee and Southern Methodist, among colleges playing major schedules, but their right to place so close to the throne did not seem quite so clearly defined.

If, as most observers expect, Tulane is invited to battle Southern California in the annual Rose Bowl game, the title situation will be considerably clarified, although Northwestern will have to be given careful consideration if they whip Purdue next Saturday to wind up a season unmarred by defeat.

Beaten back just when both figured to have a hand in any argument over a national award were Notre Dame and Harvard—both by the margin of a field goal.

Notre Dame Finally Stopped.

Notre Dame, which had run through 26 games since 1928 without suffering defeat, finally were forced to bow to a series of last-period thrusts by the powerful Trojans, of Southern California, yesterday, 16-14, Johnny Baker booting a field goal for the winning points in the last minute of play.

Harvard, generally considered the class of the East, bowed to Yale, 3 to 0, on Albie Booth's last quarter drop-kick from the 12-yard line.

Southern California's gallant comeback against Notre Dame, after trailing 14 to 0, entitles the Trojans to national consideration despite the defeat they suffered in their first game at the hands of St. Mary's, of Oakland, Calif. Tulane, unbeaten and untied, plowed through Sewanee, 40 to 0, and Northwestern handed Iowa a 19-to-0 beating.

Yale's victory over Harvard, of course, was the high spot of the Eastern program, but the one big upset of the day saw the Bucknell Bisons wind up an undefeated season by overthrowing the previously unbeaten Fordham Rams, 14 to 13. Southern Methodist found Navy a tough foe, but finaly won, 13 to 6. Columbia and Syracuse played to a scoreless tie and Lafayette whipped Lehigh, 13 to 7, after a bitter struggle.

In the Big Ten, the big surprise of the day was Michigan's 6-to-0 victory over the powerful Gophers, of Minnesota. Ohio State ran up a 40-to-0 count on Illinois; Purdue turned back Indiana, 19 to 0, and Wisconsin nosed out Chicago, 12 to 7.

Nebraska Gains Title.

Nebraska clinched the Big Six title with a 23 to 0 win over Iowa State as Kansas turned back Missouri, 14 to 0. Drake won the Missouri Valley Conference crown with a 6 to 0 verdict over Grinnell. Detroit surprised with a 20 to 13 triumph over Michigan State.

In the Far West, California finally broke a seven-year string of Stanford victories, beating the Indians, 6 to 0, before a crowd of 90,000. A third period touchdown gave Oregon a 13 to 6 win over the University of California at Los Angeles.

There was a lull in the South, where Tulane's easy conquest of Sewanee was the only game affecting the title situation, Tennessee being idle. Georgia had a fight on her hands to stop Auburn, 12 to 6, and Duke surprised by holding North Carolina to a scoreless tie. Georgia Tech, showing further improvement, crushed Florida, 23 to 0; South Carolina whipped North Carolina State, 21 to 0, and Maryland outpointed Washington and Lee 13 to 7.

Texas Christian and Rice checked, in with Southwest Conference wins, the former over Baylor, 19 to 6, and Rice over Arkansas, 26 to 12.

Temple's 18 to 0 win over Denver was the high spot in the Rocky Mountain district, where Colorado University turned back Colorado College, 17 to 7, in their annual clash.

Stapleton Wins, 16-7, In League; Strong Stars

Stapleton, N. Y. Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The individual feats of Ken Strong, former All-American player at New York University, gave the Stapleton Stapes a 16 to 7 victory over the Cleveland Indians in a National League professional football game today. Strong scored all of his team's points.

In the first period, Cunningham intercepted a Cleveland pass and ran it back 20 yards to the 10-yard line. In two plays Strong carried the ball across for a touchdown. His kick for the extra point was blocked. Cleveland took the lead in the second period when Vokaty, chief Indian ground gainer, scored a touchdown and Workman converted.

Chicago Bears Defeat Dodgers; Grange Stars

New York, Nov. 22 (A.P.).—The Chicago Bears crushed the Brooklyn Dodgers by a 26-to-0 score in a National League professional football game before 25,000 fans today. The Bears held the upper hand all the way and scored in three of the four periods. Brooklyn's best threat was stopped at the 20-yard line when Trafton intercepted a forward pass.

Red Grange scored the opening touchdown in the first period, taking a pass over the goal line. Another pass, Molesworth to Drury, traveling 45 yards, paved the way for the second score. Drury crashed through the line for the last 5 yards. The last two touchdowns came in the closing minutes of the final period.

TWO $10,000 HANDICAPS FEATURE FINAL WEEK AT BOWIE

Mutuel Play Far Ahead Of 1930

Vice President Pays Tribute to Burch, Turfman.

Whipper Cracker Favored in Feature Race Today.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 22. The seventh day of the Bowie meeting of thirteen days is featured by the Long Green Purse for 3-year-olds, and supporting this are the Genteel for 2-year-olds and an all-aged purse, with four other races, only two of the races on the entire program being at sprint distances.

Bowie will continue to have a monopoly of racing—omitting Tanforan—until Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, when two of the winter tracks get into action, one at Jefferson Park, New Orleans, and the other at Agua Caliente. The meeting at Bowie has been a revelation to the turf, for, aided by perfect weather so far, the crowds for each day, during the last week, exceeded those of last year, and the parimutuel betting has shown a larger volume of money than corresponding days of a year ago.

Bowie's climax was Saturday, when its largest attendance witnessed its best day of racing, and the "handle" of the mutuels amounted to $680,000 in round numbers, many thousands above that of last year on the first Saturday of the session.

Horses of high class performed in the various races, but especial distinction was won by Walter Salmon's Dr. Freeland in the Southern Maryland Handicap, in which he earned $25,450; William I. duPont's White Clover, $4,000 for placing; Mrs. John D. Hertz's Valenciennes, $2,000 for third, and A. C. Bostwick's Mate, $1,000 fourth money, a total distribution of $32,450 in the one race.

Unusual honor was paid to the late W. P. Burch, pioneer horseman, after the winning of the W. P. Burch Memorial by the great Balko, when Vice President Charles Curtis extolled the character of that rugged sportsman when presenting the cup and a floral wreath to Bud Stottler, trainer of the Sagamore Stable, and a replica of the cup to Mrs. Charles Amory, owner of the Sagamore Stable. A touch of sentiment was added when the flowers were sent to Willie Nertney, star jockey, languishing in a hospital after his injuries at Pimlico in a fall.

Such gatherings and such high-class racing as that of Saturday give to Maryland racing its color and its atmosphere. In his references to Mr. Burch, the Vice President said: "Burch was one of the pioneer horsemen, with an acquaintance extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and one of the very best the turf has ever produced."

Two important stakes enhance the current week at Bowie, the $10,000 added Thanksgiving Handicap, and on Saturday the $10,000 added Endurance Handicap, the last for 2-year-olds.

Reverting to the program tomorrow, seven are to go in the Long Green purse. WHIPPER CRACKER has been improving, and this is his easiest race. It may be close between him and GIGANTIC, which nipped WHIPPER CRACKER for place Saturday. This was GIGANTIC'S best recent race, while WHIPPER CRACKER has been close up in several starts in Maryland. MINE SWEEPER has early speed and may hold on. Measure would have a chance on her best races.

FIRST RACE—The Marshall Field, Mrs. Corning entry, is regarded best of the 2-year-olds in the first race. This entry is composed of MERRILY ON, GOOBER and LANSON. Either of these has a chance to win. C. V. Whitney's HABERNERO will be one of the choices, and should be the contender. FLOOR WALKER was beaten a nose in his last and is expected to get part of the purse.

SECOND RACE—BACCIOCCO has had a rest, has worked well, and is selected to win the second race. This High Time gelding ran last time at Laurel and was fourth to Grand Prince. GUN ROYAL, if he gets in the race, should be the contender.

THIRD RACE—For all-aged horses should go to SNAPPY SNUB, which beat Angry Plume. BLACK PATRICIA, second to Fairdale last out, should place, and FAIR FOLLY, which beat Justiciary at Pimlico, seems a strong contender.

FOURTH RACE—FLAG TRICK should win the Genteel Purse. She was pulled up in her last start, but in the previous contest had beaten BOSCOBEL, which again should be the contender, and DELICACY appears best of the others.

SIXTH RACE—SHIVA is selected to win the sixth race for 2-year-olds at a mile and 70 yards. He has been running with a higher class of horses. KLIP DRIFT has worked very fast and raced well in the West. NANSEN has class and on his best races would be very dangerous.

SEVENTH RACE—GAY BIRD is reported to be ready for brackets. KESTKO, beaten a nose by Live One at Pimlico, is rated the contender. JUDICIARY may get third money.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

DAVID NELSON DENMAN III was made a member of the Pennsylvania State Legislature, House of Representatives, March 30, 1931. David's mother, Hon. Mary T. Denman, is also a duly elected member of the House, having served in the 1931 session at Harrisburg. His official entry into affairs of the Commonwealth came after a resolution had been read, considered, and unanimously adopted.

The resolution read, in part, as follows:

"Whereas, the Easter Bunny, in advance of his customary advent, has, in the guise of the stork, left at the home of Hon. Mary T. Denman, in Latrobe, a baby boy, and

Whereas, for the first time in the history of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania a member of this House has become a mother, and

"Whereas, this boy by reason of a rich heritage of mentality coming from a father and mother who are both members of the bar of Westmoreland County, and from a mother who has already achieved distinction as a statesman of ability, is well qualified to take his place as the 209th member of the House, be it

"Resolved, that an unlimited leave of absence be granted to the Hon. Mary T. Denman and her son, and that the House extend its untinted congratulations to them both."

Right from the first, David proved to be a born politician. His first official action was to place a big OKAY on the MILK BILL.

Wood has completed his varsity football career for Harvard. By his performances over a long winning stretch, he apparently has clinched the All-America quarter back post for 1931 on a surging wave of approval that can not be stemmed by a 3-point defeat in a game that hung in the balance right up to the last.

Booth will face at least two, possibly three more football foes before he rounds out his varsity campaign but the capstone of Albie's spectacular career is the ride he took atop heaving Eli shoulders on Harvard's gridiron after yesterday's triumph.

Two Mayors, 300 Women Among 1,701 Spectators Who Are "Frisked" As They Enter Gates; 3,000 Turned Away.

OSSINING, N. Y., Nov. 22 (A.P.).—A policeman's football team drove home the old slogan, "You Can't Win," today by defeating the Sing Sing convict aggregation, 13 to 0. It was the inmates' second game. They defeated a Naval Militia team last Sunday, 33 to 0, and had cherished high hopes of doing something similar to the "cops."

It was a faster, smoother outfit that donned the Blue and Red and faced the orange-garbed police from Port Jervis, N. Y., this afternoon, but the best they could muster, to the cheers of 2,300 fellow inmates in the stands, was not enough to get the ball beyond the enemy's posts.

3,000 Crowd Turned Away.

There were 300 women in the stands as against a handful at the first game. Atop a nearby hill, nearly 3,000 persons who had failed to gain admission saw snatches of the play, among them also at least 1,000 more feminine fans.

"We'll have to do something about this," said Warden Lewis E. Lawes, as he surveyed the throng seeking admittance in vain. "We haven't room for all these people, we can't enlarge the prison and I don't see how we can take the players and their mates down to the Polo Grounds. The situation is getting serious."

Among the spectators were Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, Mayor Thomas Conmy of Port Jervis, William E. Hall, deputy fire commissioner of New York, and William Orr, former State's prison superintendent.

At the last minute, the prison authorities had to enlist the aid of 200 extra attendants to "frisk" the ticket holders, who were admitted one by one, for possible firearms.

Convicts and Police Split Spoils.

The day's receipts were divided, 10 per cent to the Ossining emergency unemployment relief fund, 75 per cent to the Port Jervis police department and the balance to the prison's Christmas fund.

It cost a dollar to see today's game, as against 50 cents last Sunday.

Only three players were injured and they were able to resume play.

Capt. Pits, quarter back of Sing Sing, and Brown and Thomas for Port Jervis made the outstanding plays. Thomas scored a touchdown on a 56-yard run in the second quarter, after a scoreless first period. He topped it off with a perfect kick for the extra point.

In the third period after he made the second touchdown, however, he failed on the kick.

Another game will be played next Sunday, but the prison team's opponents have not yet been picked from a rapidly growing list of challengers.

Happy Valley Eleven Bows to Pirates, 23-0

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., Nov. 22.—Bill Hammond's Pirate Athletic Club staged a real come-back this afternoon and defeated the Happy Valley eleven, of Arlington County, 13-0, on Guckert's Field.

Tulane to Be Invited To Coast, Is Report

New Orleans, Nov. 22 (U.P.).—Tulane University, generally accepted as an outstanding undefeated and untied football team of the Nation, will be invited within the next four or five days, to play the University of Southern California in the famous Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, Calif., on New Year's Day, it was reported reliably here today.

Commenting on the invitation, Charles L. Dufour, football writer for the New Orleans Item-Tribune, said he had learned on unimpeachable authority that Tulane would receive the bid and would accept it.

Northwestern, which was also considered as the opponent for U. S. C., is definitely out now because it is scheduled to meet Purdue in a charity game after the season ends and because the Big Ten Conference has shown "no inclination whatever to change its rule on post-season games," Dufour said.

Hobart Gridmen Win After 3 Lean Years

Geneva, N. Y., Nov. 22 (U.P.).—There were plenty of celebrations of football victories in America's colleges last night and today, but none was quite as enthusiastic as that of the less than 400 youths who call Hobart alma mater.

For three years Hobart students had waited for a football victory to celebrate, and when Seaders took the ball through the entire Rochester University team Saturday for 57 yards and a touchdown, more than just another celebration occurred here and in the team's Rochester hotel.

The score was 13 to 7, but the figures were not important in Geneva so long as Hobart stood on the long side.

It was a profitable night for the barbers, too. Four weeks ago a group of students pledged themselves not to shave until Hobart had a football victory. When the last whistle blew in Rochester Saturday, those students hunted out the nearest barber shops and disbanded the "no win, no shave" club before joining the frolic.

500 HONOR RICKEY.

Five hundred reservations were made for a dinner at Springfield, Mo., in honor of Branch Rickey, vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals.

TWO CY LELANDS.

Texas Christian University last year had a star halfback named Cy Leland. This season a Cy Leland is one of the star backs of the Aberdeen, S. D., Northern Teachers' college team.

FIGHT CARD LISTS 36 ROUNDS

Battle Royal Also Is Added to He-Night Program Wed.

ARRANGEMENTS are nearing completion for the He-Night Smoker sponsored by the Elks of Alexandria to be staged next Wednesday night in the Portner Building. The building has been renovated and seats to accomodate 3,000 persons have been erected. There are 1,000 stationary seats on the ground floor.

Thirty-six rounds of boxing and a battle royal are listed on the program in addition to several acts of vaudeville. Nick Antonelli, formerly of New York but now making his home in Washington, will appear in the feature bout against Jimmy Tramberia, of Baltimore.

Antonelli Newcomer Here.

Antonelli, a featherweight, has not fought as yet in this vicinity, most of his bouts having been in and around Norfolk where he has been uniformly successful. Tramberia is well known to local followers of the fistic sport.

A six-round semiwind-up will bring together Harry "Kid" Groves, District welterweight champion, and Sammy Walker, of Newark, N. J. Groves won the mythical Capital City title last summer in a bout with Joe Smallwood at Fort Washington.

Four four-round preliminaries and the battle royal, which will involve six husky, dusky Virginians, will precede the headline fights.

APACHES DEFEAT MOHAWKS, 13-6

tory, relaxed, and on his next attempt Fouts made good.

A good kick by Paddy Byrne, that bounded outside on the Mohawk 1-yard line, started the eventual winners of their way to victory. The Hawks kicked and Duggan got back to the 32-yard line before being hauled down. A couple of line plays netted short gains, and then Mike Tracey heaved a 15-yard pass to Antos who wriggled free from a mass of Mohawks to cross the goal.

It was a perfectly executed trick play. The ball was passed to Dugan, Byrne faked a run off left tackle, and two Mohawks went for him. Dugan then whirled as he was about to be tackled and tossed the ball to Tracey, who ran about 5 yards to the right side of the field and well behind the line of scrimmage and passed to Antos. Chessy had slipped off unnoticed and took the ball close to the sideline, but he managed to get back into safe territory.

One of the breaks of the game led to the winning score in the second period. Fouts was unable to handle a bad pass from center and was tackled on his own 30-yard line. Dugan passed to Tracey to advance the ball to the 10-yard line, and after three line plays, Byrne plunged over. Byrne also added the extra point with a well aimed dropkick.

From then on it was nip and tuck, with the Apaches holding a slight edge until late in the final period, when the Hawks threatened to knot the count. "Snitz" Snyder carried the ball most of the time and usually gained from 5 to 8 yards.

One Mohawk thrust carried them to their opponent's 20-yard line, but they were halted at this point, lacking only inches of making a first down. It was the second fine stand of the day by the Apaches. Ray DuFour had personally attended to the halting of Snyder on the 5-yard stripe, where the ball rested as the half ended.

It is a curious fact, however, that when another yard or two was needed to make it a first down, Snyder was not given the ball. "Turk" Tobin, Mike Tracey, "Chessy" Antos, Himmelberg, and in fact all of the Apaches played great football. Jim Montague and Tobin played themselves into almost complete exhaustion before being removed.

Snyder Outstanding Hawk Star.

Snyder, and an unknown, but persistent fan (Hawks! Hawks! Hawks!) were the chief mainstays of the Mohawks. Snyder's ball-carrying and defensive work was par excellence. "Vinney" Flaherty, the big, red-headed end, also gave a fine exhibition.

St. Mary's Celtics Tie Baltimore Eleven, 0-0

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 22.—The powerful St. Mary's Celtics team, of Alexandria, Va., played the Irvington gridders to a scoreless tie here today. The game, in many respects, was the best of the season. Brilliant forward passing, hard tackling, spectacular broken field running and fierce line plunging was displayed by both teams.

Irvington had an air-tight defense against the passing of Howard McMenamin, rated one of the best forward heavers in the game. The teams were evenly matched, but bad breaks militated against scoring. In the third quarter, Irvington, by a series of passes and end runs, placed the ball on the Celtics' 2-yard line, but was unable to score. The Celtics threatened in the second quarter, when they rushed the ball to the Irvingtons' 81yard line, but were held.

Charity Golf Tourneys Held by District Clubs.

SEVERAL golf clubs in this section yesterday responded to the appeal of the United States Golf Association and held tournaments in aid of the unemployment relief fund. The Maryland State Golf Association, complying heartily with the request of the national organization, offered prizes in order to stimulate interest in the event.

At the Columbia Club, however, it was stated last night that no figures were available as to the amount of the receipts nor were the names of the prize winners, if any, known to the golf committee. The Beaver Dam Club reported that owing to the large number of cards submitted no results would be made known until today.

Congressional Raises $160 for Charity.

At the Congressional Club, on the contrary, it was stated that approximately $160 had been realized for the fund, owing to the generous response of the members, each of whom paid an entrance fee of $2. In class A the low gross prize was won by M. Parker Nolan with a card of 38—39—77.

In the blind bogey contest there was a tie, the lucky number of 75 being the low net score of both C. M. Weigle and W. H. Grimes. There was a triple tie for second prize between J. F. McCarron, Spencer Wise and A. H. Plant, jr., each with 74. In Class B, the low gross prize was won by A. W. Henderson with 45—45—91. First low net was a triple tie between Chester A. Bennett, E. J. Harding and William Ullman, each with 78, while P. B. Baldridge was second with 80.

At the Indian Spring Club, J. Monro Hunter, jr., won the low gross prize in Class A with a card of 35—36—71, while Dr. L. S. O'Tell won low net with 72—1—71. In Class B, the low gross winner was L. E. Strong with 43—43—86, and J. W. Reese won low net with 91—22—69. In Class C, the winner of the low gross prize was James P. Schick, with 45—47—92, and W. L. Miller was low net, with 98—30—68.

Manor Women in Tourney This Morning.

Women members of the Manor Club will hold an unemployment fund benefit this morning, all women golfers in the District being invited to participate in an eighteen-hole, medal play, handicap allowance competition. Handicaps up to 24 will be allowed. Play is scheduled to start at 9 o'clock.

G. W. IS HOST TO NORTH DAKOTA

Highly Touted Westerners Play Here Thanksgiving.

NORTH DAKOTA, one of the outstanding football teams of 1931, is to show its grid wares here Thanksgiving afternoon when it concludes its schedule by opposing the George Washington Colonials. Known as the Nodaks or Sioux, the visitors have cleaned up everything in their own country, and have lost but one game, that to Duquesne in Pittsburgh yesterday in the first of their two games in this section.

This year for the fourth straight time North Dakota has won its own north central grid championship. In that time it has never so much as been tied with any of its opponents.

Only one other team than Duquesne has been able to hold the Sioux this year. This team was Oregon, which came East the following week and trimmed New York University. Oregon and North Dakota played a scoreless tie in which the Nodaks were without the services of Ralph Pierce, who is rated as the greatest ball carrier in North Dakota's history.

Sioux Beat De Paul, 41 to 7.

Among the victims of North Dakota this year is DePauw, which was beaten by 41 to 7. This is the only defeat suffered by DePauw this year, which earlier accounted for Detroit University by 12 to 0.

Last year North Dakota met its only defeat from Army, which came close to defeating the nations' championship Notre Dame Team.

The North Dakotans are shooting for the high scoring mark of the year. They are close behind Davis-Elkins, according to the latest compilations.

The visitors are coached by C. A. West, who next fall will sign with the University of California Lower Branch to handle its grid destinies. West has made a marvelous record with North Dakota in his tenure there and is likely to complicate the grid situation on the Coast with his new team in the future.

Fred Felber, a giant end, is the outstanding All-American candidate on the Sioux eleven. He does everything so well that fans in the Northwest hail him as one of the greatest wingmen they have ever seen.

Gordon Dablow, sensational running guard, and Joe Bourne, veteran center, are other outstanding North Dakota linemen, while Capt. John Burma, 190-pound full back; Ralph Pierce, the sophomore sensation, and Lloyd Richmond, a great plunging and blocking back, are the back-field aces.

G. U. IS HOST TO DETROIT SATURDAY

Strong Mid-Western Team Promises Real Fight.

A GEORGETOWN football team still on the upgrade after having taken a new lease on life two weeks ago, promises to give the strong Detroit University eleven a terrific fight when they clash next Saturday in Griffith Stadium. It will be the closing game of the season for both teams.

New spirit born in heartening conquests of West Virginia and Villanova on successive Saturdays prevails in the ranks of Tommy Mills' players who, for the first five weeks of the season, were beset with many strokes of misfortune. Though they do not possess all of their best players even now, they figure to cause trouble for any team in the East.

Detroit One of West's Best Teams.

Detroit is one of the best teams in the West, but the doughty Hilltoppers have no more fear of Western outfits than for those of their own section. They proved that when they extended the powerful Michigan State Spartans and even outplayed them for a greater part of the game.

Victory over Detroit will be especially sweet to Georgetown because it will counteract the bitterness of the Michigan State defeat. Detroit walloped Michigan State last Saturday, 20 to 13.

Considering comparative scores, a Georgetown triumph next Saturday is not in the least improbable. Detroit had difficulty in beating West Virginia, 9-7, while Georgetown disposed of the Mountaineers rather handily, 13-0. Then, too, Georgetown held Bucknell to a 7-0 score and Buckwell defeated Fordham, which trounced Detroit, 39-9.

21 TRIBES REPRESENTED.

Twenty-threo native Oklahoma Indians played on the 1931 Haskell grid squad. Twenty-one tribes in all were represented.

C. U. TO FACE TEST IN LOYOLA

Turkey Day Rivals Boast Fine Record; Cards Ready.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S greatest homecoming day football attraction is the prospect as the Cardinals today start drilling for Thursday's long-awaited gridiron struggle with powerful Baltimore Loyola at Brookland. When the starting whistle shrills at 2:30 o'clock, two of the finest teams ever representing these institutions are to take the field.

Setting up a new mark for a C. U. eleven Saturday when Providence College was thrashed, 13 to 7, the Cardinals will be seeking their eighth consecutive victory of the year when Loyola is opposed. After deadlocking Western Maryland in a terrific battle a few weeks back, the Baltimoreans all but upset one of the most formidable Holy Cross machines in history this past Saturday.

Loyola Boasts Fine Record.

Clashing power in all departments against the "Crusaders," the "Fighting Irish" were leading at the termination of the third period, but were overhauled and barely edged out in the final period, 16 to 14.

When it is considered that Providence College was flailed by Holy Cross, 27 to 6, Brown was routed, 32 to 0, and Fordham was held to a scoreless tie, some idea of Loyola's real potency may be gained.

While realizing what a difficult assignment his team is to face in its effort to check Loyola, Head Coach "Dutch" Bergman nevertheless was singularly optimistic last night.

"I think Catholic U. played its finest football of the season against Providence Saturday," he declared. "As usual, Tom Whelan proved our scoring spark-plug. But did you notice the magnificent blocking of Nick Monaco, the heads-up defensive work of Bingo Flynn, and the all-round class of 'Bus' Sheary?"

In passing, Bergman gives more than a full measure of praise to a line that failed to crack before the pounding of Providence's big backs, while he also was duly impressed with the speed and versatility of Half Back Tony Barbarito.

Having pulled through Saturday's fracas with only a few bruises as souvenirs, the Cardinals today are to resume practice in full stride. Every department of the game will be discussed and worked on prior to the Thanksgiving Day classic.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau.
Washington, Sunday, Nov. 22—8 p. m.

Forecast for the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia—Fair with continued mild temperature Monday and Tuesday; gentle winds, mostly south.

The southwestern disturbance is still central over New Mexico, Santa Fe, 29.56 inches, and pressure is relatively low and falling from Texas northeastward to southern Minnesota. This disturbance has been attended by snow in the Rocky Mountain region, the Dakotas, and the western portions of Nebraska and Kansas, and by rains from Texas northeastward to the upper Mississippi Valley and the upper lake region. Fair weather has prevailed over practically all sections. Another disturbance is moving southeastward over Manitoba and Saskatchewan. The Pas, Manitoba, 29.84 inches; still another is over the Hudson Strait region. Hopes Advance, 29.42 inches, and pressure remains low over western and northern Alaska and the Greenland-Iceland area. Pressure remains high east of the Mississippi River. Lynchburg, Va., 30.42 inches, and over British Columbia, Prince George, 30.40 inches, and it is still high but falling over the northern Rocky Mountain region and the northern Plains States, Kalispell, 30.34 inches. The temperature has fallen in Vermont and northern New York, and from southern Kansas and eastern Colorado southward over Oklahoma, northwestern Texas, and eastern New Mexico. The temperature is still much above normal over the eastern Half of the United States, and much below normal almost generally over the western half. Many stations east of the Mississippi River report the highest temperature so late in the season.

General forecast for the Atlantic States, the lower lake region, the Ohio Valley and Tennessee: The indications are for generally fair weather and continued mild temperature during the next two days, except for light showers from northern New York eastward to northern Maine Monday, and for showers and cooler Tuesday from western Tennessee to western Ohio.

NEW LEAGUE PLANS BRIDGE TOURNAMENT

Three-Day Event to Be Held at Shoreham Hotel, Beginning Dec. 10.

Stimulated by enthusiasm aroused in contract bridge by the successful Washington Post tournament last May, local devotees of the game have formed the Washington Bridge League with E. B. Eynon, jr., as president, and yesterday made announcement of the first tournament to be held under auspices of that organization.

The events will take place at the Shoreham Hotel, on December 10, 11 and 12. There will be an afternoon session at 2 o'clock and an evening session at 8:30 o'clock each day. More than 1,000 invitations have been sent out by the committee in charge to bridge players in Washington and elsewhere, and these and others who may wish to participate and who conform to the rules of the tournament will be eligible, upon making application. Membership in the league is not necessary for permission to engage in the tournament.

The tournament will open on Thursday afternoon, December 10, with the first round for the contract pair championship, and will be continued on the following afternoon, all entries competing. Thereafter, a qualifying section will be arranged on the basis of cumulative match point score to compete in the finals on Saturday.

Cup for Champions.

The pair making the highest percentage in match points during the entire three sessions, cumulative average, will be adjudged the champions. A championship cup, the donor of which is to be made known later, will be awarded. There will also be individual cups and prizes for runners-up in the contest.

The first and second rounds of the contract team matches will take place on Thursday and Friday evenings. The four teams having won the greatest percentage of matches in these sessions will participate in a "round robin" on Saturday night for the championship. Decision will be based upon the score of that day only. The championship team will be awarded the custody for one year of the Eynon Cup, donated by E. B. Eynon, jr., president of the Washington Bridge League. Individual members of the winning team will receive cups for their permanent possession, and prizes also will be given runners-up. Possession of the championship cup is to be retained for one year.

At both sessions on Saturday there will be consolation games open only to contestants eliminated in the championship events, and for winners in these there will be special prizes.

Other Open Games.

Open games of auction as well as contract will be arranged for each session for those who do not desire to participate in the championship events. Top score plus will be awarded winners in each section.

The tournament committee consists of A. P. Stockvis, chairman; W. R. Lewis, Miss Mazie Buie, Mrs. Frank B. Guest, Frank B. Lord and Van A. Clarke.

Mrs. Charles Keene, chairman; Mrs. Marian Barre, Mrs. D. E. Stephen, Mrs. G. Brown Hill, Mrs. John K. Freiot, Mrs. Frank B. Guest, Mrs. Howard Priest, Mrs. Alma Byrne, Mrs. Marguerite E. Lord, Miss Mazie Buie, Miss Lucille C. Smith and Miss Mary Beadle comprise the committee of hostesses.

R. E. Needham will officiate as tournament manager, and Russell Baldwin as scorer.

The tournament will operate with the approval of the American Bridge League and its rules will govern play.

Policemen Disarm Man In Scuffle at Station

After snatching a pistol from the holster of Patrolman E. R. Waters in the Third Precinct Station yesterday, William Anderson, colored, 22 years old, 2133 L street northwest, engaged in a tussle with three policemen until he was disarmed.

Anderson, who was being searched by Patrolman Waters, snatched the policeman's service revolver and pressed it against the officer. Patrolmen C. W. Feagan and J. H. Gwinn leaped at Anderson and after a scuffle disarmed him. The policemen were slightly injured in the fight. Anderson had been arrested for assaulting another man with a knife.

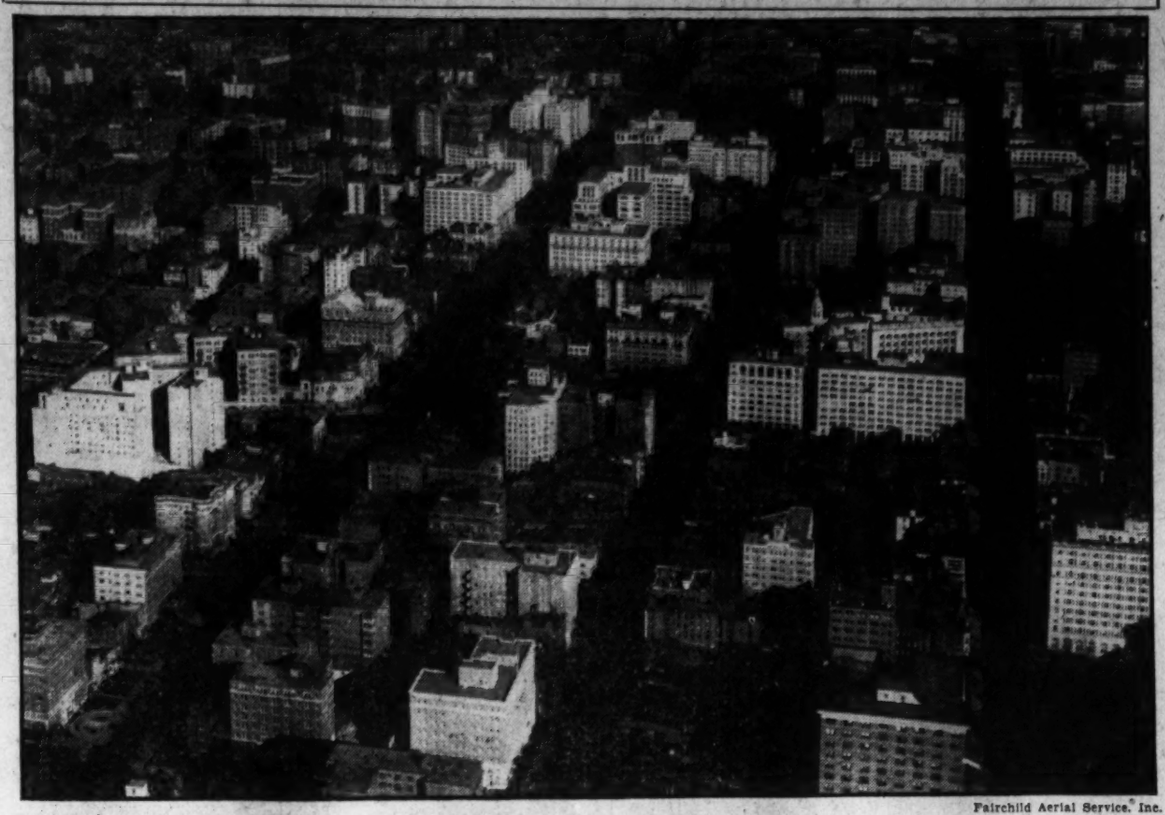
Skyviews of Washington, No. 23



Fairchild Aerial Service, Inc.

FLYING west over the downtown office and apartment house district, the Skyviews photographer snapped the above unusual picture.

Buildings take odd shapes from the air, hence there will be many ready to deny that the white building looming large on the right of the picture is the La Salle Apartments, or the structure in the lower right-hand corner is the old Department of Commerce.

The long black lanes extending upward are, running from left to right, K street, I street and H street. To the right of the Commerce Building, joining H street and Pennsylvania avenue, is the Powhatan Hotel. Farther up H, to the left, is the Transportation Building. The upper three stories of the United States Chamber of Commerce may be seen just above it.

At the lower end of I street the Columbia Medical Building can be distinguished, and just above it, at Eighteenth and I streets, the Washington Medical Building. The large building, a block to the east, is the Farragut Apartments, facing Farragut Square, at Seventeenth and I streets northwest. Just above may be seen the Army and Navy Club, and, to the right, the Barr Building.

Householder Is Robbed Of $50 at Door of Home

Held up at the point of a pistol in the doorway of his home, William M. Logan, 929 I street northwest, was robbed of $50 early yesterday morning. Logan suffered a cut on the back of his hand when he grappled with the thief.

Description of Logan's assailant was broadcast and police were seeking the man yesterday. Logan was of the opinion that the man had suffered lacerations about the face in the tussle and police hoped this would help them in finding him.

Model Home of Post Visited by Thousands

Thousands have been delighted by visits to The Washington Post model home at Thirty-fourth and Garrison streets northwest since its opening.

The home, built by William S. Phillis, erector of thousands of fine homes and many beautiful apartments, is being presented to the public by A. G. Hughes, of Realty Associates. The home, completely furnished and decorated, will be open on Sundays until 9 p. m., and during the week from 2 to 9 p. m.

RITES FOR C. M. BRYANT.

Native of Pennsylvania Worked in Pension Bureau 54 Years.

Funeral service for Charles Morton Bryant, who died suddenly yesterday at his home, 2708 Cathedral avenue, will be tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at his late residence. Interment will be in Rock Creek Park Cemetery.

Mr. Bryant was born in Erie County, Pa., 86 years ago and had been a resident of this city the last 61 years. He was employed by the Pension Bureau 54 years and was retired seven years ago. He was a member of the Sons of the American Revolution.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Amanda Camp Bryant, and a daughter, Mrs. Harry C. Grove.

GILPIN SERVICES TODAY.

Long-Time Resident of Capital to Be Buried in Virginia.

Funeral service for Mrs. Elizabeth J. Gilpin, who died after a brief illness at her home, 14 Concord avenue northeast, will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence. Interment will be at Berkeley Springs, Va.

Mrs. Gilpin was born in Rockville, Md., 83 years ago and was a resident of this city for the last twenty years.

She is survived by her son, Henry D. Gilpin, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and two daughters, Miss Elizabeth Gilpin and Mrs. A. D. Oyster, both of this city.

Disrespectful Monkey Irks Zoo's Most Sedate Citizen

Invading Organ-Grinder's Pet Has Effrontery to Tweak the Dignified Forelock of the Unapproachable Indian Adjutant.

The Indian adjutant of the National Zoological Park is a most melancholy bird. Standing squarely on both feet, his long-billed head hunched low between his enormous wings, he presents a picture of woe equaled by no other inhabitant of the aviary.

He is a most dignified fellow, ordinarily, but yesterday afternoon he displayed signs of unusual activity. Now be it known that the Indian adjutant is the proud possessor of a tuft of hair that reminds one for all the world of the toupee of a very old man. It imparts to him an air of sangfroid that stands him in good stead when the visitors make facetious remarks on his appearance. Wisecracks, as such, make no difference to him. He merely blinks his solemn eyes, considers the source and passes them off as purely beneath his notice.

But not even an Indian adjutant, no matter how sangfroidish he may be, can endure the indignity of an impudent monkey playfully tearing tufts of hair from the adjutant's head, and that's exactly what happened.

The monkey appeared from nowhere and every one admitted that he meant no harm. No one knows how it happened, either. Certainly the keepers weren't to blame, for the monkey was a complete stranger to them. When the excitement had subsided, though, it was found that he belonged to an organ grinder who had wandered into the zoo . . . why, no one knows.

The Indian adjutant, after the monkey had been removed, quietly resumed his meditations where they had been interrupted, and hopes, some day soon, to announce a new interpretation of the philosophy of Karma. That is, if the chattering simian imbeciles in the next room will keep quiet for a few days and allow him some time in which to concentrate.

Oscar, Police Cat Mascot, Found After Week's Search

Oscar has been found.

Of course, to a great many persons, that declaration doesn't mean a thing, but to police of the Second Precinct it means the solving of one of the outstanding mysteries of the month. For more than a week an extensive search had been conducted for Oscar, but only last night were efforts of a special investigating squad rewarded.

Oscar is a gray kitten. A month or so ago he strolled into the precinct station and immediately established headquarters. From then on he became a favorite. Nothing was too good for him as far as eating was concerned, and many times work ceased while all eyes turned to watch him perform in the middle of the floor.

But suddenly, a week ago, Oscar disappeared. Lieut. J. W. Pierson organized a searching party. From cellar to garret, not a chair was left unturned in the hunt for the missing mascot. Days passed. Little hope remained that he would be found alive.

Last night Lieut. Pierson heard a faint cry. It was unmistakably Oscar's voice. The search was renewed with zest. The kitten, little the worse for its experience, was located in a hot-air vent in the wall. With the aid of a blow torch he was released and welcomed home with a big saucer of milk.

But the policemen are still wondering how Oscar happened to get himself into such a place.

Boy Suffers Neck Hurts In Football Scrimmage

Francis McDevitt, 18 years old, a member of the Noel House Community Center football team, received neck injuries yesterday while scrimmaging in a football game on the Tidal Basin grounds. Young McDevitt was taken to Casualty Hospital where his condition was said not to be serious. He lives at 1326 F street northeast.

3,000,000 Children Only Have Defects of Hearing

In an article in The Post yesterday, treating on hearing defects among children, it was stated in the headline appearing over the story that 12,000,000 children were affected with some degree of deafness. This is an error. The text of the story, which says that 3,000,000 are so affected is correct.

Police Seek Man's Slayer.

Police last night were searching for a colored man who shot to death Freddie Hall, colored, 29, at his home, 1214 L street southeast, in a dice game argument. The slayer left behind two pistols when he fled the scene. His identity is known, police said.

FOUR HOMES ROBBED IN SOUTHEAST AREA

Thieves Go Through Kitchen Windows to Take Cash and Belongings.

Residents of four homes on South Carolina avenue southeast between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets awoke from their Sunday morning slumbers yesterday and found that thieves had entered during the night through kitchen windows and made away with varying amounts of cash and personal belongings.

Sally Roberts, 1366 South Carolina avenue, reported loss of $4 in cash and personal effects aggregating $15, while Margaret Roberts, of the same address, was robbed of cash and other belongings amounting to $25. At 1370 South Carolina avenue William Beatty reported $25 in cash taken.

Newton Hummer, of 1360 South Carolina avenue, was robbed of $7 in cash and a wrist watch valued at $20, and Frank Biondi, of 1341 South Carolina avenue, the least victimized, reported a dozen eggs missing from the ice box in his kitchen.

Cornhuskers Offered Beans in Payment

Greenfield, O. (U.P.).—Having an abundant supply of beans and corn, Fred Hammer, Highland County farmer, recently made a strange offer.

He notified the Greenfield employment agency that he could supply work to several cornhuskers, provided they were willing to accept beans as compensation.

The salary was set at 3 cents a bushel. Payment was to have been made in beans at the price of 4 cents a pound.

Indians Renew Oil Land Battle

Property Valued at $3,000 000 Claimed by Chippewas in Michigan.

Mount Pleasant, Mich. (U.P.).—Development of oil fields near here, and the gold the "white man" is making has awakened 1,500 Chippewa Indians to a renewed fight for long-forgotten rights to the land on which it was discovered.

At a recent council, called by Chief John Elk, the Indians studied and discussed the treaty of 1864, which they claim gave them property now valued at $3,000,000. Chief John Elk seasoned by years of wisdom, told his tribesmen that the Government later allowed the white man to contract for timber on the land.

"But," the chief said, "some of the lumbermen made their contracts read 'timber and land,' and by trickery defrauded both the Government and the Indians. That's why the oil land isn't ours now." The claims of the Chippewas are before the Court of Appeals in Washington, the chief said. However, other Indian claims occupy the attention of the court. The Chippewas await their turn. "Meanwhile," the old tribe leader pointed out, "the white man digs for oil, and piles up gold."

Anacostia Citizens to Meet.

The Anacostia Citizens Association will hold its monthly meeting at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the Masonic Temple, Fourteenth and U streets northwest. Dr. George C. Havenner, president of the association, will preside.

Two Men Injured In Card Party Row

One Seriously Stabbed; Girl Is Among Four Being Held.

In a melee which climaxed a card game quarrel in a young woman's apartment at 1260 Tenth street northwest yesterday, Norman Trevathan, 30, of 1345 L street northwest, was seriously stabbed by Jesse M. Robbins, 34, of the same address, according to police.

Trevathan was removed to Emergency Hospital. Police held Robbins and three others who were present on investigation charges. They are the injured man's brother, John W. Trevathan, 26, William H. Benton, 33, both of the L street address, and Miss Gay Lawson, resident of the apartment.

When Norman Trevathan was stabbed, his brother struck Robbins over the head with a beer bottle, police said. They took him to Freedman's Hospital for treatment of a lacerated scalp.

FORMER MRS. LEWIS DESCRIBES AUTHORS

Gives "Low Down" on Wells, Shaw, Bennett, Walpole and Others.

The "low down" on several leading British authors was given by Grace Hegger Lewis, the former Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, to a large audience at the Woman's National Democratic Club yesterday afternoon.

Displaying a gift of mimicry, Mrs. Lewis presented intimate glimpses of H. G. Wells, Bernard Shaw, the late Arnold Bennett, Hugh Walpole, John Galsworthy, Lord Dunsany and John Cowper Powys. Wells she described as a lover of games, many of his own invention, successfully forgetting the past and creating a new life through moving to a new environment.

The late Mr. Bennett was depicted by Mrs. Lewis as "a party lover and gay;" Galsworthy as "gentle and almost shy," and Walpole as the most popular English author in the United States.

Mrs. Lewis said that in Mr. Shaw she found everything she had hoped for in an author, but added that some of the first glamour wears off after successive meetings. Mr. Powys, the speaker said, is the best English author-lecturer she has heard. Mrs. Lewis is the author of "Half a Loaf," a best seller, revealing the private life of a famous author and his wife.

Thieves Rob Dime Store Of Sum Hidden on Shelf

Gaining entrance with a duplicate key, thieves entered the Peoples Five and Ten Cent Store, 4913 Georgia avenue northwest, some time early yesterday and stole $117 which was secreted on a shelf under the cash register.

Gasoline Ignites; Two Burned.

Attempting to extinguish flames caused by ignition of gasoline they were using to clean an automobile in the rear of 1225 B street northeast, and Richard C. Callison, 17, 1519 East Capitol street, received minor burns of the face and hands which were treated at Casualty Hospital yesterday afternoon.

2 BRUTALITY CASES TO OPEN TOMORROW

Harker Charges Against 4 Policemen Go to Jury This Afternoon.

With a verdict on third degree charges concerning four First Precinct policemen expected today, the courts will be ready to open trials of two other officers on similar charges tomorrow.

The case of Headquarters Detective Robert J. Barrett, who is accused of a fistic assault on George B. Baber, a murder suspect, since exonerated, will open before Justice James M. Proctor in Criminal Court No. 1.

Policeman George Sorber, charged with an attack on Arthur T. Paul, a prisoner, was to be brought to trial this morning. However, this trial will be deferred at the request of Sorber's attorney, James O'Shea, who must be in court for three of the four defendants in the Harker case.

Following final addresses of opposing counsel, the fates of Policemen James Mostyn, W. C. Grooms, W. R. Laflin and W. T. Burroughs will be deliberated this afternoon by a jury in Justice Proctor's court.

Justice Proctor Saturday limited the final arguments of both the prosecution and the defense to two hours each, so the case will reach the jury about 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The court session Saturday was devoted to discussion by counsel, in absence of the jury, of the court's final charge to the jury. Before the jury retires Justice Proctor will give the body thorough instructions in the weighing of evidence and arriving at a verdict.

Mostyn has yet to be tried on three additional assault charges against colored prisoners. Fixing of dates for these trials awaits outcome of the present case.

Program Set Tomorrow At Chevy Chase Center

A program for children and adults will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:15 o'clock at the Chevy Chase Center in the E. V. Brown School building, under auspices of the Community Center Department, and under direction of Mrs. F. K. Espenschied, community secretary at Chevy Chase Community Center.

Features will be a movie of Western life, and a comedy picture. Miss Lucile Brackett, of Mrs. Donna L. Taggart's group at the center, will give a demonstration of acrobatic dancing, and Miss Ivy Randall will present one of her group in a series of tap dances.

Man Removing Screen Hurt in 2-Story Fall

Davis was treated by Dr. W. A. Ryan, 2100 North Capitol street, for bruises, shock and possible fractured ribs. He was later removed to Casualty Hospital for further treatment where it was said his condition was undetermined.
